TRUDEAU WARNS OF CONFRONTATION

Youth Jobless Summit Issue

Trudeau points the way for Callaghan

Times News Services

LONDON — There will be confrontation and changes in the ideology of Western governments if economic solutions are not found to reduce unemployment, Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau warned the Western summit conference here today, according to Canadian delegation sources.

The summit participants concentrated heavily on economic matters during their first session of all were reported to have agreed to try to meet their set targets for economic expansion.

Time and again, Canadian sources said, the talk turned to unemployment.

The seven leaders ordered their aides to include unemployment in a document explaining — for the peoples of the democracies, not for experts — that the world's current economic problems are fundamental ones, of a new order, and will not quickly be solved.

There was general agreement that unemployment among the young was one of the most serious immediate problems, British sources said.

There was agreement to concentrate on alleviating it, they added.

The seven leaders at the meeting agreed that recovery from world recession is under way — but still is not moving quickly enough, participant U.S. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said.

The seven leaders believe that business and consumer confidence is not high enough and that inflation and unemployment are still far from beaten, he added.

All seven strongly rejected trade protectionism and voiced pleasure over the fact that no country had resorted to that device, despite the recession of the last few years, Blumenthal said.

At the meeting, Trudeau

Bank Rate Drops

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Bank of Canada's bank rate will be lowered Monday from 8.0 to 7.5 per cent, the fourth such reduction in its lending rate for the chartered banks in less than six months.

Bank governor Gerald Bouey said Friday the reduction was needed because the rate of growth of the money supply — the currency and demand deposits at chartered banks — "has been appreciably below the bank's target range."

Lowering the rate charged by the central bank for its infrequent loans to commercial banks generally influences other interest rates, like those charged for consumer loans and mortgages to move lower.

"There is now room for some decline in short-term interest rates from present levels without running the risk of overly-rapid monetary expansion," Bouey said.

He noted Canada's economic situation and prospects clearly make it very desirable that interest rates be no higher than are necessary to avoid inflationary rates of monetary growth."

Bouey stressed that the federal authorities will be on guard against signs that the easier credit is fanning inflation.

City April Food Bill Up by Four Per Cent

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria's food bill jumped another four per cent during the past month due mainly to an 18 per cent increase in the price of coffee and smaller rises in canned tuna, eggs and milk.

The total grocery order came to $114.90. The same order cost $109.85 one month ago.

Victoria food prices have risen 14.4 per cent so far in 1977. In December, the grocery bill had been an even $100 for the same items.

Main villain continues to be coffee with a six-ounce jar of instant selling at $4.59, up 70 cents from $3.89 one month ago. In December it was selling at $2.61. At this time last year the same product was selling at $2, or less than half the present price.

The outlook is for further price increases, despite a partial boycott. Sales are down but only marginally and prices of other beverages are on the way up, which will discourage shifting to other drinks.

For example, hot chocolate prices will be going up 10 per cent during the next two weeks.

Egg prices have been fluctuating sharply in recent weeks and now are at $1.02 for grade A large, up from 96 cents one month ago. Prices change in response to the supply.

Milk prices are edging upwards. A two-litre container now is $1.16, up from $1.12 one month ago.

Canned tuna prices continue to rise. A seven-ounce tin now sells at $1.15, up from $1.12 one month ago and $1.05 in December. There are reports of a tuna shortage which will continue to put upward pressure on the price. Salmon is in good supply, however, and should not go up.

Canned peaches, a relative bargain at 43 cents this spring, rose two cents during the month.

While price increases were sharp for coffee, eggs and tuna, most items showed no price change during the past 30 days.

By contrast, two-thirds of all items had increased in price between February and March. The present situation is one of stability with some selective sharp increases.

There is no sign of a price reduction in anything.

For the next 30 days, there are likely to be price increases in beef, coffee, hot chocolate and possibly tuna.

ENGINE FAULT TURNS BACK CONCORDE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Less than two hours into its Washington-to-London flight Friday, a British Airways Concorde supersonic transport made a forced return to Dulles International Airport because one of its engines had broken down.

It was the first time a Concorde had developed such a problem in flight, the plane's pilot said.

The jetliner was well on its way across the ocean, about 600 miles northeast of Boston near Sable Island, when the trouble developed, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said.

Forces to Grow

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — Gen. J. A. Dextraze, Canadian Armed Forces chief of staff, said in a message recorded this week that preliminary approval has been given to increase the armed forces by as many as 4,000 to 5,000 men.

Funds for Bridge

The provincial cabinet has approved the payment of $400,000 to Ladysmith for construction of a bridge across Holland Creek connecting Victoria Crescent with Holland Drive. The bridge is to be built by the municipality.

Costly Rings Stolen

ZURICH (AP) — A thief who apparently posed as a jewelry dealer walked off with a 21.5-carat diamond ring that was expected to fetch $350,000 at a Sotheby jewelry auction, a Sotheby's spokesman said Friday. The ring along with another worth $80,000 were reported missing after public viewing Wednesday at the fashionable Baur Au Lac hotel, he said.

Carter a Target

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Assassin, a magazine about espionage and assassination has been on U.S. newsstands only a few weeks. But it has aroused controversy because of its content and its cover which shows a picture of President Carter superimposed within the cross-hairs of a telescopic sight and the words "How Would You Do It?" Other articles include blueprints for an atomic bomb and how to blow up a car.

A BABY'S CRY BOUND FOR SPACE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two U.S. spacecraft "condemned to wander forever" among the stars will carry recordings of voices, a baby crying, birdsong, music, animal grunts and other earth sounds when they blast off on planetary probes this summer.

The proposed messages from Earth would be designed to give possible extra-terrestrial civilizations many thousands or perhaps millions of years from now an audio glimpse at 20th century earth and its inhabitants.

"The spacecraft will last for perhaps hundreds of millions of years," said Dr. Carl Sagan, Cornell University astronomer heading a committee planning the record for the space agency.

"It might be nice, if someone does receive, that he knows a little bit about us."

No one knows if there is life elsewhere, but many other stars are believed to have planetary systems which might have the characteristics necessary for the development of life.

Sagan said it is possible there could be civilizations much more advanced than ours which could detect and capture a foreign spacecraft.

Youths' Liquor Seized by Police

DELTA (CP) — Delta police, cleared of brutality charges by an internal investigation of their work in breaking up a noisy beach party last weekend, used preventive policing Friday to avoid a repeat of the incident.

Police searched scores of cars in the municipality, confiscating liquor and beer from young people in dozens of separate checks.

A police spokesman said nine separate patrols worked through the municipality. Most beer and liquor was confiscated from young people on their way to parties, he said, adding that no tally of the seized bottles was available.

Earlier Friday, Police Chief Merv Smith said an investigation of last weekend's incident, in which police using riot batons and dogs broke up a group of over 200 young people on the Tsawwassen ferry causeway, has cleared his men of brutality charges.

Smith said police are renting videotape equipment to record such incidents in the future, so as to justify their actions in similar situations to the public.

The police chief, who conducted the in-house investigation, said it disproved charges by the teen-agers involved that police attacked the crowd, swinging riot sticks and unleashing police dogs.

Those involved claimed at a public meeting Wednesday that the police action to break up the crowd was unwarranted, unprovoked and that warnings to clear the beach were not audible.

He said the force of about 18 riot-equipped police moved in a line toward the crowd when the teen-agers ignored warnings to disperse. The youths had been throwing beer bottles and rocks around the beach and at police, he said. Neighbors had complained about the noise.

NORWAY HALTS DRILLING

OSLO (Reuter) — Norway has indefinitely postponed test drilling of new oil and gas deposits off its north coast because of last-month's accident on the Bravo oil rig in the North Sea, a government minister said today.

Industry Minister Bjartmar Gjerde said that in response to demands from opposition parties and environmentalists, drilling in the northern fields, believed to be even richer than those in the North Sea, would be put off until it could start within what he called acceptable levels of risk.

Masons Vote Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — The cement masons union has voted 75 per cent in favor of strike action to back contract demands with Construction Labor Relations Association.

It is the only construction union now negotiating with the association to take a strike vote. The association bargains for about 850 contractors in B.C.

Union spokesman Frank Stevens said the masons want some safety changes stipulated in the agreement, and pay for a lead hand at a rate between that of a journeyman and a foreman.

Negotiations continue with four other construction unions.

AHOP Rules Eased

By LIZ HUGHES

Mortgage subsidies for new homes bought under the joint federal-provincial Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) have been extended to cover buyers paying more than 25 per cent of their income.

Previously, only buyers paying more than 30 per cent were eligible.

Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis announced Friday that the provincial government has signed an agreement with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to extend the AHOP program another year.

Curtis said he was pleased the federal government had agreed to the payment reduction, "the effect of which will probably be to double the province's participation in this program."

The AHOP scheme provides mortgage assistance to people buying homes who qualify under the program rules.

One phase of the program provides assistance to new homes being built. Curtis said 5,800 such units had received assistance during the past year.

Of those 5,800 units, 1,300 have been completed and about 900 have been sold so far.

In more than half of those sales, the purchasers received grant assistance under AHOP.

Curtis said regulations have also been approved which bring into affect recently-passed amendments to the Home Purchase Assistance Amendment Act.

This act provides a $1,000 grant for qualified new home buyers which can be used as part of the down payment.

The changes also allow divorced persons, who previously could not receive benefits under the act if their former spouse had received the

70 Apartments Destroyed In Montreal Arson Blaze

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of people spent the night with relatives or in welfare centres and hotels Friday after being forced from their homes by a general-alarm fire which destroyed more than 70 apartment units in a three-block area of the city's north end.

"It's the worst fire I've seen in 15 or 20 years," said Rene Plaisance, director of the Montreal fire department. "It appears the fire was intentionally set in six different places."

More than 200 firemen, hampered by thick smoke and gusting winds, battled for nearly three hours to bring the flames under control.

Police said two firefighters and one area resident suffered smoke inhalation or slight injuries. Another resident was reported in hospital suffering from a suspected heart attack.

The fire aparently began in a shed behind a row of two- and three-storey tenements and spread quickly to other buildings.

Flames spread over block-long rows of buildings on both sides of Clark Street, as well as one side of neighboring St. Laurent.

Residents said the fire spread so quickly they had no time to do anything but flee. Few personal belongings could be saved.

A police spokesman said between 70 and 75 housing units, many of them tenement rooms, were destroyed. But it was difficult to determine how many families were left homeless because some units were not occupied.

Preliminary estimates of the homeless ran between 50 and 100 families.

Some of them were being put up temporarily in hotel rooms, paid for by the city's social welfare department. Others stayed with friends or were housed temporarily in welfare reception centres.

'77 Cars Costliest Yet in Low-Speed Crashes

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Automobile designs continue to cause costly repairs in low-speed crashes despite the enactment five years ago of a U.S. law intended to compel adoption of damage-resistant bumpers, the House commerce consumer protection and finance subcommittee was told Friday.

The evidence came from filmed crash tests of 1977 models conducted by the U.S. Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, a non-profit industry group.

Institute vice-president Benjamin Kelley said that "damage of a kind never before seen" was suffered by a full-size Chevrolet, an Impala, that crashed at 10 miles per hour into a wall angled at 30 degrees to the car's front. The damage shown in a screening of the film: the roof buckled.

The total repair bill — based on an hourly labor rate of $11 — was $828.

For the 1977 model year, General Motors re-designed the Impala and other full-size GM cars to improve efficiency by reducing weight and exterior dimensions. Essentially the same body shell as the Impala's is used for the Chevrolet Caprice and two each of Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick models.

Kelley said that to an extent not previously found in institute tests, doors on some cars jammed closed in low-speed frontal crashes, sealing the occupants inside so they could not escape quickly in event of fire or other emergency.

He said this happened when a Ford LTD crashed at 5 mph into a wall at an angle; when a Plymouth Gran Fury, a Ford LTD, a Ford Pinto and a Chevette had frontal angle crashes at 10 mph, and when a Ford LTD four-door sedan crashed head-on at 10 mph.

In the last instance, Kelley said, the front doors of the LTD — arrival to the Impala and Caprice — jammed. The repair bill was $978, including $292 for fixing the doors.

In contrast, Kelley testified, the doors of a 1975 Volvo, in an earlier test, didn't jam in a 35-mph frontal crash.

Other test highlights:

—In 16 crashes in which a car rammed into the rear of an identical auto at 10 mph, the repair costs for both vehicles ranged from $4.40 for the Honda Civic CVCC to $594 — 135 times as much — for the Plymouth Gran Fury.

—In 10 mph head-on crashes of five models, the range was $397 for a Chevrolet Vega to $687 for the Ford LTD.

—In 5 mph frontal angle crashes into a wall, the range — among 16 models — of repair costs was $88 for a Chevelle (similar to certain Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick models) to $437 for a Datsun B210.

—In 16 similar crashes at 10 mph, the range was $458 for a Honda Civic CVSS to $928 for an Impala.

Kelley said that the department of transportation has not fulfilled the mandate of a 1972 wholesale price of beef has risen four cents per pound. Late next week this will be reflected in higher retail prices, ranging from five cents to a dime, depending on the cut.

The price of bread, paper products, soup and canned vegetables is stable.

There are conflicting reports that oil-based products like margarine and peanut butter will have price increases due to a world shortage of vegetable oil, but there has been no sign of this in Canada. The report came from Vancouver sources but was contradicted by Montreal food manufacturers.

The price of margarine is still 55 cents a pound, the same price it was in December. At this time last year it was 59 cents and had been as high as 65 cents earlier in 1976. It reached a low level of 51 cents on Nov. 12, then rose to 55 cents and held firm.

There have been attempts to increase the price of peanut butter but these have been resisted by consumers, aided by a wide choice of brands.

The price is 99 cents for a 16-ounce jar, up from 97 cents at this time last year. There was an attempt to move the price higher during the past two weeks but it was restored to the 99 cent level.

The food survey includes all products except pet food and fresh produce.

However, pet food continues to soar, rising six per cent during the past month. The prices have moved up relentlessly a penny or two per tin every month since November.

Prices for fresh fruit and vegetables fluctuate sharply according to supply and are not included because they would tend to distort the price figures. Shoppers tend to substitute for better-priced vegetables when their first choice is priced unreasonably high.

Oil Flow to U.S. Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is willing to consider maintaining oil exports to the United States at the rate of 250,000 barrels a day for the next five years, a memorandum written by Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie says.

The current government policy, in view of dwindling domestic oil reserves, is to reduce the exports gradually, eliminating them entirely by 1981.

Exports that at one point in 1974 reached more than one million barrels a day are expected to average about 300,000 barrels this month.

A new report on oil supply and demand from the National Energy Board later this month is expected to recommend further cuts in the shipments.

But in a meeting with U.S. Energy Chief James Schlesinger in March, Gillespie said "under certain circumstances we might be prepared to continue our exports at a rate of 250,000 barrels a day for a period not exceeding five years . . ."

Gillespie said both Schlesinger and Vice-President Walter Mondale, whom he also met, seemed interested in such an arrangement.

The oil would be shipped to refineries in the mid-western states which depend on supplies from Alberta.

The conditions Canada would want include providing oil from U.S. sources to help meet needs in Eastern Canada and assurance that oil would be provided from U.S. storage in the event of another embargo by the Arab oil producers.

Gillespie also says in the memorandum he has indicated to the United States that if opposition from native groups scuttles a Mackenzie Valley pipeline, the government will seriously consider an alternative proposal to move only Alaskan gas across Canada.

However, Gillespie told Schlesinger that the government will be looking at new initiatives to settle the native claims, though they likely will not come until after publication of the Berger Commission report.

That report, on the social economic and environmental impact of a pipeline in the North, will be tabled in the Commons on Monday.

Meanwhile the provincial government Friday announced the establishment of a government-industry task force to study the question of a warranty program for new homes.

The task force will be comprised of senior officials from the ministries of consumer and corporate affairs and municipal affairs and housing and a representative, yet to be named, from the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada (HUDAC).

The provincial government is apparently considering some kind of involvement in a program to provide a warranty to home buyers.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said it is ludicrous that a commercial society "provides more protection for one who buys a pair of socks than one who buys a $65,000 home."

HUDAC last year initiated a voluntary program by which its members could supply a warranty for new homes, but it has not been as successful as the voluntary program operating in Alberta.

Ontario last year introduced legislation making it compulsory for a builder to provide a warranty.

Curtis said his ministry has been involved with HUDAC on the warranty program for some time "but I think there are now ample grounds for the government to consider some involvement."

has also placed special stress on the need to reach agreements with the poor countries in the so-called North-South dialogue, which opened with a conference in Paris 18 months ago and has made little progress since.

Canadian deputy prime minister Allan MacEachen is co-chairman of that conference and Canada wants a successful outcome at the final ministerial meeting due to open May 30.

Trudeau was reported ready to press for financial concessions to poor countries which are seeking more secure markets in the industrial states and ways of reducing their heavy foreign debts.

In a move toward unity at the summit, the Carter administration is lifting the U.S. ban on sales of highly-enriched uranium to three of the participants and to an international organization involving a fourth.

Press secretary Jody Powell said the administration had planned to announce the decision today at the opening of the summit.

But the countries scheduled to receive the uranium were told of the decision in advance, and they made it public Friday night.

The uranium will go to conference participants West Germany, Canada and Japan, as well as Belgium, the Netherlands and a multi-national nuclear energy operation involving West Germany and France, also at the summit.

Powell said the uranium will not be enriched enough to be used in nuclear weapons. But countries with the necessary technology, such as France and West Germany, could reprocess it into weapons-grade quality.

law for a standard under which bumpers would have to reduce property damage in low-speed crashes, front or rear. The DOT said in February, 1976, that the standard would take effect, in two stages, in the 1979 and 1980 models.

He also showed films of frontal crashes at 5 mph with 1977 AMC M Gremlins. One, equipped with a prototype bumper developed in less than eight weeks by Tayco Developments, Inc., cost zero — at 7 mph as well as 5 mph.

He also showed films of frontal crashes at 5 mph with 1977 AMC Gremlins. One, equipped with a standard bumper, cost $236 to repair; another, equipped with a prototype bumper developed in less than eight weeks by Tayco Developments, Inc., cost zero — at 7 mph as well as 5 mph.

The institute listed the following repair costs: Frontal, into a wall at a 30-degree angle, 5 mph and, in parentheses, 10 mph:

Plymouth Gran Fury, $359 ($721); Ford LTD, $318 ($805); Chevrolet Impala, $237 ($928); Chevelle, $98 ($727); Ford LTD II, $219 ($844); Chevrolet Nova, $234 ($669); Ford Granada, $257 ($660); Plymouth Volare, $222 ($518); Chevrolet Vega, $122 (792); Ford Pinto, $252 ($577); AMC Gremlin, $236 ($676); Chevette, $177 ($522); VW Rabbit, $110 ($848); Datsun B210, $437 ($824); Toyota Corolla, $387 ($720), and Honda Civic CVCC (a 1976 model; 1977s weren't on hand at test time), $224 ($458).

In the 10 mph head-on frontal crashes:

Pharmacy Break-In Nets Drugs

A pharmacy in Victoria and three businesses in the 3300-block Oak in Saanich were broken into overnight.

City police said a quantity of drugs was taken from McGill and Orme, 1900 Richmond. Thieves entered the building after smashing a front window.

Saanich police said thieves entered offices of Bossom Glass and Allied Instrument Services, both at 3347 Oak, tried unsuccessfully to break into the office of Bennet Signs at the same address and forced their way into Palm Motors next door at 3342 Oak.

A panel truck belonging to Bossom Glass was stolen. Police this morning were attempting to determine if anything else was taken.

the weather

A large band of clouds swirling around a low pressure vortex centre in California spawned showers across south central B.C. on Friday and throughout the night but only threatened the south coast. The south coast did enjoy sunny weather along with most of the remaining parts of the province. This band of showers is being pushed southeastwards by a ridge of high pressure building inland from the south coast. A weak frontal system in the Gulf of Alska is drifting towards the coast but will not be able to penetrate the ridge which will provide good deal of sunshine thoughout the weekend in southern B.C. while clouds and a few showers will reach the north coast late today. Temperatures will continue to rise slowly today and Sunday making this an excellent weekend for all outdoor activities.

OGOPOGO IN DANGER FROM 2,4-D?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Author Mary Moon says that anti-weed chemicals proposed for Lake Okanagan could kill Ogopogo, a legendary creature said to inhabit the lake.

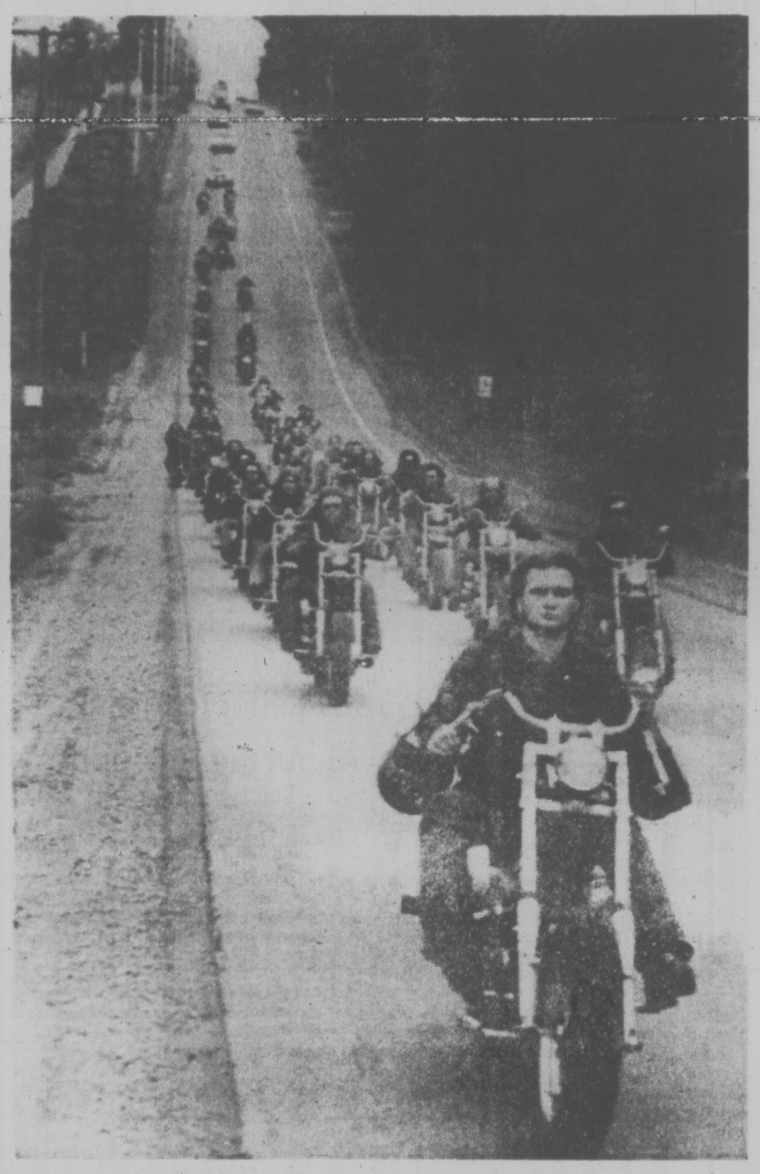
That's why she plans to be in Vernon at a public meeting Tuesday called to discuss elimination of Eurasian milfoil weed strangling the lake.

Moon, who says there is more than one Ogopogo, says she is a world authority on the elusive creatures because she's done more research than anyone else while writing her recently-published book, Ogopogo.

She says that after interviewing more than 300 eye-witnesses, searching private and public files and documents, she is convinced the strange creatures do exist.

The provincial government has announced proposals to use the herbicide 2,4-D in the lakes together with mechanical means of removing the weeds.

"These creatures may be unique in natural history," Moon said. "To kill them with chemicals may bring them to the surface, and then we'll know what they are — but in the worst way."



FUNERAL PROCESSION featuring huge fleet of bikers and the remains of Ray Anderson, 28, former member of the feared Satan's Angel Club, heads from Burnaby, where funeral was held, to Albion in the Fraser Valley for burial. Tears flowed freely at the service for the biker who died April 30 after a collision with a truck.

Debts 'Cripple' B.C. Railway

VANCOUVER (CP) — A royal commission into the B.C. Railway was told Friday by its counsel that the provincial government should absorb the railway's $620 million debt to relieve the Crown corporation of crippling interest payments.

Commision counsel Martin Taylor also contended that annual provincial government grants covering subsidized parts of the railway's operation would put the railway on more solid financial ground.

Mac Norris, vice-president of B.C. Rail, said the railway can not be run effectively when its directors, as non-elected officials must go to cabinet for authority to provide rail freight services at rates subsidizing industry in the B.C. Interior.

Taylor said the railway needs relief from its massive burden of debts in the same way that the federal government absorbed debts of the Canadian National Railway.

B.C. Rail should have the assurance of specific annual grants instead of irregular funding at the discretion of the administration, he said.

Evidence already before the commission is that the railway's projected 1977 deficit comprises $.2 million in operating losses and $48.5 million in debt interest.

Commission chairman Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie compared the railway's subsidized operation to that of the B.C. Power Commission's rural electrification program in the 1940s and recalled that B.C. Electric and later B.C. Hydro "began to be run as commercial enterprises."

He said it is hard to generate a realistic hope that the railway will in the foreseeable future ever make money.

Gordon Ritchie, Norris' administrative assistant, said previous B.C. Rail directors have shied away from dealing with the problem of the railway's decentralized Vancouver-area operation.

Plans for a centralized centre on a 10-acre site in North Vancouver never got off the drawing board because former premier W. A. C. Bennett wanted the railway to take offices in a new government building proposed for downtown Vancouver, he said.

Commission hearings resume here Wednesday.

Clean-Up Set On Peninsula

A spring cleaning of litter from streets, fields and playground will be carried out next week by Saanich school students.

A total of 4,000 litter bags has been provided by the provincial environment minister for the Saanich Peninsula clean-up campaign called "Pitch-in 77."

Ian Cameron, assistant district school superintendent, said after the clean-up he hoped both students and the public will continue to keep the peninsula clean.

POSTAL PROBLEM STILL UNSORTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks aimed at resolving porblems which caused a work stoppage at the city's main post office failed Friday, union leader Peter Whitaker said.

Whitaker, local president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Management will not meet with the union for a week although only one issue was settled Friday.

"They can't meet with us next week because they are going off to talk about day-to-day problems while we have a major quality of work-life problem here," he said, noting a quality of work-life conference in Parksville on Vancouver Island.

About 275 inside workers walked off the job Thursday morning, to protest alleged harassment of union officials, refusal by management to allow bidding for shift times and to resolve coding and mechanical problems. The afternoon shift reported for work.

Post Office spokesman Betty Amos said there was "not much to say about the talks" Friday.. She said the two groups exchanged proposals and agreed to study them until next week.

Ethics Probed In MEL Case

VANCOUVER (CP) A formal inquiry into a possible breach of professional ethics arising from the Mel Paving-British Columbia Railway court case will be held by the Association of Professional Engineers of British Columbia, Dan Lambert, the association's managing director ,said Friday.

He said the decision to hold a private formal inquiry was made after the association's council received a report of an investigating committee's preliminary inquiry.

He would not say how many members of the association were under inquiry.

The association began its probe in February as a result of concern about remarks made in court testimony regarding engineering matters.

In the Mel-B.C. rail case, Mel accused the government-owned railway of civil fraud in connection with a contract won by Mel on the railway's Dease Lake extension. The railway settled out of court with a $2.5 million payment to Mel.

Lambert said the association's 17-member council is expected to hold the formal inquiry in either June or July.

T. Arthur McLaren, of Vancouver, president of the association, will be chairman, Lambert said.

Any violations of the association's code of ethics can result in a member's suspension, censure or expulsion. The latter would effectively bar a member from practice.

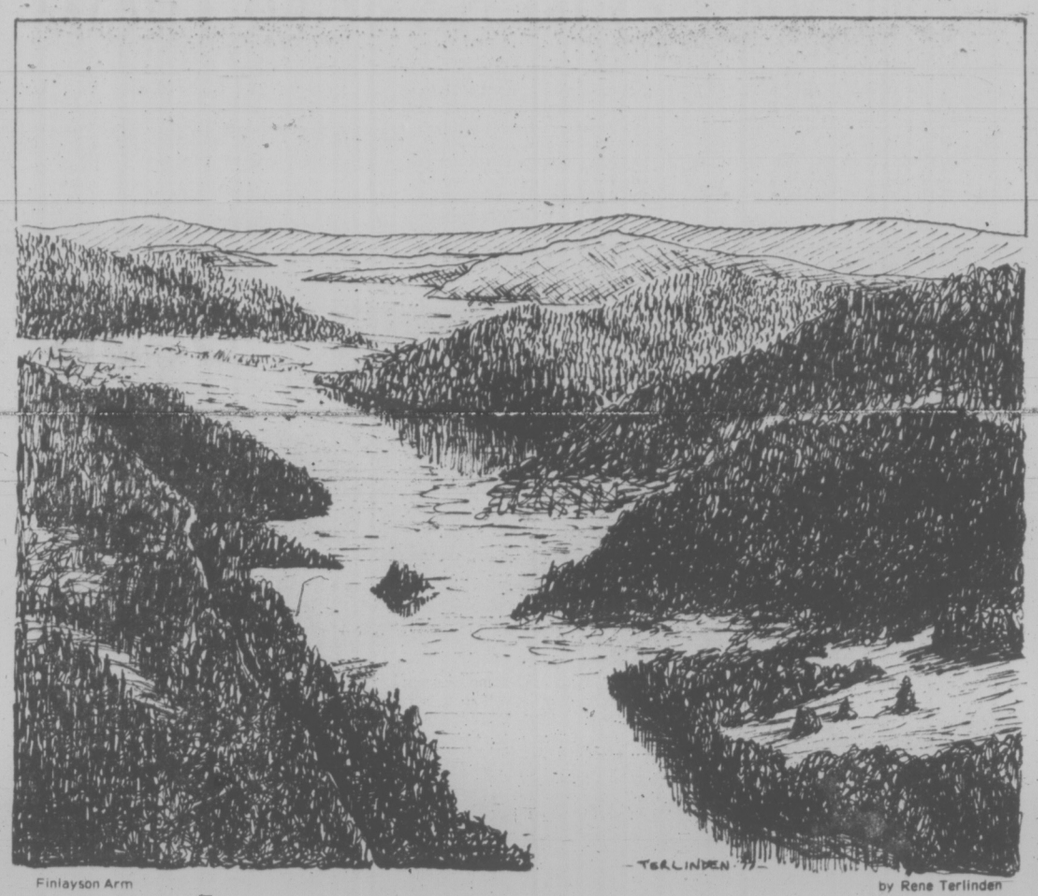
A Minor Farce

The petulant action of 500 licensed ferry officers who forced a brief shutdown of the British Columbia ferry system Thursday deserves condemnation. To hear the officers tell it, they are victims of "jackboot justice", innocents maligned by a powerful government and its handmaiden, the Labor Relations Board. No jackboots are worn here, just plain ordinary shoes neatly applied to a group without legal or moral sanction. Warned that they would be forced back to work one way or another, the officers spitefully shut the system down anyway, indicating nothing except their own pettiness.

In effect, the officers hoped to squeeze a few more concessions from last summer's Ladner report which recommended changes in manning and work schedules, among other things. But 1,700 unlicensed ferry workers signed a master agreement last summer based on negotiated recommendations contained in the report. Then the provincial government set up the B.C. Ferries Corporation which had the effect of removing employees from under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Labor Relations Act and placing them under the umbrella of the provincial labor code. Now the Labor Relations Board has ruled that both unlicensed and licensed workers must form one bargaining unit.

The Ferry corporation's board of directors has quite properly refused to bargain with segments of the ferry workers until they saw how the LRB ruled on the bargaining unit question. At the same time the licensed officers have been working without a contract since July 1, 1975. Clearly, the ferry system's labor management relations have mouldered as the new administration effected fundamental changes in the dogwood fleet's organization. But this does not give a minority of employees the right to shutdown an essential service which is the lifeblood of this island. It was a childish action that points out the need for some new attitudes among the ferry fleet's management and unions. If they can't sort out their chronic problems the politicians will be forced to step in and get tough.

Licensed ferry workers have grievances, however, and a spiteful strike was not the way to bring them to public attention. The Railway and Ferry Bargaining Assistance Act provided a method to solve disputes without disruption of service through the exploration and negotiation of grievances. Licensed ferry workers tried to upstage the rational script and played out a minor farce. It deserves no applause from a jaded audience.



Finlayson Arm — by Rene Terlinden

Mental Branch Plant

Among the grim predictions facing Canadians today is the spectre of massive social unrest created by a glut of university and community college educated students. Statistics Canada says young people leaving post secondary schools will face poor employment prospects until about 1990. It appears that the nations social goals are not synchronized with economic realities. In the past a university degree was considered a passport to a middle class life of good pay and respectability. Today an arts or science degree is a visa to the Manpower office line up.

Faced with an uncertain economy and expensive education bills, difficult decisions must be made on the billions of dollars poured into our universities and community colleges each decade. Last year the European Organization for Economic and Cultural Development noted an appalling lack of long term planning and research in Canadian higher education. In a sense, this is a built in fault of the Canadian system. Under the British North America Act education is a provincial responsibility so we have 10 educational directions across the country. That such a fragmented system has not served us well can be seen in British Columbia where a mounting debate is being carried on about what should be taught in a core curriculum.

In 1977 about 85,000 Canadians will receive bachelor degrees and many of them will head directly to the marketplace where one million jobless are already idle. Increasingly university graduates will be forced to take lower paying jobs, forcing high school graduates out of job competition. The potential for social unrest from this situation is explosive. And what will happen to our universities when teaching and research positions dry up? Canada already lags in research and development because most of the budget for innovation goes to head office, usually in the United States. Brains are a far more important natural resource than oil or gas. A nation that cannot employ its best minds will become a mental as well as a physical branch plant.

Canada faces radical constitutional change if the country is to survive at all. Clearly a national consensus must be established on matters such as the economy, food supply, energy and education. Rather than wait for the usual crisis, provincial ministers of education should be thinking about the issue now. It will be extremely difficult to rethink some of these old established patterns, but many changes will be forced on this country over the next decade. Education seems the proper place to start an overhaul for national survival.

HAROLD GREER

Davis Hits NDP Hordes

TORONTO — If the socialist hordes are to be repelled in this Ontario election, they must first be discovered and the best place to discover them, surely, is in the Toronto riding of St. David.

St. David is an elongated riding dominated, in its central portion, by the residential area known as Rosedale — a redoubt of large, older, very expensive homes compacted on twisting streets and cul-de-sacs designed, and effectively so, to keep the hoi-polloi at bay.

Rosedale, of course, is a national synonym for fat-cat, status-quo toryism, not without reason. Comes the revolution, it is easy to imagine the socialist hordes coursing through the streets of Rosedale, although they'd better have a road map. If one is determined to hear the pounding of the pavement, there is no better place to listen than in Rosedale.

The riding of St. David, moreover, has been represented in the legislature, and no doubt will be again, by Margaret Scrivener, who is currently (she has to be moved frequently) minister of revenue. Mrs. Scrivener is a hen-hawk who has set the cause of women's lib back two generations, but she is a good representative of Rosedale because she sees conspiracies against the conservative way of life everywhere. For Mrs. Scrivener, the socialist hordes are real, and no doubt they are for her Rosedale neighbors.

Industrial Wasteland

So it was natural and discreet (they might have laughed at him somewhere else) that Premier William Davis should hie himself to Mrs. Scrivener's nomination in Rosedale, there to declare in a key-note speech what this election campaign is all about. Naturally, having regard to the fact that the New Democratic Party became the official opposition in the 1975 election, it is all about the socialist hordes who are waiting at the gates.

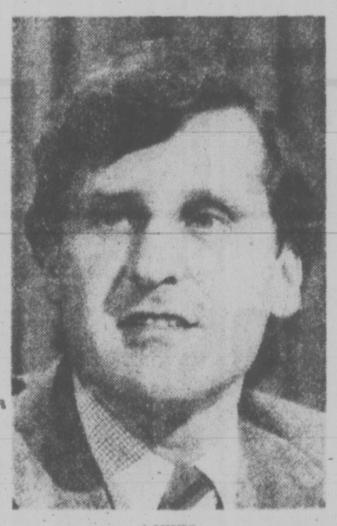
"There is one issue in this campaign against which each party should be assessed," Davis intoned. "What is the best way to ensure that economic security and economic opportunity are part of Ontario's future?"

There are, apparently, two possible ways, the Conservative way and the NDP way. Just what the Conservative way is was a little hard to follow from the premier's discourse but it appears to rely on allowing the economy — the "free economy", of course — to grow. For those who might think this a little vague, Davis had this assurance (at least his text did: somehow Davis couldn't bring himself to say it.

"My government will not rest until there is a job for every able-bodied man and woman in this province who wants to work. But we will not hide out head in the sand and refuse to recognize when there are problems and difficulties which yell for government response and which governments must understand before they can respond."

That being clear, the premier also wanted everyone to understand that his party has said, "clearly and forthrightly", what it is against, namely "not more taxation, not large bureaucracy, not government intervention in every sector of the economy." The implication, of course, was that the NDP was for these things.

"There is no question," Davis affirmed,



LEWIS
. . . Davis target

"that NDP policies could turn Ontario into an industrial wasteland in a very short period of time."

For those who might wonder what in the world he was talking about, the premier offered a clue: "The NDP's approach, seductive in its simplicity but dangerous in its naivete, would have government subsidize industries that are out of date. . . You don't help industries compete by offering to have the government intervene when an industry is failing or falling apart or simply isn't up to par in comparison with its competition."

Subsidies for industry? The NDP? Surely not. Some reporters hurried to Hamilton the next day where NDP leader Stephen Lewis was telling ap ress conference what could be done to alleviate the 9.1 per cent unemployment in that city. Perhaps Lewis might know that the premier was talking about.

Lewis thought he did, because some cabinet ministers had been running around making similar statements. He thought they were based on his speech in the throne debate in the late, aborted legislature. He suggested, with a grin, that the reporters look it up.

It is a long speech, 25 pages in Hansard, two hours in delivery, but nowhere did Lewis propose higher taxation on anyone, corporate or otherwise, as an answer to a healthier economy. Rather he criticized the government's policy of tax rebates to industries to stimulate production on the ground that product is already slack for lack of demand, and he urged instead "fairly major" tax cuts low and middle income groups in order to stiumulate demand.

He also urged the government to restore confidence and save existing jobs by actively taking equity positions in specific situations, and he cited examples.

Keep Coming

One was in the ship-building industry at Collingwood, where lay-offs are mounting and where the company feels it could tender and get more work if it had the money to increase its dry-dock from 750 to 1,000 feet.

Another was in Timmins where there are 4,700 unemployed and where one of the major gold-mining companies has presented the government with a job-creating program that would be feasible, now that he international price of gold is being stabilized at high levels, if the government gave economic support and confidence, not by subsidizing, but by investing.

A third was the United Asbestos plant at Matachewan, where 285 jobs were lost because of financial problems exacerbated by industrial safety costs. The plant has been cleaned up, there is a good international market for asbestos, and operations could resume if the government took an equity position.

When the reporters caught up with Lewis in Hamilton, he was recalling that the government had budgeted $17 million for the Pan-Am games in that city but Hamilton had decided against it. Why not use the money, Lewis was saying, for an east-end hospital which is sorely needed, or for low-income housing, or for cleaning up Hamilton harbor?

That's the trouble with the socialist hordes. They just keep coming at you.

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

A Letter to Erma About the B.C. Job

May 7, 1977

Ms. Erma Morrison,
Deputy Auditor General,
Fredericton, New Brunswick

Dear Erma:

Let me be among those to congratulate you on your nomination as British Columbia's first auditor general. Just to give you an idea of what you're getting into, most provincial newspapers heralded the announcement with headlines like "Woman To Monitor Spending in B.C.", as though they were incredulous that a female could do this kind of work. Had the position gone to a male I suppose the line would have been "Man To Monitor Spending in B.C."

From the above paragraph you will realize how easily sidetracked we all become living on the ragged edge of the rain forest. Life assumes strange rhythms on brooding headlands and most of us march to different drummers.

You will undoubtedly come to understand this phenomenon first hand as the appointed critic of government financial policies. Perhaps it is only proper, though, to acquaint you with a few of the economic phrases peculiar to your new employer.

"There is no free lunch." Government members repeat this sentence all the time, especially in evading questions or when they don't understand the question at all. In the literal sense it's true. At last year's Social Credit convention the party charged the middle aged "youth caucus" $20 apiece for a cold plate in the basement of the Hyatt Regency. Lots of tongue but no heart, as it were.

"There is no money tree in the basement." Another variation on the same old theme. It is simply a Social Credit allegory which means the government will not provide funds. Whenever funds are requested this neat little figure of speech issues forth, as though someone was pulling a string at the back of the head.

And a word of warning here. Never, never use the word "deficit" within earshot of any government members. It has the same effect as putting salt on a slug. They (government members, that is) start writhing about as though some invisible force, some demon seed, is tearing at their very souls.

It's as painful to watch as a single welfare person existing on $175 per month. Please keep in mind that this bunch thinks a Lorenz curve refers to an Italian girl's figure. Economics has the consistency of yogurt in B.C.

If a spoonful of local semantics fairly drips, wait until you see the figures themselves. Which reminds me! Watch out for a chap named Dr. Pat McGeer. This guy is to finances as Rasputin was to religion. Like a kid with a paddle ball, McGeer whacks out a cheque for $181 million to the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia because it is allegedly broke. Twenty-four hours later the government borrows it back with a straight face.

I could go on and on. The minister of highways announced a $120 million road building program that would create 1,500 new jobs. It turned out only $40 million was to be spent in the first year and not a single new job would be created. Another minister built three new ferries, sold them off and then leased them back. And look at the premier. He can't even tell the difference between departmental requests and departmental estimates.

Hurry up, Erma, there's no time to lose. This bunch is so twisted they even underspent the welfare budget by $100 million during a period of record unemployment. A fellow called Bill Vander Zalm, whose mouth has too much torque for his brain, will explain the details.

Boy oh boy, though, you should see what happens when something loses money. The cabinet gets hysterical and falls all over itself to be rid of the thing, like it had mould or something. A $10 million food processing plant was sold off on a promise of $1.5 million three years from now.

I mean it takes a lot of guts to absorb an $8.5 million loss just to save the taxpayers' money. These guys are real financial geniuses eh? One day the provincial economy will be listed on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, just like any other penny stock.

A bright spot though. There is very little waste here. Remember that fellow Vander Zalm I mentioned earlier? He even measured the frequency of bowel movements among elderly patients at one hospital and found they were more regular with cereal as opposed to laxatives. You know what that meant? Goodbye laxatives and hello cereals on the government pharmacare program. The saving was probably considerable.

Well, I'm not going to bore you with any more of our strong points. You're sure to be a good influence on our boys. If they tend to get a little irrational about financial matters, just cuff them with a heavy ledger or mention John Kenneth Galbraith's name. Either option brings them down to earth for a short time, anyway.

And one more thing, Erma. If ever you want a free lunch come on down to the Times, and I'll splurge for a hot corned beef on rye in the cafeteria.

Best Regards From B.C.
—G.R.O.

Welfare Viewpoint

It is not my wish to get involved in a debate about the merits of the present minister of Human Resources against those of his predecessors. However, Audrey J. Fawcett's lack of understanding of the problem of welfare forces me to write.

Like Maxine Charlesworth she is a throwback to the Lady Bountiful of Elizabethan times. Desperately anxious to help, but failing to understand the real problem. Anxious to dole out largesse to salve her conscience, to make her apper as a benevolent "nice" lady helping the poor unfortunates in our society.

She asks could I live with dignity on $160 a month? Enough to say that when I worked in the Gastown area before it was popular. (That is before Bruce Ericson started using the residents of that area for his own political gain.) I've lived on much less, not with comfort but certainly dignity.

She states that the Victoria Community Action Group is now dead because it is no longer being funded. Why doesn't she volunteer to help this worthy group? When the organization started with Sue Talbot and other concerned citizens they did a fantastic job — without provincial help. I think everyone would agree that watching Sharon MacBain on TV is enough to review the whole program.

Could you name anyone who is willing to pay a person such as MacBain to criticize them with cheap shots?

Having worked in Social Welfare under Dan Campbell, Wesley Black, Phil Gaglardi, Swamper Levi and the present Minister, I would suggest that Bill Vander Zalm will bring recipients the dignity they have never experienced before.

If shovelling money out of the back of the truck was taking the job seriously then the Swamper was an unqualified success. If the criteria was meeting needs then Levi was a complete failure. Interestingly enough living on $160 a month during his reign was easier. It would be interesting to enquire of Canadian Immigration as to how many illegal immigrants receiving social assistance have been returned to their own country. We know that the incidence of young people from the U.S.A. coming to B.C. for social assistance has dropped off. No more communes with 20 kids each receiving $160 a month and living in luxury. No more clients receiving 8-10 allowances per month on the "bicycle route."

We now are back to respectability; where previously the bad apples, encouraged by the Swamper, hurt the majority of decent people who receive assistance of some sort.

Why don't you volunteer to help instead of criticizing from the side lines. Get into the game, exercise your influence on the teaching fraternity — get involved at the front line level.

But, please don't criticize Bill Vander Zalm because he' is a businessman. It is time we had accountability in the public sector. — Robert Parsons, Quadra Street.

Some Justice

Journalists are to be congratulated on their contrived out of thin air schmozzle in Youbou last week. Some of the citizens of Youbou were so stimulated by a television story of impending doom in the form of motorcycle bandits (gasp!) that they broke into a private house, a crime in itself, and shot somebody in the foot; all with the noblest of motives no doubt.

To add insult to injury, the police there didn't bother to charge the handy person with the shotgun because "some of the motorcycle gang had knives." Should this be considered a licence for anyone with a gun to shoot anyone with a knife? How about a penknife or a pointed stick? Or perhaps it's O.K. only if you get him below the knee.

So much for justice and due process of law. That and 40 cents will get you a cup of coffee. — Joanne Oake, 3-1029 Tolmie Street.

Union Needed

May I respectfully correct an unintentional mistake in your April editorial Symbols and Tolerance.

I have on file as in the Victoria Press Colonist magazine section, page 15, date February 13, 1966, a history article by Professor Conrad M.J.F. Swan PhD, M.A. He states "this may also be a convenient point at which to clear up a widely held misconception about the union badge. The union is sometimes called the Union Jack when flown in banner or flag form and it is the military fighting badge of the sovereign. It is not the national flag for the United Kingdom which curiously enough has none. There is a national or patronal flag for Englishmen, the St. George. The Scots have St. Andrews flag and so on. There is, however, no official national flag for the United Kingdom, the union being a royal military badge." As a codicil may I state that Professor Swan was born at Duncan, V.I.

Also, with both surprise and pleasure I read in David MacDonald's article "The Superiority of our Canadian Press Management over that of London". It is not often we get a tribute from there.

I have read and heard in the past of visitors from here looking for weeks, and no news item from Canada at all!

Ah well, I guess we are under some mystical one way fawning indebtedness.—Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Rd.

A Relaxed China Battles Discontent

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

She is an old, half-destitute Chinese who scrapes a living by sweeping streets in Canton, and she is heavily dependent on a regular remittance of $15 from relatives in Singapore. "When the money arrived this month," she wrote, "I rushed out to buy a bunch of chrysanthemums to celebrate the downfall of the Gang of Four."

The use of a Communist pretext to justify a frivolous bourgeois extravagance fits the mood of the moment in China, where the overthrow by the moderate leadership of the militant Shanghai radicals around Madame Mao has encouraged cautious exercises in relaxation after the political cramps of the past.

Last month the Greek-owned liner Danae became the first cruise-ship from the West to be allowed to dock in China since 1949, and the Communist paper Ta Kung Pao in Hong Kong made a bid to attract tourists to the People's Republic with a spread which included maps of Chinese airline routes, the attractions of Canton, a list of hotels in other cities, detailed information on customs regulations and where and how to apply for visas.

Western classical music is no longer dismissed in China as "capitalist art", criminally short on class content and only fit for the "slave mentality" of the ideologically backward. Not only have the Chinese lavished praise on a visiting Canadian brass quintet which played Bach, but a recent Saturday night concert in Peking given by the Central Philharmonic Orchestra, and therefore otherwise devoted to Chinese music, unexpectedly ended with an enthusiastic if somewhat rusty rendering of Beethoven's "bourgeois" Fifth Symphony in C Minor, Opus 67.

For the first time in 20 years a "Hundred Flowers are blooming" again in the world of Chinese art and letters. Films branded as "revisionist" if not downright counter-revolutionary, which have been sitting on the back shelves since before the left-wing Cultural Revolution of the 1960s, are now being shown in cinemas and on television. Artists who fell from grace during those grim years are now emerging downstage again, blinking in the unaccustomed limelight, while poets are reciting poems and painters painting pictures that would have damned them as ideological deviants disdainful of "socialist realism" only a year ago.

Breaking away from the endless columns of "long and smelly cliches" that graced the dogmatic, polemical style imposed on journalism by the radical "Gang of Four", the Peking People's Daily has meanwhile begun to publish livelier articles and factual reports, more letters to the editor and whole pages of cartoons. But if cold claptrap is slowly giving way to human speech, human transgression is also being revealed in plainer language. For with the main struggle over, the victor has inherited the problems peculiar to the outbreak of peace.

Chairman Hua Kuo-feng has given visitors assurances that all is firmly under control in China and "where there has been disorder, things are being restored." Provincial broadcasts reveal that the army has been taking over vital rail communications to stop anti-government violence and "frenzied sabotage activities of the class enemy" that include looting, murder, arson and the provoking of accidents and stoppages. Throughout much of the country there is evidently an undertow of unrest beneath the wave of relief that has swept over the millions with the eclipse of Madame Mao and her sectarian left-wing clique who met all pleas for more material rewards and security with louder demands for more Maoist revolution and self-sacrifice.

Three major threads run through the untidy pattern of discontent — the resentment of "rusticated youth"; the despair of those compromised as followers of the "Gang of Four"; and the disappointment of their opponents, who thought that once Madame Mao was eliminated, the good life would at once begin.

More than 12 million young people were sent down to the countryside to work with the peasants and learn about life from them while Mao was alive, and the reluctant among them have filtered back to live a furtive life of illegal residence in the cities. "When we graduate from university", one young man wrote recently from Shanghai in an appeal to President Carter, "we are sent to poor villages . . . We cannot use what we have learned. Our future is bleak."

Bound prisoners put on public display on street in Wuhan

"Our whole lives will be spent in farms in faraway border regions which in effect are labor reform camps. Our monthly wages are 10 renminbi ($5.30)."

The letter, published in the Far Eastern Economic Rview, claimed that there were "tens of thousands of prisons and labor reform camps" in China, in which a man might quickly find himself "locked up for many years" if he "made one wrong statement" in one of the interminable political study sessions all must undergo.

Much of the disorder and occasional violence in the provinces stems from the fear of former radicals that this is the fate that awaits them if they meekly submit. They are all collaborateurs, the Quislings of China, and Madame Mao — like Hitler — has lost. In their heyday they were recruited by the left-wing extremists, promoted and favored, and in return they betrayed and bullied their comrades in factory or farm in the interests of the class war.

Only a "small handful" of incorrigibles among them may be purged and sent to prison camp, but the accusatory fingers of their victims will now be pointing at countless others, who may be harshly denounced, dragged before their fellows and publicly humiliated, jostled out of queues, stripped of their privileges, cheated of rations and social services, bawled at and even beaten up by the more malicious, as scapegoats if not actual sinners.

The old scores to be settled date back to the Cultural Revolution, when mobs of teenage Red Guards urged on by Mao and the radicals persecuted and flung out of office the older, established cadres of the Party. And it is above all the younger cadres who this time have their backs to the wall as the millions respond to Chairman Hua's call "to expose and criticize the Gang of Four" and "to purify the ranks of the Party."

Meanwhile, the rising expectations of the moderates, who saw the emphasis their new pragmatic leaders put on production rather than politics as an omen of get-rich-quick prosperity, have been deflated by unexpected setbacks — the terrible Tangshan earthquake last year and the calamitous drought now threatening the crops — which have aggravated the damage already done to the national economy. Wall posters have already gone up in Shanghai appealing for more rice and cooking oil because "the masses are eating bitterness."

It is in these discouraging circumstances that Chairman Hua faces the central problem that lies, perhaps more than any other, behind the distrustful relationship between man and man in China — the need to close the generation gap. Taxing enough in itself, it is aggravated by a history of mutual political hatreds, and it arises at a time when the chrysanthemums of life — in terms of material gain, political advantage, and personal survival — are in demand by the bunch on all sides.

A New Lease For Inflation

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

The Canadian Press has been conducting a monthly survey of food prices in 12 cities for the past four years. Prices this April, it reports, were the highest since the survey began — up 2.1 per cent in the four weeks ending April 15. Shoppers had to pay more for dairy products, eggs, coffee, sugar and some fresh produce. These figures support those of the Anti-Inflation Board, which also found that food prices had increased 2.1 per cent in the four weeks preceding April 15.

The figures play hob with the anti-inflation program's success. Food prices as far as the farm gate have not been controlled by the AIB. Yet over the whole of last year, according to Statistics Canada, they actually dropped by seven-tenths of 1 per cent. They were, in fact, largely responsible for the decline in the rate of inflation. Now, still uncontrolled, they are rising, and the rise is expected to continue. And food accounts for from 25 to 27 per cent of consumer spending.

The over-all rate of inflation, in fact, appears to have passed its lowest point for the present. During the first quarter of this year the all-items consumer price index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 9.2 per cent, compared with the fourth quarter of 1976 and compared, also, with an inflation rate of 7.5 per cent for the whole of 1976.

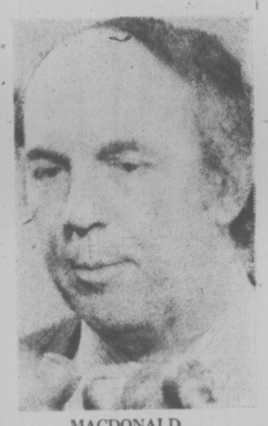
Inflation, in other words, is not being subdued. It has taken on a new lease of life. Finance Minister Donald Macdonald had set a target of a 6 per cent inflation rate by October. He admits he isn't going to make it. He sees the rising prices of food and energy, plus the cheaper Canadian dollar which pushes up the price of imports, as all fueling inflation.

Even his 6 per cent goal would not have been a triumph over inflation. People whose money is losing 6 per cent of its purchasing power in a year cannot be convinced that inflation is licked. This is particularly true when they look abroad, especially to their biggest trading partner, the United States, and see that the U.S. rate of inflation, which had also reached a low at the end of 1976, has since been steadily rising.

The new chairman of the AIB, Harold Renouf, does not delude himself that the AIB program has been an unqualified success. Canadians, he says, still entertain more expensive expectations than their economy has the ability to fulfil.

This is all bad news. When it is coupled with the fact that the past few months have seen little advance in the development of a program of restraint to follow decontrol, it is very bad news.

"There are some people," says Joseph Morris, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, "who expect us to wipe out two centuries of conflict between labor and business overnight. But we are dealing with serious problems and we have to take our time." All very true. But the situation — a situation which requires beating inflation in order that unemployment may be beaten — will allow only so much time, if those now living are to benefit.



MACDONALD
. . . target missed

Labor wants controls lifted now. Most big business wants controls lifted now. Small business wants controls retained. The public, which is rightly scared, would rather hang onto controls. Government sources hint that an end to controls might be implemented if labor and business leaders agreed to preach "reasonableness", co-operate in a post-control monitoring agency and participate in a permanent consultative forum.

If Canada is going to have to depend on preaching alone, it will wait a long time to see inflation wrestled to the ground.

Whatever It Is, It's Not Gun Control

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Some day, someone will be able to write a history of gun control legislation in Canada. But not today, because all we have is a history of excuses for gun control, a history of shockingly avoidable shootings and killings and, in more recent memory, a history of a federal government acknowledging need at one moment and knuckling under to political pressure the next.

Ottawa's last brave new whirl at imposing tough restrictions on the ownership and use of firearms was the ill-fated Bill C-83 which, wounded if not crippled by amendment after amendment, struggled through first and second readings before dying without dignity on the order paper late last year.

Now Justice Minister Ronald Basford is back with a new and even more nebulous incarnation of the old bill. Even he doesn't seem entirely happy with it. "If people want better laws relative to guns, they had damn well better speak up right now and be heard," he said. "I want to get this through as quickly as possible."

Well, a great many people would like to get something through as quickly as possible. But this new bill is littered with weaknesses. It would not require that all firearms be registered; it would not require that all gun owners and users be licenced; unlike Bill C-83, it would not require that prospective owners of guns first submit statements from two guarantors who have known them for at least two years.

The legislation would not outlaw automatic weapons; it would not put a freeze on gun collections; it would not make proper training in the use of firearms a requirement for ownership; it would not require special permits for handguns; it would have little impact on the 10.2 million rifles and shotguns currently in the hands of Canadians and no impact at all until after their misuse.

BASFORD
. . . huffing and puffing

Instead, the legislation would require gun buyers and borrowers to get something called a firearms acquisition certificate before being united with their weapons. At least that much is sensible; it would enable police to check records for signs of violent crime or mental instability. It would provide a cooling-off period for those who might otherwise kill themselves and others in anger. But there are still problems.

Children 16 and under would not need a permit so long as they were using guns under the supervision of their parents, and they would be able to get a permit to use a long gun so long as they had parental consent. Just as if they were going to the movies.

Mr. Basford maintains that his legislation has not been influenced by pressure from gun clubs. Gun clubs in Canada, he says, are not interested in laws allowing "unsound, irresponsible people" to use guns. But children under 16? Owning guns? Mr. Basford huffs and puffs.

The new legislation would impose penalties for the careless storage of firearms — but it does not specify what careful storage should involve. The only time that anyone could be accused of having been careless would be after something had gone wrong and, in all likelihood, after someone had been left wounded or dying.

There are good things in the bill. People with criminal records involving guns, violence or threats of violence would be barred from owning guns. So would those with a history of violence.

But this does not go far enough. People convicted of what are called "lesser firearm offences" could still in many cases purchase guns. They should not be allowed to.

The danger of this legislation is that, once enshrined, it could lull people into complacency, into the feeling that the gun business has been taken care of. But it won't have been; not nearly. Mr. Basford referred to his legislation as "laws relative to guns". It may be that. But is isn't gun control.

Window Bashers Defending Territory

Two items from the telephone pad.

Item one: The case of the window-bashing junco.

A Metchosin reader phoned recently to inquire about the strange behavior of a junco around his home. It seems that over the previous couple of weeks the bird, with notable dedication, had been throwing itself against a window near the feeder.

As the events were described to me, these "attacks" were not the better-known, and often lethal, head-long flights of birds confused by the reflections in the glass, but carefully premeditated affairs in which the junco actually seemed to be "attacking" the glass.

The question was: What's up with the junco?

Fortunately, this strange behavior has plenty of precedent and can be easily explained. I've seen Robins and Downy Woodpeckers doing it and had a couple of other kinds of birds reported to me as doing it. And the explanation of the whole affair can be summed up in one word — territory.

All the birds described, the junco included, were nesting birds, birds on their territory — that little plot of woods, grassland, shoreline or what have you — that a pair of birds establishes and on which they build their nest and raise their young, and from which they usually gain all the sustenance required to successfully complete the job. More important, birds are very jealous of these territories, particularly to others of their own species. Such intruders are summarily evicted.

What that Metchosin junco was up to was simply evicting — or trying to evict — a particularly persistent intruder that kept appearing at its territory near the feeder. But in this case the intruder was his own reflection in the glass, a reflection he did not recognize for what it was.

Give the bird a couple more weeks and the whole performance will end as he loses interest in his reflection and turns to the more immediate problem of helping to feed his hungry family.

So much for Item one; on to Item two. My Robin is back! Or is it?

Almost as predictable as those seasonal reports of birds throwing themselves against windows for no apparent reason are other reports that go something like this: My Robin is back; I saw him today for the first time this year — on the same day I first saw him last year. He was in the apple tree, just where I saw him for the first time last year, and the year before.

And, as an afterthought, the question, "Is it really the same Robin?" follows, almost apologetically.

You can change the kind of bird, and the kind of tree, but the essence of the story remains the same; some people see birds with almost mysterious precision at the same time and in the same place year after year, and while they're sure it's the same bird, they can't help wondering at these strange coincidences.

Well, while migrant birds are astonishingly precise in their goings and comings — particularly their comings — it is almost too much to expect the same bird to arrive in the same tree, at the same time, year after year.

On the other hand, people with good memories — or those who keep diaries — are often creatures of habit, and they often find themselves in the same place, at the same time year after year — often looking for that bird they saw there in previous years. And, of course, the birds oblige, what better place for a Robin to be in May than in a blooming apple tree?

But let's not discount the possibility that it is the same Robin, or Cedar Waxwing, or Yellow Warbler.

Years ago, when I was banding birds in Winnipeg, I caught and banded a Clay-colored Sparrow — on May 6. It was my first Clay-colored Sparrow of that year. For the next four years, with clockwork precision, that same banded sparrow appeared in the same trap (the trap was never moved through all those years), on the same date. In the five years that I knew the bird, it completed five trips to the southern U.S. or northern Mexico — something like 3,000 to 4,000 miles a year — always returning to the same place at the same time, each year.

So, that Robin in your apple tree could be the same as the one you saw there last year — and the year before, and the year before that. But don't stretch it too far; five years is a long time in any bird's life.

The Garden Guarders

A fantastic foursome that will win your war against sneaky bugs and filthy weeds!

Weedrite®
This efficient weedkiller works on contact with the green parts of the weeds. Use it around flowers, vegetables and shrubs, along fences and driveways, around patios.

Dutox®
Double-action Dutox gives long-lasting control of mites, aphids and chewing insects on flowers, shrubs and trees. It kills on contact and is also absorbed into the leaves to move through the sap stream and kill sucking and chewing insects.

Lawn Weedkiller K
A KILLEX® liquid formulation that controls dandelions, plantains, chickweed, clover, ragweed and other pesky lawn invaders. Two tablespoons in a gallon of water sprays 250 sq. ft. of lawn.
Registered Trade Mark Ciba-Geigy Canada Ltd.

Rapid Aphid Killer
"Rapid" kills aphids on contact and by fumigation and penetration of the leaves. Effective within 30 minutes of application — protects roses, mums, marigolds and ornamentals.

RELIABILITY IN DOUBT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver Board of Trade group just back from a trip to the Far East found that interest by Japanese, Koreans and others in doing business with British Columbia companies is tempered by doubts about the province's reliability as a source of raw materials.

David Fraser, board of trade president, said the Japanese in particular are worried that work stoppages here will make continuity of supply difficult.

"They also told us bluntly that their investments will go to the countries or areas where the prospects of profit are best," he said.

New System

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Electrohome Ltd. has sold a $50,000 filtration oil recovery system to TRW Canada Ltd. of St. Catharines, a major automotive parts manufacturer. It is the second system Electrohome has sold in recent weeks.

Apathy Rapped by Chairman

D. Armstrong, chairman and chief executive officer of Rio Algom Ltd., delivered a strong attack on governments but also said public apathy allows them to avoid accounting for their actions.

"Canadians nowadays are more literate, more affluent, better informed, more sophisticated than ever before," Armstrong said in a speech to the annual meeting of shareholders.

"Thus their apathy in the face of the erosion of their fragile assets is most surprising and this is, in part, why politicians and bureaucrats have been able to avoid accountability for their actions."

He said Canadians must tell elected representatives they will no longer tolerate mismanagement of funds—"and that we do not want a managed economy controlled by the whims of bureaucrats operating independently of their political masters."

Governments must be made to operate with the same rules and guidelines as business, he said, with full disclosure of "all the financial consequences of government policies."

Armstrong said Rio Algom, which last year earned $31.6 million compared with $30 million in 1975, faces 1977 "on a sound financial basis."

George R. Albino, president, told the meeting the company has enough cash flow to finance a $160-million capital spending program this year without borrowing.

Most of the new spending will be for expansion of the Quirke mine and mill and to reactivate the Panel mine and mill, both in Elliot Lake, Ont. In 1976, Rio Algom spent $61 million on various projects, including a new $24-million steel melt shop which went into operation at Welland, Ont.

The company's uranium mining operations are at Elliot Lake and Moab, Utah. It also operates copper and metallurgical coal mines in British Columbia.

Its major steel subsidiary, Atlas Steels and Atlas Alloys, reported before-tax earnings of $5.7 million, a sharp decline from the $16.3 million earned in 1975.

Armstrong said the emergence of a separatist government in Quebec has diverted attention from Canada's economic problems.

He said a "deterioration that has become evident in our economic and social system" was due primarily to "the rapidly expanding role of governments in our affairs, together with major deficiencies in governmental financial control and accountability systems."

Armstrong said no single factor has produced these forces in the Canadian system.

"But our predicament is unquestionably in considerable degree the consequence of . . . government that takes too much upon itself, spends too much, taxes too much and controls too much."

Investors

The Investors Group reports consolidated net operating income, before extraordinary items, for the first three months of 1977 totalled $3,630,000.

That compared with $3,497,000 for the first quarter of 1976.

At its 35th annual meeting, the company said after allowing for preferred dividends, earnings per share were 25 cents compared with 24 cents in 1976. It said there were no extraordinary items in 1977 while 1976 earnings were reduced to $3,466,000, or 24 cents a share, by extraordinary items.

Gross revenues for the 1977 quarter amounted to $16,940,000 compared with a restated $14,915,000 in 1976.

The Investors Group announced the declaration of dividends of 31.25 cents a share on preferred shares, 1969 series and 12.5 cents a share of common convertible and common class A convertible shares payable in each case on Aug. 1, 1977 to shareholders of record July 12, 1977.

As well, tax-deferred dividends have been declared on the common class B convertible and common class C convertible shares in the amount of 10.625 cents a share, plus 1.875 cents a share if budget resolution No. 27 of the notice of ways and means motion to amend the Income Tax Act (Canada) introduced in the federal budget, becomes law on or prior to Nov. 1, 1978. The dividends on the class B and class C shares will be paid to shareholders of record July 12, 1977 as follows: 10.625 cents a share on Aug. 1, 1977; and 1.875 cents a share within 30 days after the date of the amendment to the Income Tax Act giving effect to budget resolution No. 27 becomes law, but in no event, prior to Aug. 1, 1977, and only if such amendment becomes law on or prior to Nov. 1, 1978.

Wescorp

Wescorp Industries Ltd. reports net earnings of $1,348,915 or $11.09 a share for 1976, compared with $75,997 or 63 cents the previous year. On a fully diluted basis, share earnings were $7.41 compared with 49 cents in 1975.

The company said results for 1976 include Wescorp's equity in losses of subsidiaries, which reduced earnings by $4,816. In 1975 those losses reduced earnings by $310,531.

Revenue increased by 52 per cent to $21.5 million from $14.1 million, Wescorp's revenue and earnings are derived from its subsidiaries: Pafco Insurance Co. Ltd., Toronto; Western Pottery Co. Inc., Los Angeles; Mariner Homes Ltd., Penticton; Japanese Village Restaurants Ltd., with restaurants in Edmonton, Calgary and Ottawa; and Wescorp Properties Ltd., Vancouver.

The annual report said that during 1976 Wescorp disposed of its 50-per-cent interest in Bramalea Wescorp Developments Ltd., a revenue property joint venture, and a wholly-owned subsidiary, Teneo Electronics Ltd., resulting in an extraordinary gain of $431,268 or $3.55 a share.

Hy's

Hy's of Canada Ltd. reports unaudited net earnings for the three months ended Dec. 31, 1976 were $89,000 or 11 cents a share compared with $115,000 or 13 cents a share for the corresponding period in 1975.

Revenue rose to $4,622,000 from $3,812,000 in the 1975 period.

Hy's operates restaurants in Canada and the United States.

Great West

The Great-West Life Assurance Company has reported net income of $4,032,000 for the first three months of 1977.

A meeting of the company's board of directors was told net income attributable to shareholders was $2,353,000 with the remainder from participating policyholders.

The directors approved the payment of a quarterly dividend of 81 cents a share on June 1, 1977 to shareholders of record at the close of business on May 16.

The company reported sales of life insurance coverage and annuities declined 10 per cent during the first three months of the year to $986,931,000. Health insurance in force in terms of gross annual premiums totalled $258,424,000 at March 31, 1977, an increase of nine per cent during the quarter.

Acupuncture Acquittal Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — County Court Judge John Spencer reserved decision Friday on whether to allow an appeal by the attorney-general of the acquittal of an acupuncturist on a charge on unlawfully practising medicine.

Grant Smith, of North Vancouver, was acquitted in provincial court in November, 1976.

Robert Plommer, representing the attorney-general, said the appeal was necessary because the acquittal left it wide open for anyone to practice anything.

Plommer, who was prosecuting counsel for the British Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons in the earlier trial, said guidelines are necessary or "anyone who sought to treat people under any new or freak or novel name could just do as he liked."

Richard Gibbons, lawyer for Smith, said that section 71 of the Medical Act, which Smith was charged with violating, is not specific regarding either the advertising or the practice of acupuncture.

He also claimed that acupuncture is a craft not usually considered part of the practice of medicine, and that therefore his client was not guilty as charged of unlawfully practicing medicine between March 20 and April 4, 1976, while not being a person registered under the Medical Act.

Evidence was presented that Smith had advertised himself as a qualified acupuncturist last April and claimed that he cound relieve various human and animal ailments with acupuncture.

Ottawa Failing Fishermen Barred by U.S.: UFAWU

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government is failing to protect local fishermen during the transition to a 200-mile fishing zone off the United States and Canada coasts, George Hewison, secretary-treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said Friday.

Hewison said, following a meeting in Ottawa with Fisheries Minister Romeo Leblanc, that the latest problem is the U.S. action in curtailing and removing Canadian troll fishermen from the Washington coast.

He said this is a complete contradiction of the Canada-U.S. interim reciprocal fisheries agreement, which had agreed to maintain traditional fishing rights in each other's water for at least this year.

Fire Chiefs Lobby

PENTICTON (CP) — The British Columbia Fire Chiefs Association authorized its executive Friday to lobby the Union of B.C. Municipalities and the government to implement the Keenleyside Report on fire services.

The report, prepared by Dr. Hugh Keenleyside of Victoria, was presented to the New Democratic Party government two years ago and then tabled when the Social Credit administration took office.

It called for formulation of a comprehensive fire services act and the formation of a fire commission.

Boy Assumed Dead

SMITHERS (CP) — A search for Arthur Mahood, 2½, last seen playing by the Bulkley River near his home Tuesday, has been called off. RCMP said Thursday no clues had been found, although it was thought the boy drowned in the river.

Extradition Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dale Cambell, 37, has been ordered held for extradition to the United States to face a narcotics charge. The order was made Thursday after a county court hearing was told that the U.S. government had accused Campbell of conspiring to import heroin into the U.S. from Canada in 1973.

Recreation Threat

VERNON (CP) — Municipal recreation programs are threatened by the eroding tax base of local government and increasing dependency on senior government, a recreation expert said Friday.

Dr. Ted Storey, chairman of the department of recreology at the University of Ottawa, told delegates to a recreation conference that conditional grants to municipal governments are undermining planning.

"If municipal governments are on shaky ground, then municipal recreation is on shaky ground" Storey said.

Murder Appeal Won

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men sentenced to life imprisonment last year for murder won an appeal Friday against their convictions.

Robert Ross Johnston, 36, and Marvin Gene Cavanagh, 29, were found guilty by a British Columbia Supreme Court jury May 21, 1976, in the death of Edward Senger, 46, whose body was found wrapped in a carpet on the banks of the Fraser River in April, 1975.

Jailed for Shooting

VERNON (CP) — Virginia June Alkic, 31, of Kelowna, was sentenced Friday to four years' imprisonment for manslaughter in the Nov. 12, 1976 rifle shooting of Gerald Johnson of Kelowna.

Justice D. R. Verchere said in passing sentence that the community was entitled to protection from Alkic's impulsive and violent nature and she would probably benefit from some treatment.

$100M SURPLUS 'OBSCENITY'

KELOWNA (CP) — Norm Levi, former New Democratic Partya human resources minister, said Friday the Social Credit government's bragging about the $100 million surplus in that department is "a classic free enterprise obscenity."

He said he feels it is "scandalous that the present provincial government tries "to save money by not spending it on people."

Levi was here to address the local NDP constituency association Friday night.

He said in an interview the surplus was a "public relations thing by the provincial government so they could say that althought the NDP government over-spent by $100 million, the Socreds could save the same amount."

Levi said there have been some "low-key" discussions about the possibility of turning the British Columbia Railway over to the Canadian National Railway.

He said it must not be allowed because B.C. needs its own railway for development of natural resources.

Infamous 'Giefer Grizzly' Felled by Hunter's Bullet

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) — The famous and equally infamous "Giefer grizzly" that had been ransacking cabins in northern Montana since 1975 is dead — felled by a hunter's bullet in B.C.

Game Warden Louis Kiss of Kalispell said he verified the kill through ear tags sent to him by B.C. officials.

Kiss said the bear was shot April 24 on Wigwam Creek near the B.C.-Alberta boundary, and just north of the Montana border by Ray Koontz, 61, a hunter from McConnellsburg, Pa. Kiss said Koontz was on a guided grizzly hunt when he pumped four bullets into the huge male grizzly from a distance of 150 yards.

Kiss said the bear weighed between 800 and 1,000 pounds and measured nine feet, two inches from paw to paw.

Probably no bear in Montana's recent history created more news or caused more damage than the Giefer.

People around the mountain community of Polebridge on the edge of Glacier National Park, dubbed the bear "Flathead's Public Enemy No. 1.

At one time or another, the Giefer was blamed for breaking into just about every cabin near the community and outsmarted some of the top trappers and hunters in the Flathead area.

The bear's fame began in 1975, when it started rifling cabins near the confluence of Geifer and Silver Tip creeks near Fielding.

It was trapped Aug. 3, 1975, tranquilized, tagged and moved to the edge of the Bob Marshall wilderness area on the south fork of the Flathead River.

By July of last year, the Giefer had returned to its old haunts. One grizzly expert said male bears between 10 and 12 years old often do just that.

FESTIVAL WINDS UP MONDAY

All that is left of the 1977 Victoria Music Festival, probably the most successful and — from a point of view of talent, brilliant — in 27 years is the highlights concert which takes place Monday at 8 p.m. at McPherson Playhouse.

Appearing on the program will be Rose Bowl winner Jane MacKenzie, baritone Edgar Samuels and mezzo-soprano junior champion Susan Pye. St. John's Boys Choir, the flute ensemble that so delighted adjudicator Dr. Robert Cook, and the Arbutus Free Bass Accordion Ensemble are among group numbers.

String players are represented by Michel White and Alan Horgan, violinists, and the violin duo of Maxwell and Emlyn Ngai. Mark Cooper will be the speech artist and other soloists include Barbara Eadie, flute, and Stephen Woodyard, trumpet.

Piano soloists are Susan de Burgh, Bob Tweten, Ingrid Brandstetter and Lori Harreman. Medallion winner Walter Prossnitz will appear with another brilliant Victoria pianist, Allen Reiser in the two-piano performance that inspired Adjudicator Coxe to award them 96 marks.

From the dance section of the festival will come the Curtis sisters — Miriam, Luarel, Kelly and Tracy — in something called Scotch on the Rocks, and a group number called Madeline with Barbara Taaffe as principal.

There are still some tickets available for this event at the McPherson Playhouse box office.

Prossnitz Top Piano Player

By AUDREY JOHNSON

This year's champion among young adult pianists of Victoria is already well known to a wide audience for his many recitals and participation in other musical events.

Walter Prossnitz, consistent winner of several diploma-level classes in the Victoria Music Festival, Friday was awarded the coveted championship trophy — the City of Victoria Medallion.

His performance of Bach's Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue also brought him the City of Victoria Bursary of $125 and the opportunity to represent Victoria in the senior piano category of the Provincial Festival.

Prossnitz also received the senior piano concerto and senior sight reading awards.

The piano championships involved 18 fine young pianists in Friday's program at Newcombe Auditorium. In competition with Prossnitz and receiving awards as runners-up were Dietrich Villbrandt, Judy Au, Arthur la Vertu and Claude McLean. Miranda Wong and Arthur la Vertu were named runners-up in the diploma level concerto class.

Senior championship (Under 16 to under 18) was won by Bob Tweten, another consistent winner over the last two weeks. The 14-year-old pianist will move on to the Provincial Festival in the junior division. He also won the Dulcie Fowler Memorial Bursary of $100 and was one of two receiving special adjudicator's awards. The other was Arthur la Vertu.

Adjudicators Phyllis Schuldt and Nigel Coxe named Susan de Burgh and Theresa Lowe as alternates to the Provincial Festival. Susan also was awarded the Silver Anniversary prize of $150 for open performance concert group.

Runners-up in the senior competition were Anna Lowe, Kyoko Imazu and Patricia Lzik.

The intermediate winner chosen from a class of four finalists, was Ingrid Brandstetter and the runners-up were Daphne Kalfon, Theresa Lowe, Melinda Cownden and Timothy Williams.

Lori Harreman won the junior category (under 8 to under 12). Marlis Neumann, Michelle Himick and Roger Jones were her competitors.

Other award winners were Melinda Cownden for junior concerto; Roger Jones and Marlis Neumann for junior piano ensemble; Allen Reisder and Walter Prossnitz for senior piano ensemble. Malcolm Woodland and Rita Attrot won awards for piano accompaniment.

Guilty Verdict in Case of Stolen Fur Coats

A 25-year-old Colwood man was convicted in Victoria county court Friday of possession of three fur coats knowing them to have been obtained by theft.

Barry Allen MacGregor, 2108 Sooke Road, will be sentenced by Judge E. J. C. Stewart May 27 after a probation report is prepared.

The judge allowed MacGregor to remain on bail pending sentence despite opposition from Crown counsel Peter Birkett.

Stewart said Scuby Furs Ltd., 911 Government, was broken into Aug. 10, 1976, and some furs were removed including those in this case, a Finn Jag mink stroller, a blue fox coat and a mink stole.

Police searched MacGregor's home Sept. 4, 1976, and three Scuby furs were found in a bedroom.

Stewart said all three furs bore no labels although they were obviously new and certain numbers on the pelts appeared obliterated. He said the furs were worth between $2,000 and $4,000.

He said it was reasonable to infer that MacGregor knew the furs were acquired by theft unless he cound provide a satisfactory explanation or if his explanation could reasonably be true.

But Stewart said he didn't believe MacGregor's story that the furs were part of a business deal made in Vancouver adding that it "has all the characteristics of a concocted story."

He also said MacGregor, involved in the pawnbroking business and used goods generally, was a "glib and fast talker" and "evasive and lacking in frankness."

He concluded: "There is no doubt in my mind he must have known they were stolen."

Defence Says Recorder Unauthorized

The letter "T" threw a curve into a Victoria County Court perjury trial Friday.

Defence counsel Bruce McConnan told Judge Leslie Cashman there was a reasonable doubt as to whether there was a record of a provincial court trial within the meaning of regulations governing use of recording equipment.

McConnan is representing Peter Allan Marsh, 24, accused of two counts of perjury in connection with testimony he gave at his trial May 5, 1976, in provincial court on a charge of dangerous driving. The charge was dismissed.

Sharie Stemler, a provincial court recorder, told the perjury trial she typed a transcript of Marsh's testimony from soundscriber equipment.

She said the equipment used in provincial court is labelled S 116 CT and she used, in her office, model number S 116 C.

The Criminal Code allows use of recording equipment where it is authorized by provincial legislation and under the requirements of provincial legislation.

But, McConnan told Cashman, there was nothing in B.C. regulations covering the S 116 CT machine.

"Apparently it's not an authorized machine," he said.

Crown counsel Robert Johnston said the only defect which could be alleged was that the sound machine used in provincial court had an extra alphabetical letter.

Cashman adjourned the case for one week to permit further consideration of the recording device and legal precedents.

Earlier, he ruled against McConnan who had argued that the perjury trial was a re-litigation of the dangerous driving case which had already been decided against the crown.

Cashman said defences of estoppel and res judicata were not available and promised written reasons later.

Cashman ruled admissible testimony taken from several witnesses Thursday in a voir dire, or trial-within-a-trial, procedure.

Linda Polzin and Kelly Ann Moriarty said they were passengers in a car Marsh was driving Feb. 7, 1976, and proceeded from Sooke to the Patricia Bay Highway and north toward Sidney around 7 a.m.

Police stopped the car, which was trying to make a left turn, stalled and ended up pointed south, they said.

Constable Keith Davies of Sidney RCMP said he chased a speeding car around 7 a.m. and after it rounded a curve, found it stalled pointing to the south. He said Marsh was the driver.

Marsh is accused of committing perjury by testifying that he was not at any time driving north on Patricia Bay Highway that morning and that he had taken the first ferry from Tsawwassen to Swartz Bay.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge Harold Alder handed out jail terms totalling three years to a 26-year-old Victoria man Friday in Victoria provincial court.

Phillip Cameron Conrad, of 380 Belmont, pleaded guilty April 12 to robbery and changed his plea to guilty Friday on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

The robbery incident occurred at about 2:30 a.m. April 10 when Conrad and a companion, due to be sentenced next week on the same charge, were in a car and pulled over to the curb in the 1500-block Esquimalt Road. Court was told Conrad asked a pedestrian, Gerhard Hummel, for a match. When Hummel bent over to strike the match, Conrad struck the man in the mouth and a struggle ensued. Conrad's companion grabbed Hummel from behind and the pair robbed Hummel of about $50 cash and personal papers from his wallet.

A witness who went to Hummel's aid noted the licence number of the fleeing auto and reported it to Esquimalt police.

The assault took place on Jan. 15 and involved a 77-year-old man, Norman David Ashwood, of 443 Superior. Conrad and Ashwood apparently bumped shoulders in the 900-block Douglas and an argument started and resulted in Conrad punching, choking and kicking the elderly man before Conrad's friends could restrain him.

Alder handed out a two-year term for the robbery and the additional year for the assault.

A 29-year-old Seattle man was sentenced to 18 months in jail for the holdup of Simpsons-Sears' key kiosk April 19.

David William Lee was charged with armed robbery after Alva May Carpenter was robbed of $5 and, at one point, grabbed by the lapel, by a man who brandished what was later determined to be a toy gun.

Defence lawyer Fleming Hansen, who asked for a light sentence so that the man could continue to attend South Seattle College, told the court Lee had gone through a deportation hearing and had been ordered deported upon his release from custody.

Sandra Lee Metcalf of Medicine Hat received a suspended sentence, was placed on two years' probation and ordered to accept any therapy as required after Alder looked over a pre-sentence report which indicated some psychiatric help was needed.

The 18-year-old Alberta woman pleaded guilty to possession of money stolen from a Medicine Hat dairy on Good Friday.

She was found with two 16-year-olds from Alberta in a Victoria motel room April 13 and had $1,359.08 in her possession.

Victoria city police recovered approximately $3,000 and a car in the incident.

Gerald Wayne Kitchen, 19, of 1246 Fairfield was sentenced to 30 days in jail on a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon.

Court was told that Victoria city police were called to the 1300-block Government on Dec. 13 and had to draw revolvers before Kitchen would drop a knife with which he threatened another man.

A 17-year-old man who pleaded guilty to obstructing a peace officer March 27 was given a seven-day jail term by Alder.

Peter John Lemmen, of 1057 Richmond, was arrested after he attempted to interfere with the arrest of a juvenile.

Oak Bay police were attempting to remove the juvenile in connection with a break-in investigation when Lemmen went to the door and made a kicking motion toward an officer, who fended off the kick before arresting Lemmen.

A 17-year-old youth pleaded guilty to four break-ins and was remanded in custody until May 26 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

Houston Alexander Henderson, of 1731 Albert Street, pleaded guilty to an April 13 break-in at the Greater Victoria Library branch at 880 Seymour, the Wednesday break-in of a home at 2612 Richmond and two business break-ins Thursday.

The Thursday break-ins occurred at the Elks Club, 732 Cormorant, and Lee's English Toffee Shop, 643 Yates. Crown counsel Gordon Macdonald said keys were involved in the two business break-ins.

Macdonald also told the court Henderson appeared before Judge Blake Allan in the same court April 25 and was charged with breaking and entering in connection with the Royal Canadian Legion branch in Esquimalt. Esquimalt police found a man in the premises after he allegedly knocked himself out trying to hide in a closet.

Rene Wouldn't Quit

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Levesque says he would not step down as premier of Quebec if his government lost a controversial referendum on the separation of the province from the rest of Canada.

In a taped CBC interview the premier said he does not consider the separation issue to be a fight to the finish.

A partial text of the interview conducted in Montreal was released here Friday.

Levesque, however, added that his Parti Quebecois government is firmly committed to a policy of independence with self-government and to holding a referendum.

"You cannot have self-government or political sovereignty by decree from above. It has to come from the people themselves. So we said there would be a referendum and we will be in favor as a government ... of opting out."

He denied a suggestion by interviewer Patrick Watson that some party critics have said the Parti Quebecois played down the separation issue in last November's Quebec election campaign to get more support.

The premier said he never hid his true colors but believed it was not necessary to mention separation in his election platform because his party's view on the subject was known.

He said he wants to make Quebec as French as Ontario is English and added that separation is the only way for the province to achieve "job equality, cultural security, regional balance and stop outside manipulation."

During the interview Levesque also recalled his childhood, his war-time experiences, his career in journalism and his years of involvement in politics.

English 'Necessary To Quebec Survival'

Isolation Not Plan: Morin

TORONTO (UPI) — Quebec Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin says Parti Quebecois government members are concerned that some Canadians believe they are "modern barbarians" trying to make Quebec an isolated state.

The senior minister in Premier Rene Levesque's cabinet visited Toronto Friday to announce the expansion of Quebec government offices here.

At a news conference he welcomed the chance to explain his government's plans.

Morin said Quebec wants to maintain close relationships with Ontario and the other provinces if the PQ government achieves its stated goal of independence for the mainly French-speaking province.

But, he said: "some people don't want things to change. They regard us as some kind of modern barbarians, they thing we're going to fold up on ourselves and stop trading with the rest of the world, but that just isn't so."

OTTAWA (CP) — French-Canadians are trapped in a dilemma of wanting to promote the use of French in Canada while, at the same time, realizing that English is necessary to their survival in North America.

So says Jean-Pierre Goyer, federal minister of supply and services, in a speech today in Toulon, France, on behalf of Prime Minister Trudeau.

"French-Canadians are fully aware that in the economic and cultural context ... English is an important tool," he says in the speech for delivery to the National Congress of the France-Canada Association.

English is considered "sometimes indispensable, often necessary, or, quite simply, useful as a second language."

Goyer, a 6½-year veteran of the Trudeau cabinet and a prime spokesman on Canadian relations with francophone countries, says that the problem is that 61 per cent of Quebecers are unilingual French and, in sone areas, 85 per cent.

Nevertheless, most francophones French-Canadians did not to give up speaking a second language despite the fact they wanted to expand and improve their use of French.

Despite this, Goyer says, the Parti Quebecois government is trying to impose its ideals by imposing indirectly, through language legislation, the use of French as the only acceptable language in Quebec.

"It is my personal feeling that this subterfuge will not succeed," Goyer says, a statement which, despite the use of the word "personal," still carries the weight of the whole Trudeau government behind it.

Trudeau Enters Fray

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will do more campaigning in five upcoming Quebec federal by-elections than is usual for prime ministers in such elections.

The Liberals' chief Quebec organizer, Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet says Trudeau will visit four of the ridings in the final week before the May 24 vote.

Ouellet said Friday that the prime minister had already visited all four in recent months — prior to the election being called.

"Our tactic was to have him in the ridings once before the election announcement and once after," he said.

It was rare for prime ministers to get this involved in by-elections, he said in testimony to the importance of those campaigns given the election of the Party Quebecois.

Knowing the date of the by-elections would seem to have given the ruling Liberals some advantage over the opposition parties.

Prime Minister Trudeau said early last month he had not decided if he would campaign actively — "I might still do it. It would depend, perhaps, on how the battle is joined, and what the issues are."

CIL PULLOUT 'STRICTLY BUSINESS'

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Industries Ltd. is moving the head offices of two divisions to Toronto from Montreal, "strictly for business reasons," company spokesman William Craig said today. Seventy jobs are affected.

The head offices of the plastics division and general chemicals division will move to Toronto to be closer to major market areas and production centres for their products, Craig said in an interview.

The political situation in Quebec is not a factor in the plan to transfer the offices, he said.

"This decision has been on the books for some time, and the offices would have moved regardless of the political situation."

The company's industrial chemicals and explosives head offices will remain in Quebec and no other head office moves are planned, Craig said.

The transfer of head office staff and equipment would begin soon and be completed by Sept. 1.

The Volkswagen Rabbit

There's no comparison.

No other car in the world can deliver the combination of performance, mileage, handling and room that the Volkswagen Rabbit can. No other car at any size. Or at any price.

And that's the truth.

Start with performance and mileage: The Rabbit can zoom from a standing start to 50 miles an hour in an astonishing 7.7 seconds. Yet incredibly, it can also deliver 45.2 miles per gallon on the highway and a stingy 30 mpg in the city.* (A combination unmatched by anyone, anywhere.)

Then there's its size: The Rabbit is a big car. Not outside (it parks in almost no space), but inside. It seats four adults very comfortably with as much legroom and headroom as many "mid-sized" cars. It has five doors, including a rear hatchback. It has about the same glass area as a Lincoln Continental Mark V. With the rear seat folded down, it has more luggage space than a Cadillac Fleetwood.

Safety? Front-wheel drive gives you better tracking. Rack-and-pinion steering gives you precise handling. If one brake circuit fails, a second one is still there. A totally new rear axle makes the car more stable on rough roads. The passenger compartment is a unitized "safety cell". There are reinforced steel side beams in the door. Even the rear window defrosts electrically.

If you still find it a little hard to believe that one car can have all of this, and do all of this, drop into your nearest Volkswagen dealership and take a VW Rabbit out for a test drive. You'll discover the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

Ask your dealer about the VWC Leasing Plan and the Overseas Delivery program.

Poison Study Hushed-Up, Troyer Says

Times News Services

TORONTO — A secret study of 74 Indians at two reserves in northwestern Ontario shows that more than half have major symptoms of Minimata disease, according to a book by journalist Warner Troyer.

The book No Safe Place, says the study done for hte federal health department in 1975 at Grassy Narrows and White Dog reserves found that 45 Indians had visual field losses.

Such vision problems may be symptoms of the disease, which killed a number of residents in Minimata, Japan, and disabled a number of others who ate mercury-contaminated fish.

Dr. Peter Connop, the federal official who commissioned the study, swore the research team to secrecy, Troyer writes.

At a news conference Friday he said that researchers who did the study say it is valid.

Connop was not available for comment.

Dr. Brian Wheatley of the federal health and welfare department said in an interview he was aware that a team went to the reserves to do optometrical examinations as part of a eye-testing program, but that no secret report was commissioned.

Troyer's book says that eight years after the risks of mercury poisoning first were acknowledged in northwestern Ontario, governments still have not initiated a type of survey to determine the extent of poisoning among area residents.

George Kerr, Ontario environment minister, said, however, that such a study now is being recommended to the provincial government and that he understands "we're making some headway on it."

Holt Says Reporter Stole Data

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of Parliament will decide next week whether any action will be taken against Parliamentary Press Gallery reporters for news reports based on a confidential document prepared by the Commons committee studying prison conditions.

Simma Holt, Liberal MP for Vancouver-Kingsway and a former Vancouver Sun reporter, moved Friday that the subject be referred to a Commons committee. She said the prison document was "lifted or stolen" by a reporter, whom she did not identify.

Commons Speaker James Jerome ruled that MPs can decide Monday on a day for debate of the motion.

Mrs. Holt said the document, which recommended that 54 prison officials be fired or retired, had accidentally been left in a room in Parliament by a committee member when it was taken by a reporter.

CONSUMERS LAUD NEW RUST CODE

OTTAWA (CP) — Spokesmen for consumer groups welcomed a new anti-corrosion code for motor vehicles announced by the federal government Friday while the auto manufacturers said they wanted time to study it before making any comment.

The new voluntary code unveiled by Consumer Affairs Minster Tony Abbott calls on manufacturers and importers to gradually improve the rust resistance of their vehicles so that 1981 models will last at least five years without serious rusting.

"It's a very creative approach," said Barbara Sulzenko, policy analyst for the Consumers Association of Canada. "The federal government is beginning to show some leadership."

CAC testing director Cam Seccombe called the code "not a bad first step" and said he hoped the provinces will make the code mandatory. The provinces have responsibility for warranties.

Industry spokesmen said the new code will be thoroughly reviewed by their engineeers and financial analysts before they can assess it.

"It's far more complex than what you might think," said Nick Hall, spokesman for General Motors of Canada.

Manitoba Transair Role Denied

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer Friday discouraged speculation the Manitoba government might become financially involved in any merger between Transair and the Alberta government-owned Pacific Western Airlines.

"There has been no serious consideration of that," he said.

Negotiations between PWA and majority shareholders of the Winnipeg-based regional carrier had only arisen in recent days, he added.

Suggestions Manitoba might make an investment in Pacific Western was "sheer speculation," he said, adding he saw no significant advantage to the province in such a move.

Alberta Transport Minister Hugh Horner, also in Brandon, declined to say whether a takeover was imminent to create a regional airline with service extending from the Pacific to Toronto.

Treu Trial To Resume

MONTREAL (CP) — The trial of engineer Alexander Peter Treu, charged with violating the Official Secrets Act, is to resume here June 3 before Sessions Court Judge Trudel.

Judge Trudel is expected to rule at that time on a defence motion to block introduction of certain documents seized last year during a raid on Treu's home, defence lawyer Jean Lajoie said Friday.

The trial is being held behind closed doors and publication of evidence is forbidden.

Ottawa Tariff Response Cheering to Premiers

BRANDON (CP) — Canada's four western premiers said Friday they are encouraged by the response of the federal government to their calls for changes in the tariff policy.

At a new conference following two days of meetings, Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed and Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer took special note of recent statements by Prime Minister Trudeau which they said reflect more concern for the west.

Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney agreed, but added: "I don't think that changes and modifications in federal policies are apt to be announced with banners flowing and lights flashing."

One of the prime goals of the western provinces is the lowering of tariffs by Canada's major trading partners that would open up markets for more of their products.

"Possibly western Canada has the best opportunity to solve Canada's balance of trade deficit," said British Columbia Premier Bill Bennett.

Together with lower foreign tariffs, the premiers also want to see more processing of raw materials in the west, and lower Canadian tariffs that would allow them to import more capital goods needed to build up local processing industries.

The premiers noted that 1977 could be a key year for multilateral tariff negotiations as well as bilateral trade talks with nations such as the United States.

The concerns of the four governments were outlined in detail in a 235-page brief on multilateral trade negotiations in the industrial sector of the economy.

The brief was presented to the prime minister last month but not made public until Friday.

It complements earlier presentations made by the four governments.

"The western provincial governments recognize and endorse the need for freer trade," the brief said. "This is particularly true in the industrial sector, where trade . . . is far too restricted both in terms of tariff and non-tariff barriers."

The brief notes the frequent complaint of western industries that tariff barriers imposed by Canada's major trading partners discourage processing. Tariffs are relatively low on unprocessed raw materials and relatively high on processed goods.

FEELINGS MIXED ON TRANSPORT

BRANDON (CP) — The premiers of the four western provinces expressed mixed feelings Friday about the evolution of federal transportation policies during the last year.

Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, Peter Lougheed of Alberta and Bill Bennett of British Columbia had praise for some changes introduced by Ottawa, but said even further changes must be made to promote regional development in the west.

The premiers were critical of proposed federal legislation governing railways which they said still requires users to pay too much of the cost of rail transportation they said still requires users to pay too much of the cost of rail transportation.

"During the course of the next year, we will continue to press very hard in this area," Lougheed promised.

On the subject of passenger service, the premiers supported federal plans for two transcontinental railways lines in Western Canada, but complained that the proposed plan would result in slower service.

BAD YEAR IN CITY

Most Fire Damage Caused by Arson

SATCHWELL

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Arson fires in Victoria last year caused more damage than all other fires combined.

The losses reached $626,000, compared with a total fire loss of $1,172,744.

It was, says deputy fire chief Mike Heppell, a bad year for arson — one of the worst ever. And the situation isn't getting any better.

To date this year there have been 19 arson fires in the city, up five over the same period last year. Damage is down slightly, from $91,000 to $73,250.

Heppell says the crucial time of the year for arson fires is just beginning. May and June are traditionally bad months. Last year, three-quarters of the damage occurred during the two-month period.

There is no simple explanation for a rise in the incidence of arson. It's as difficult to fathom as a sudden increase in armed robberies.

According to the Fire Marshall's office, one in four fires in the province is deliberately set.

Last year there were 1,780 arson and incendiary fires in B.C. They resulted in four deaths, 30 injuries and $22 million property loss. By comparison, the total number of fires was 7,400 with 110 deaths, 382 injuries and $77.5 million damage.

Lt.-Insp. Alex Satchwell, a member of the Victoria fire department's arson investigation squad, says arson tops all other violent crimes in terms of dollar loss.

"I think many people view arson as basically a crime against insurance companies," he says. "But they don't consider the price paid by people who are killed, injured, or put out of work by such fires, nor for that matter of the effect on insurance rates.

"It's really a crime against each and every individual in the community."

In medieaval days, arsonists were simply put to death. By the time of Henry II, the punishment had been modified to include the loss of one hand, one foot and banishment.

Arson is considered one of the most serious crimes in the Criminal Code. The maximim penalty is 14 years imprisonment. Why then, are there so many people "playing with fire?"

Heppell says to understand, you have to examine the possible motives.

The intent in arson, he says, may be to defraud, destroy, seek revenge, extort or cover up other crimes such as a break-in, as was the case in a recent fire in a store on Herald, or a murder, as was the case in a Colwood fire three years ago.

The most common motive, however, is vandalism. And because criminal intent is difficult to prove, officials regard such fires not as arson but as "incendiary."

It's a fine distinction but important in terms of the law.

Heppell cites numerous examples:

—a juvenile boy who vented his frustration by setting fire to the home of his next-door neighbor;

—A youth who sought to draw attention to himself by setting fires and then sounding alarm and playing the hero;

—a woman with mental problems who relieved her anxiety by setting fires wherever she went.

But the majority of the fires, says Heppell, are started by persons aimlessly walking or driving about with nothing better to do and looking for a bit of excitement.

Such persons normally gravitate to the downtown core and that explains in part why Victoria has a far higher incidence of arson fires than any other municipality, in the Capital Region.

Last year, Victoria had 38 arson fires, but Saanich, with a larger resident population, had only nine. Esquimalt had six and Oak Bay two.

There is no standard profile for the run-of-the-mill vandal firebug, says Heppell, but there is for the compulsive fire-setter, the pyromaniac.

Dr. Alfred Keltmer, a clinical psychologist at Simon Fraser University, says the pyromaniac is generally a youhg person, shy, retiring and lacking in social skills.

Pyromania is closely associated with sexual hang-ups, he adds.

Fortunately, the condition is extremely rare and Keltmer says he's only come across two actual cases in all of Canada.

Heppell says the "amateur" firebug invariably returns to the scene to watch the fire he started.

For this reason, both firemen and policemen take photographs of crowds at large fires just in case arson is subsequently discovered.

If arson is discovered, the pictures are then examined against mugshots of known and suspected arsonists and compared with pictures taken at other fires. If a person shows up repeatedly in the crowd shots he's sure to be tracked down and interviewed by police.

The professional arsonist is more wily, says Heppell. He'll be as far away from the fire as he can get, endeavouring to establish an alibi.

It's only been in the past decade that fire departments have really started to tackle the arson problem, Heppell says.

The Victoria arson squad was formed eight years ago and now consists of four inspectors.

Insp. Pat Graham, a member of the squad, says that to the trained eye signs of arson are generally readily discernable. It could be the presence of foreign material or fire accelerants, the odor of gasoline or solvents which linger in the air long after the fire has been put out, or it could be unusual patterns of fire spread, for which there is no natural explanation.

The determination of whether a fire is arson or not is one thing. Catching an arsonist is quite another.

"It's one of the most difficult investigations," says Insp. Angus Stewart, head of the Victoria police detectives.

"The problem is most of the evidence is burned up. And without evidence how do you substantiate a charge?"

In many cases, however, charges are never laid simply because the person who set the fire is found to be mentally unbalanced.

Investigation is the key, and no matter how big or small the fire, the arson inspectors are always around.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Mayor Mike Young believes it's "an excellent plan, but expensive" to buy up the residential panhandle separating three downtown Victoria parks.

The mayor was commenting on a statement by David Murdoch, new executive director of Victoria Jaycees, who has advocated the city buy up the residential belt separating the curling rink from Royal Athletic Park.

The purchase, involving two blocks of residential land, would create a park that would join Central Park on the north.

Young said the city has been pursuing this plan for 15 years and has quietly obtained about 50 per cent of the panhandle.

"I believe all the land in that area is ticketed; that is, the city will purchase it if it becomes available at a fair market price."

However, the project has bogged down in the past six years.

Young said council has shown little recent enthusiasm for the project because of the high price for remaining land sites and, in fact, had given approval for some apartment construction in the belt. This construction is under way.

"It is interesting that this park idea is being discussed again. It is ceratinly an idea, but we have to ask whether the need is as great as the price. Some day we may wish we had gone ahead on this if there is a strong development of apartments in that part of the city. So far, the amount of development in that area has been disappointing."

Victoria parks adminstrator Cliff Bate also praised Murdoch's proposal.

"It is interesting that a newcomer to the city has seen clearly the need for buying up this section to bring the parks together. He has asked some interesting questions.

"However, it may be too late," he said.

Bate said the city has given approval for apartment construction in the residential panhandle on Quadra opposite the curling rink.

"This would indicate that one part of the land, at least, has been recycled into apartment use and will not be available for parks."

Bate said a belt of apartments along Quadra would not kill the park idea but might make it more difficult. It would be possible to obtain all the land, except for the apartment belt, to form a mix of apartments and park in the area.

"It makes sense to construct any new recreational facilities in that area between the curling rink and Royal Athletic Park. One facility helps another."

Bate said he is preparing a revision of the city's 10-year park development plan, now completing its fifth year.

"In my revision, I will be taking a close look at the potential of that area between the curling rink and Royal Athletic Park. I think this is a very interesting area and the logical area for expansion of facilities."

In the interview published Wednesday, Murdoch, who recently arrived in the city from Montreal, also said the Jaycees will make some use of the rocky area beside the Memorial Arena, a section that had been a virtual wasteland for the 31 years the city has held its fair.

Murdoch said it might be possible to construct an old fashioned village on the rocky area, along with facilities for picnics.

Mayor Young said the city has considered the rocky area within the last 12 months and one proposal has been to blast the rock away.

"So far we have never been convinced that the cost of removing the rock could be recaptured by the city. This is another expensive proposition. I expect it will be back before council in the near future."

Rift Surfaces In Ferry Union

The key union spokesman for the officers on B.C. ferries wants to be assigned another job within the giant B.C. government Employees Union, bringing to the surface a long-standing internal rift.

Peter Marshall, representative for the 500 officers, said Friday he couldn't continue in that position because of "obvious hostilities" separating him from both Norm Thornber, union representative for 1,700 unlicensed ferry workers, and Charles Gallagher, manager of the B.C. Ferry Corporation.

He said he has asked for reassignment and expects to be given a different job when John Fryer, general secretary of the 33,000-member BCGEU, returns from a business trip in about 10 days.

Marshall was the key union man in an abortive strike by officers Thursday which lasted just four hours after it was declared illegal by the provincial Labor Relations Board.

But the development which brought the long-standing feud between him and Thornber to a head was the LRB decision last month that licensed and unlicensed ferry workers must bargain as a single unit.

Thornber called that decision an attempt at "union busting."

He said the board is assuming the unlicensed group will outvote the licensed group on issues.

"We are bound and determined to see that this doesn't happen," he said. "We will have to see that we work out a suitable relationship."

Thornber conceded that the two groups of ferry workers had had their differences but he said the officers showed Thursday they are not afraid to take strong action.

"There is no doubt that we have the same basic principles, that we are headed the same way."

Police Cars To Carry Weapons

So far three of the cars have been equipped, each with two shotguns and a Savage .308-calibre rifle, locked in position in racks.

Insp. Peter Merriott said the decision to mount the weapons in the cars was made quietly about a month ago and was the direct result of an increase in number of armed incidents in the Greater Victoria area.

Before the move the guns were kept in a gun locker room at the police station.

Charity May Not Be Dead After All

Have we got tighter?

And is charity dying, as Paul Reinhardt, associate professor of economics at York University, wrote in a recent article in the Times?

Are we giving less today because we're turned off by what Reinhardt calls "the charity conglomerates like the United Way" which lump worthy causes together and thus take away some of their identity and urgency to the giver?

It seems so. After all, Reinhardt has the figures to prove it. But he makes one interesting observation: The prospect of relieving immediate suffering may heighten the donor's satisfaction from giving; that perhaps individual charity the desire in us to help a stranger in need — is not dying.

I like to believe that's true.

And I would say it is, judging by the many lovely calls I've had from warm-hearted people wanting to help a Brentwood Indian family which lost its home and possessions in a fire on the Tsartlip reserve a couple of months ago.

After my column on the sad plight of Chuck Sampson, who is out of work because of a bad back injury, his wife Marguerite and their five children, the phone started ringing.

First was a call from Camosun College student Connie Vigar, who wanted to know how to contact the Sampsons and give them some of her things.

"So many of us have so much we never use, while there are people who have so little," said Connie.

The Red Cross supplied a host of blankets, clothing and other things to the Friendship Centre for the Sampsons and quite a few other people have offered bedding and furniture. But the problem has been that Chuck and his family don't have anywhere to put the stuff. They are still squeezed into two small rooms in a motel and need a house.

Money has been in pretty short supply, too, though a few people have also helped out in this respect.

Attached to one letter, from a woman who said she wished to remain anonymous, was a cheque for $50.

"Your item about the Sampson family certainly made me feel very ashamed," the letter began. "If such a calamity had happened to a white family, donations would have poured in, I am sure."

max low

"I am enclosing a small cheque which I would like you to use for them in the way you think best, either to be given to them as cash or in the form of clothes or food they may need."

I cashed the cheque and gave the money — along with a gift voucher for $20 worth of groceries another women sent in — to Chuck and he was grateful.

But then I got a phone call from Helen Prince ... and she set me thinking.

She would like to donate $25 toward helping the Sampsons, Mrs. Prince said — but then she promptly announced that this amount and the others I'd received so far were "chicken feed."

"These people need a home," she pointed out. "Why can't we start a fund to help them get enough money to build a house? If it was a white family, this would have been done already. These people don't get a break, you know."

I know — but every time I say it, someone jumps on me.

Like I got a couple of calls from people wanting to air their views and give "the other side of the coin." Indian people, they said, didn't even help themselves — or each other.

And Eileen Medley, executive director of the Red Cross in Victoria, said a lot of help had already been given to the Sampson family.

"I think people are wonderful when it comes to a disaster," said Mrs. Medley. "When we had the Guatemala earthquake, $1,000 was collected in 10 days. Every time an appeal goes out, the people of Victoria are wonderful."

Talking of the Sampsons, Mrs. Medley said she felt a lot of fuss was being made about something which wasn't correct.

"Reports have appeared in the paper saying nobody's helping them and it's just not true."

Still, I thought Mrs. Prince's idea of a fund was a good one and so I phoned Tsartlip band chief Philip Paul who is also chairman of the Victoria Indian Cultural Centre, and he agreed to set it up.

"Sure, we're quite willing to do it," Paul said. "If there's a response being generated by the community, it's a healthy response from the people, and we shouldn't stop it."

So there you are. If you would like to help the Sampson family raise enough money at least for a down payment on a home, you can send your donations to The Sampson Family Fund, c-o the Indian Cultural Centre, 890B McKenzie Avenue, Victoria V8X 3G5.

Krishna Suspected

Better Business Bureau manager Bill Tindall is more than just a little suspicious of fund-raising tactics used by followers of the Hare Krishna movement.

Tindall says that on the eve of the annual Multiple Sclerosis annual fund drive, members of the religious sect are appearing with bags inscribed Ms. and soliciting donations.

Like the MS Society, the Hare Krishna people are pinning carnations on donors.

Tindall says he isn't telling people not to donate to Hare Krishna but rather that they be sure they are not giving money believing they are making a donation to the MS fund drive.

KNIFE ROBBERY

A man armed with a butcher knife and wearing a nylon stocking mask over his face held up the Daffodil Inn, 680 Garbally, Friday night and made off with about $50.

The manageress, who asked that her name not be used, said she was alone in the office when the man walked in at 10:50 p.m.

Police found the man's knife and a khaki shirt he had been wearing on the sidewalk a short distance from the motel.

The robber is described as in his 20s, about five feet, six inches tall, slightly built and fair-haired.

TEAM CANADA'S 'SUCCESS' STORY:

52-12 in Minutes, 1-8 in Goals

VIENNA (CP) — Canada forgot about hockey Friday night, preferring the penalty box instead, and the Soviet Union took advantage for an 8-1 victory in a world hockey championship game.

The setback knocked the National Hockey League selects out of the race for the gold medal. The Canadians can win a bronze medal if they tie or defeat defending champion Czechoslovakia in their final game Sunday and Sweden loses to the Soviet Union.

The Canadians appeared to have a chance of upsetting the Russians on Friday, but the team decided to use intimidation tactics, instead of concentrating on putting the puck past goalie Vladislav Tretiak.

Referee Raimo Sepponen of Finland, criticized by Canadian coach Johnny Wilson, gave Canada 52 minutes in penalties and the Soviet Union 12 minutes. The Russians scored four power-play goals and the Canadians one.

In another game involving the top four teams, the Czechoslovaks shaded Sweden 2-1 on goals by Vladimir Martinec and Bohuslav Ebermann, who scored the winner at 15:38 of the final period on a breakaway.

After nine games in the eight-country tournament, defending champion Czechoslovakia leads with 13 points. The Russians are second with 11, two more than Sweden, and three ahead of Canada.

In the lower division, Finland has 10 points, the United States five, West Germany three and Romania two.

The lower division winds up its single round-robin playoffs series tonight with Romania meeting West Germany and the U.S. playing Finland.

On Sunday, it's Canada against Czechoslovakia, at 6 a.m. PDT, and the Russians against the Swedes. The Canada-Czechoslovakia game will be shown on the CTV national network.

Derek Holmes, general manager of the Canadian team, said: "I'm disappointed with the result and definitely disappointed with some of the behavior as well.

Left winger Eric Vail of the Canadian team was handed a match penalty, which carries an automatic one-game suspension, for trying to injure defenceman Sergej Babinov. While Vail was serving his 10-minute penalty, the Russians scored two power-play goals.

Defenceman Carol Vadnais, leading the Canadian team in penalty minutes with 33, received two minutes for spearing and a 10-minute misconduct for arguing.

Centre Walt McKechnie of Canada got three minor penalties, one for slashing, one for tripping and one for cross-checking. The Russians scored once when he was off.

Wilson criticized Sepponen at a news conference:

"I think it was a pity they assigned a boy scout to officiate the game. I think he lost control of the game and frustrated our players."

Helmut Balderis and Alexander Yakushev paced the Russians with two goals each before 9,400 fans. Yakushev had four goals when the Soviet Union whipped Canada 11-1 earlier in the tournament.

The Russians outshot the Canadians 46-31. Canadian goalie Tony Esposito could hardly be faulted, although he didn't look as sharp as in previous games.

CANADIANS WERE ON ATTACK during this play in world hockey tournament at Vienna Friday as Wilf Paiement attempts to get at puck being smothered by Soviet goaltender Vladislav Tretiak. Sergei Babinov sails through air as Soviet clubmates Vladimir Shadrin and Vladimir Lutchenko watch action. Canadians later spent more time sitting in penalty box than attacking and were drubbed 8-1. Macs Grab a Squeaker; Rocks Will Do Later On

One week's work and like that..

It was an interesting beginning to another lacrosse season. On the one hand, nobody knew what to expect from McDonalds, last year's Canadian junior champions, but shorn of many of their star performers. On the other, great things were expected of the Shamrocks, defending Western Lacrosse Association champions.

So what happens? McDonalds come up with a squeaker, a come-from-behind-a-five-goal-deficit performance and a one-goal win; and the Irish come up with a stunner, a loss by blowing a four-goal margin.

General manager Bob Reid of McDonalds was like a cat on a hot, tin roof most of the evening as he mumbled such phrases as: . . . "I guess you have to expect this . . . it's going to be a long season . . . oh, no, not that! . . . he's supposed to shoot the puck off that block when he sees daylight . . . Muzz! . . . get them off the floor . . . Muzz! ("Muzz" is Muzz Bryant, new coach of McDonalds).

But it was ever thus for Reid, especially last season when McDonalds made those two memorable comebacks in the playoffs to get to the Canadian final.

To re-coin a phrase, Reid already is used to it. And, if the truth were out, he wouldn't have it any other way.

A couple of the brighter newcomers had to be Rhys Wicks and Paul Michael although Michael got undressed by a Roadrunner forward on one head fake. Bruce Townsend will also help and the Macs may have some other surprises later. They now have permission to use younger players on a spot basis, "and there are some good ones there," said Reid.

However, it was a good start; and the team, under Bryant and Brian Spaven, although it may get run over once in a while, appears to be in good hands and headed the right way.

What cooled the Shamrocks off may indirectly have been the Bob Cool affair, because certainly they weren't up for their debut. Then, too, some of the veterans said they might retire. That was disturbing.

Cool, surely you've heard, was drafted from McDonalds by the Rocks, but declined to report for his own reasons, and has been the subject of conjecture ever since as he bids to join Nanaimo Timbermen.

He hasn't played or practiced for that reason. Now, however, following a meeting Tuesday, it appears that the way is about to be cleared for him to make a move. WLA commissioner Roy Burton isn't about to stand in Cool's way. "I just have to abide by the league rules," he said, "and I think Bob understands my position and holds no grudge against me."

But back to the Irish. For whatever reason, they just weren't ready and played like it. Burrards could have been had, too, because they didn't show that much and almost folded in the late going after having the best of it earlier.

So things can only get better; and the rookies, Gerry Cadwallader, Dave Lowdon and Glen Neuman (well, he's a first year Shamrock) acquitted themselves well enough. It was some of the vets who let the side down. Or as coach Nirmal Dillon commented: "We're supposed to be a fast-break team and we only had one fast break all game."

Meanwhile, up country, at Nanaimo, the word from Ken Alexander is that the Timbermen are just about set. "I think we'll have a good club," said Alexander, who is cast in the role of playing coach. "It will be better than last year, more competitive and that will be good for the league because it will give the Island two competitive teams."

So Kenny likes the Shamrocks a bit and respects their capabilities. "They were a little short tonight," he commented.

Certainly, he would like to have Cool to play alongside his teammate of last year, Kevin Alexander, "but those stories about big money offers from us are for the birds," he said.

The Timbermen have six players commuting from Victoria and now have a new goalkeeper. He is Tim Barrie, who hails from Peterborough, played in the National Lacrosse League and sat out last season.

He was acquired because John Lewis, rookie of the year last season, lives on the Mainland and wants to play there.

"We'll make a deal for him with Coquitlam," he said.

Then he added in his best one-upmanship fashion:

"We don't want to keep anyone out of lacrosse. That's not our style."

Ferguson, Bridge Receive Awards

Drew Ferguson and Ian Bridge collected coveted honors Friday during the annual awards banquet of the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

Ferguson, who plays with Powell River Villas, was named the most-valuable player in the league's premier division.

Receiving most-valuable-player awards in other divisions were Frank Hartman of Duncan Powel's (second), Gary Dixon of Labatts (third) and Don Raynor of L. H. Ormiston (fourth).

Grant Darley and Ted Van Waes of Victoria Athletics shared the leading-goaltender award and the goal-scoring champion was John Leier of the University of Victoria Vikings, who were voted the most-sportsmanlike team by referees.

A new award — the Wilf Sadler Trophy, named in honor of he late soccer and baseball executive — went to Mike Hawdy of Victoria West as the most-sportsmanlike player in the league.

Janice Second

VANCOUVER — Anne Muscat of Vancouver was a surprise over-all winner Friday in novice women's competition at the Western Canada gymnastics championships.

Janice Achtem of Victoria placed second.

ST. MICHAEL'S ADDS JUNIOR HIGH HONORS

Give St. Michael's University a double mark.

Winner of the Greater Victoria Senior High School Rugby League championship last week, St. Michael's added the junior high title to its trophy shelf Friday.

Paced by the 11-point performance of Jamie Ellis, SMU defeated Lansdowne Flyers 19-6 in the district's junior finale at Windsor Park.

Ellis scored a try, two converts and a penalty goal. Rob Frame and Whim Vanderspek also scored tries for St. Michael's, appearing in the final for a fifth consecutive year.

Colquitz defeated SMU in last year's final.

10 Ex-Champs Pursue Titles

Two distaff stars will be eligible to shoot for third titles while three other women and five men who have previously collected one crown will be listed among contestants when the 14th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Year fivepin rolloffs get under way at 1 p.m. Sunday on the Town and Country Lanes.

May Wallis, who topped women qualifiers with a 922 series rolled in the 17th week of the 26-week contest, won rolloff titles in 1965 and 1969.

Islanders' Style Appreciated (Now)

MONTREAL (CP) — Seldom during the regular National Hockey League season did Montreal Canadiens have to live with any adversity as they rolled to a record-breaking 60-8-12 mark.

However the Canadiens were brought back to earth during their semi-final against New York Islanders and the six-game set which concluded Thursday night may have been the best preparation possible for their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series.

The Canadiens open defence of the trophy they took from Philadelphia Flyers last season as they play host to Boston Bruins tonight. Montreal hoped to play the series opener Sunday night, but NHL officials vetoed the plan because of television commitments to the NHL-TV network in the United States.

Boston plays a similar style to that of the Islanders and therefore it is likely to be a bruising series as was the case in the New York-Montreal affair.

"I think it's going to be a physical series," Montreal centre Doug Risebrough said Friday.

"Playing the Islanders was really healthy for us. It had been a long time since we had been involved in a real bump and grind game and now we know what it is going to take to win and it's just them or us."

The Canadiens played the Bruins five times during the regular season, with the Bruins taking the first three games before Montreal came back with one-sided triumphs in the last two.

The Bruins have been off since last Sunday after eliminating Philadelphia in four games and Gregg Sheppard wondered if the six-day layoff was good.

"We were ready to play at the beginning of the week or the middle of the week rather than the weekend. At the end of the season, we had the week off because we had won our division and that's the week we needed because we had a lot of pressure games.

"But right now, I feel this week off is going to do us more harm than it will do us good."

RAIDERS TAKE OPENER

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Prince Albert Raiders gave up two power-play goals in the first period Friday night but stormed back for a 6-4 victory over Pembroke Lumber Kings in the opening game of the Centennial Cup hockey final.

The Series resumes here tonight with the third game scheduled Sunday.

Garth Green scored the winner unassisted in the first minute of the third period for the Raiders, champions of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League.

Prince Albert served seven of 11 minor penalties and each team took a major for fighting. The Raiders earned a 36-32 edge in shots on goal over Pembroke, champions of Ontario's Central Junior Hockey League.

Blazers Scorch Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maurice Lucas led a quartet of 20-point scorers for Portland Friday night as the Trail Blazers shattered Los Angeles' home-court invincibility and whipped the Lakers 121-109 in the opener of their National Basketball Association semi-final playoff series.

Lucas scored 28 points, Lionel Hollins 25, Bill Walton 22 and Johnny Davis 20 as the visitors led from start to finish in the first game of the best-of-seven series.

The Trail Blazers led by 22 points, 60-38, late in the first half and the closest the Lakers could come after that was 99-92 in the final period. Then Lucas scored three points and Hollins hit a field goal to boost the lead again.

Los Angeles had won 41 games, including four in the quarter-final playoff against Golden State, while losing only four at its Forum home this season.

But Portland came out with a running game before the crowd of 16,975 and took control with its balanced attack.

Rookie Earl Tatum, who like Lucas played college ball at Marquette, led the Lakers with a career-high 32 points. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 for the Lakers, but had only 10 rebounds compared with 13 for Walton and 15 for Lucas.

The team meet in the second game of the series Sunday afternoon.

Inside Pitch Ignites Brawl

By The Associated Press

Al Hrabosky makes about $100,000 per year—but might put in for combat pay as well.

"Anytime you're out there on the mound," the St. Louis Cardinals reliever says, "you've got to anticipate somebody knocking your head off with a line drive or coming out to get you."

Houston's Cesar Cedeno came out to get him Friday night. Enraged after being hit by one of Hrabosky's pitches in the ninth inning, the Astros' centre fielder charged to the mound, triggering a free-for-all.

The Cardinals went on to win 4-1 in a National League baseball game, but literally had to battle for it.

"I just thought it was an inside pitch," said Hrabosky about the toss that started the fight. "I've been told there are certain people I'm supposed to pitch up and in. I know there's a certain way I have to pitch him and I'm going to do it."

Plunked on the left arm, Cedeno dropped his bat and went out to greet Hrabosky.

"I ducked and he went over me," Hrabosky said.

St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons then bolted to the mound, jumped om Cedeno's back and started punching him. At that point, both benches cleared and there were individual fights erupting everywhere. When the dust had cleared after 10 minutes, Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar and St. Louis reserve Roger Freed were ejected, Houston coach Mel Wright had his glasses broken and numerous players suffered bruises and hurt feelings.

"There should have been more punches thrown," snapped Bob Watson, the normally passive Houston first baseman. "You don't hit a man and get away with it, and it was flagrant. The umpire (Bob Engle) should have kicked Hrabosky out."

In other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers walloped Philadelphia Phillies 9-3, Chicago Cubs trimmed Atlanta Braves 7-2, San Francisco Giants defeated New York Mets 5-3, San Diego Padres beat Montreal Expos 6-4 and Pittsburgh Pirates downed Cincinnati Reds 6-3.

In the American League, Baltimore's veteran lefthander, Ross Grimsley, pitched a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to a 4-1 victory over Seattle Mariners.

In other American League games, California Angels downed Boston Red Sox 8-4, Detroit Tigers beat Milwaukee Brewers 5-2, New York Yankees trimmed Oakland A's 4-1, Texas Rangers turned back Kansas City Royals 5-2, Minnesota Twins whipped Toronto Blue Jays 7-2 and Chicago White Sox shaded Cleveland Indians 7-5.

Pete Falcone and Hrabosky combined on a three-hitter for St. Louis. Falcone, registering his first victory since Sept. 6, 1976, limited the Astros to a single and a triple before giving way to Hrabosky at the start of the eighth.

Mike Champion drove in four runs with a single and a three-run double, lifting San Diego over Montreal. Champion's bases-loaded double came off Montreal starter Jackie Brown in the fourth inning and staked Tom Griffin to a 4-1 lead.

Sinclair Fits in Well With the Sooke Crowd

Ron Fedosenko tossed a two-hit shutout and Norm Goudie drove in four runs with a homer and double but Bill Sinclair fits in nicely with the softball veterans because he "likes" Sooke.

The three were the chief architects of Sooke Merchants' 6-0 victory over Victoria Athletics in Friday's Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game at Central Park.

The softball folk know about "Fuzzie" (Fedosenko) and Goudie. They've been fixtures in the Sooke lineup for the past several years.

If Friday's performance is any sampling, the folk will soon get to know Sinclair.

He lashed out three singles in three trips and scored two runs.

Playing with a Vancouver team last year, the outfileder had his first look at Sooke during Merchants' annual tournament. He liked it, and made the move in the off-season.

Pinch-hitter Bob Gray spoiled Fedosenko's no-hit bid with a double in the fifth inning. Rick Bate's well-executed bunt single in the sixth was the only other hit managed by Athletics.

Dave Hughes also turned in a sharp mound performance at Heywood Park. He scattered four hits to provide Capital Builders with a 5-1 victory over Remco Office Services in a Heywood Men's League game.

Builders managed only four hits but lumped three of them with three errors and two walks for a five-run fourth inning. Dave McNeil highlighted the burst with a two-run single.

Don Frampton hit two homers while Dale Ewasiuk, Doug Harrison, Gerry Lavender and Bob Lougheed clouted others. Seaboard players have hit 10 home runs in their first two games.

Ron Fedosenko and Alden Govenlock; Lorne Bowden, Ken Fox (3) and Wayne Scotney.

Crenshaw Upset

DALLAS (AP) — Ben Crenshaw had a share of the lead in the $200,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament and was absolutely irate about it.

"I'm playing just awful," he said. "I'm subject to hit it out of bounds or in the water at any time. It disturbs the hell out of me. It's just incredible.

"If I was just playing decent—not good, just decent—I should be easily in the lead."

But after Friday's second round, Crenshaw shared the lead with Ray Floyd, Lyn Lott and Fuzzy Zoeller at 139, three under par for two trips over the wind-swept, 6,983 yard Preston Trail Golf Club course.

Crenshaw capped a wildly erratic round with a 100-yard pitch that found the cup for an eagle three on the 15th hole. It enabled him to finish out a round of 70 that included two bogeys, a double bogey three birdies and the eagle.

Verley, Gahan Top Golf Seniors

Gordon Verley and Barney Gahan captured top individual awards Friday as members of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association staged their annual "spring opening" tournament at Victoria Golf Club.

Verley fired an even-par 70 to win the C. F. Smith Rose Bowl as the event's low-gross champion. Two of Verley's Victoria Golf Club companions — Bill Thompson and George Bigelow — finished in a tie for second place at 74.

Thompson was awarded second place in a countback, with Bigelow then taking the top prize in the 5-12 handicap division.

Playing on his home course, Gahan collected handican honors and the L. McCooey Rose Bowl after notching an 86 and using a 20 handicap for a net 66. Dick White, a 14-handicapper from Cowichan, also finished with a net 66, but was dropped to second place on a countback.

Fifty fairway veterans from the Lower Mainland were guests of the Island association at the tourney. Leading their competitions were A. K. Matheson (79) and G. C. Turner (85-18—67).

Verley, Bigelow, Thompson and Ray Cranston combined for a gross total of 319 to give the Victoria club the team championship and the Life Member Trophy.

Uplands was second at 325, followed by Gorge Vale (337), Nanaimo (337), Saltspring (349), Royal Colwood (359) and Cedar Hill (359).

Cougars May Wait For Andy's Reply

It's no secret now that the new owners-to-be of the Victoria Cougars want Andy Hebenton, a former city resident and player, to coach the Western Canada Hockey League team.

Hebenton is "interested" and "wouldn't mind moving back to Victoria," but the Cougars will probably have to wait a little while longer before getting a firm answer.

Hebenton took over as coach of Tulsa Oilers in the Central (Pro) League midway through the past season when Orland Kurtenbach moved up to coach Vancouver Canucks of the National League.

Hebenton, speaking from his Portland home, said he was contacted Wednesday by Vancouver manager Phil Maloney about "the Tulsa situation."

The "situation" includes Hebenton's position and Tulsa's ability to continue in the Central League.

Cougars have called a press conference next Wednesday. It is expected the main order of business will be to officially announce Pat Ginnell's sale of the club to a group headed by Lorne Williams.

Hebenton, who plans to attend the Memorial Cup playdowns in Vancouver next week, may also be in attendance at Wednesday's conference.

DISPUTE SETTLED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Veteran defensive end Jim Heighton has settled a lengthy contract dispute with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and signed a two-year Canadian Football League contract.

Dale Shaw Scores '76 At Roswell

ROSWELL, Ga. (AP) — Hollis Stacy bogeyed the last two holes and fell into a three-way share of the lead at four-under-par 69 with veteran Kathy Ahern and rookie Janet Coles in Friday's opening round of a $50,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Coles, playing in only her seventh LBPA event, shot in the 60s for the first time. She really scrambled on her front nine, which was the backside of the 6197-yard, par 73 Brookfield West Country Club, a hilly course.

Ahern, a 10-year tour veteran seeking her first victory since 1972, two-putted from 20-30 feet for a pair of birdies and sank putts of 15, 13 and 10 feet for her others. Her only bogey came when she drove into water and two putted from 12 feet.

There were three others tied at 70, defending champion Joanne Carner, Betsy Cullen and Marlene Floyd, sister of former Masters champion Ray Floyd.

Grouped at 71 were Mary Mills, Kathy Postlewait, Jan Stephenson, Amy Alcott and Patty Hayes.

At one-under 72 were Donna Caponi Young, Marbo Sasaki, Oakville, Ont., native Sandra Post, Amelia Rorer and Pat Bradley.

Island Bowler Leads Youth Fivepin Event

WINNIPEG — Nanaimo's Pierre Rattini leads the junior boys' division of the National Youth Fivepin Bowling Championship following the first day of play.

The Fiesta Lanes bowler, who is the only Vancouver Island bowler in the championships, posted a 5-1 record in round-robin, match-play Friday.

Barrie Bansal of Yorkton, Sask., topped the bantam boys at 6-0 while Tom Anderson of Thunder Bay was 6-0 in the senior boys' singles.

Elaine Redmond of St. John's, Nfld., leads the senior girls with a 5-1 record, Merrill Harrison of Medicine Hat is 5-1 in the bantam girls and Kathy Taus of Walden, Ont., is 5-1 in the junior girls.

The team leaders are: senior boys, Northern Ontario 4-2; junior boys, Southern Ontario 5-1; bantam boys, Manitoba and Saskatchewan 4-2; senior girls, Ssskatchewan 5-1; junior girls, Manitoba 4-2; bantam girls, Southern Ontario 5-1.

School Meet Goes to Claremont

ROSEMARY FULLER

This week's announcement that reconstruction of the track at Centennial Stadium "should be" under way by August won't change the plans of the high school set.

The annual Greater Victoria senior secondary track and field championships will be held next week and, for the first time since Centennial Stadium was opened for business at the University of Victoria in 1968, the meet will be held on "other grounds."

The meet will be held at Claremont, starting with the eliminations Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Finals for both track and field events, will be run off Friday, starting at 1 p.m.

It's no secret the deterioration of the nine-year-old asphalt track was a prime factor in shifting the meet to Claremont.

The federal government has announced a $47,000 grant towards a new track. Additional funds are to be contributed by the municipalities of Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Victoria, the provincial government and the university.

A Canadian championship will be at stake at the UVic pool this weekend. The national junior men's water polo championships got under way this morning and will conclude Sunday.

New Zealand fans would like to think Libby Bowles also ranks with the best, and the debate gets a chance to resume Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

The expected Fuller-Bowes match is scheduled to highlight Sunday's international tripleheader at Royal Athletic Park, starting at 1 p.m.

Victoria's Colony Inn will meet New Zealand champion Ta Papapa in the first game. Victoria GSV Combos and Doc's Blues follow. The New Zealand-Doc's Blues meeting will wind it up.

Bowles first appeared in Victoria three years ago as a member of the New Zealand national team.

Fuller, catcher Joanne Mick and outfielder Donna Blackstock, all of Victoria, have been playing with the Canadian champion Doc's Blues for the past two years.

The 1977 auto racing season gets under way tonight at Western Speedway with a program for super stocks and hobby stocks. Time trials start at 7 and the actual races start at 8.

British Columbia Amateur Softball Association president Al Beasley of Victoria is "coming along nicely" after suffering a heart attack earlier this week.

Beasley, 61, and his wife Thelma shared the celebrity-of-the-year award at the 1975 Victoria Sports Awards Dinner.

Al is recovering in Royal Jubilee Hospital and may be released as early as next week.

Dart throwers in North America might not attract the crowds that follow golfers or tennis players, but Leighton Rees has exhibited his prowess before an audience of 12,000 spectators.

And the Victoria and District Darts Association is hoping "a good turnout" will watch Rees on Monday when he opens a Canadian tour with an exhibition at the ANAF Veterans Club on Wharf Street, starting at 8 p.m.

Rees, 36 and Welsh, is one of the world's top professional darts throwers. Captain of the Welsh and British teams, he holds the world record for scoring 1,001 in 24 darts (the highest possible in three darts is 180).

Funeral services were held Friday for Nick Lystar, well known in Victoria athletic circles as a coach and trainer to amateur boxers.

Lystar, 72, died Monday in Victoria General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

While boxing was his main interest, Lystar also contributed to the development of other sports in the district.

The Greater Victoria Horseshoe Pitching Association is looking to the formation of a junior league.

Boys and girls between 11 and 15 years of age interested in competition on an organized basis are asked to contact Cliff Dalsin (479-1566) for particulars.

The association's 12-team senior league was scheduled to open play today.

Tide Stacked With JBAAs

Crimson Tide, the Vancouver Island Rugby Union representative side, will contain a nucleus of nine players from James Athletic Association when it faces "Rest of Canada" in an exhibition match May 17 at Royal Athletic Park.

Picked from Island-champion James Bay were Daryl Noullette, Mike Blades, Stu Barber, Rod McGinnis, Ray Rogers, Mike O'Connor, Hans de Goede, Ken Wilke and Gary Johnston.

Other players selected for the initial roster are Derwyn Phillips, Jim Wenman, Dave Slater and Gillie Greig of Oak Bay; Allistair Palmer, Ted Zinkan and Bevan Grant of UVic Vikings; John Davies, Duayne Van Ewen, Barclay Logan and Pat Simmons of Cowichan; and Guy Hogg of Castaways.

Players from this list will also form the Tide that is scheduled to play Cardiff at the same site May 23.

Several will alos play for Canada against the United States May 21 at Vancouver and, for B.C. against the under-22 English side May 28 at Royal Athletic Park.

In another rugby development, James Bay has learned the site for its two B.C. championship matches has been changed to Wolson Field at the University of British Columbia.

James Bay seconds face Vancouver Kats II for the Province Cup at 1 p.m. and the first division sides meet for the Rounsfell Cup at 2:30 p.m.

The matches had been originally scheduled for Bear Creek Park in Surrey.

Timbers Score Shootout Victory

PORTLAND (AP) — Tony Betts contributed an assist to Portland's only regulation-time goal and one of its shootout goals as the Timbers beat Team Hawaii 4-1 in the only North American Soccer League game Friday night.

Betts assisted as Ike MacKay scored a few minutes after play resumed in the second period to deadlock the score at 1-1.

Betts, Terry Alcock and Pat McMahon scored for Portland in the shootout after two sudden-death overtimes produced no score.

Knowledge of Way Plants Get Food Lets You Give Them Better Food

An understanding of the way in which plants obtain nutrients from the soil enables the home gardener to obtain the maximum results from the minimum of fertilizer.

We learned the principle in our physics course at school; but most of us have given it little thought since we became interested in gardening.

Plants obtain nutrients by osmosis, which is nothing more than the ability of liquids to ozze through a porous membrane.

A membrane of this type encloses the minute invisible feeding roots of our plants. Through this membrane pass the the nutrients and poisons present in the soil water around the roots.

Since only liquids can pass through such a membrane the nutrients must be soluble in water for the plants to be able to pick them up. If there is insufficient moisture in the soil to form a solution the plants can starve no matter how much fertilizer is applied to the surface.

An important point to remember is that liquid can pass through the porous membrane in either direction, from the soil into the cells of the plant or from the cells out into the soil. The feeding of plants with fertilizers hinges on this fact.

Thus it is quite reasonable to conclude that an inward movement could be beneficial while an outward movement might be detrimental.

The fertilizers used for feeding plants are the salt forms of the various chemicals. When these dissolve in water they form a saline, or salt, solution.

In our school experiments we used a glass container with a permeable membrane stretched vertically across the centre to divide the container into two parts.

Tap water was poured into both halves, then common table salt was added to the water in one side. Immediately the level of the salt solution started to rise and the level of the water on the other side started to drop, indicating a flow from the weak solution (water) to the strong solution (saline).

The membrane covering the feeding roots of plants forms a division between two salt solutions, one inside the roots (the cell sap), the other in the soil.

As a plant uses up the water in its cells, or gives off water from its leaves, the sap becomes more and more concentrated until it is a stronger solution than the moisture in the surrounding soil. The flow then starts from the soil into the plant and continues until the sap is diluted to the same concentration as the soil water.

When the gardener applies fertilizer to the soil and adds water to dissolve the fertilizer salts, the soil solution becomes a highly concentrated salt solution. If this solution is stronger than the sap within the plant the flow through the root membranes will be outwards, and when this continues beyond a certain point the plant wither and dies.

To prevent killing plants in this manner we are warned to use fertilizers sparingly; little and often is the rule rather than a lot in one dose.

We are also warned not to add fertilizer to soil mixtures prepared for the sowing of seed, nor to open ground where seed is to be sown. Poor germination in a soil rich in fertilizer salts is due to the tiny amount of moisture in the seed being drawn out by the salt concentration, causing the germ to die.

Generations of gardeners have used fertilizers to kill unwanted plants. A handful of ammonium sulphate was put on each lawn weed, and a light spray of water applied to make a strong salt solution around the roots. This extracted all the sap from the weeds and caused them to wither.

On gravel driveways and paths away from cultivated plants gardeners have used common salt (sodium chloride) as a weed killer. This method of weed destruction was reasonably safe and no spray did damage to plants in neighbor's gardens up to a block away.

Once we understand this two-way street called osmosis we can forget the rumors about chemical fertilizers "burning the roots of plants" or "poisoning the plants". Any damage caused by the use of fertilizers has been caused by the gardener, not by the product.

Thousands of pounds of fertilizer are wasted every year by home gardeners due to improper application.

Putting powdered fertilizer into the top inch of soil, or pouring a liquid fertilizer on the surface of the soil, is no guarantee the plants will obtain any food. The fertilizer must form a solution with water, then be carried down to the root area for the plants to pick up.

The high incidence of winter kill in this area is due to fertilizer salts left in the soil when fall rains begin. The rains supply the moisture to carry the salts to root level and the plants start new growth when they should be going dormant.

Many gardening books and fertilizer pamphlets say to apply fertilizer in the fall after the ground has frozen.

This advice does not apply to local gardens because our soils never freeze. The rule her is : No fertilizer after the end of July, excepting to vegetables that will be gathered in the fall and to fall flowering herbaceous perennials which have no growth above ground over winter.

Home gardeners are wise to use the mixes with the smallest figures, such as 6-8-6 and 5-10-5, leaving the more concentrated mixes (13-16-10, 20-30-20) to the farmer for mixing with sand or datomaceous earth. It is relatively easy to spread a teaspoonfull of fertilizer evenly around a plant, but impossible to spread a quarter-teaspoonful. The quarter is dropped in one place and the plant grows lopsided.

To make sure the plants benefit from all the fertilizer you use, first water the soil around the plants for an hour or so, or until the moisture has sunk in to the level of the roots.

Note the amount of fertilizer recommended by the manufacturer for the type of plants and apply ONE-HALF that amount. Moisten the powder with a light spray of water.

After 24 hours, water again to carry the dissolved powder down to the roots in the form of a solution.

The same procedure is used for liquid fertilizers, excepting for the 24 hour wait. But watering before and after application is the same.

The amount of benefit the plants obtain from an application of fertilizer is directly related to the amount of humus in the soil.

Humus (compost or old manure) is composed of thousands of tiny sponges which hold the nutrients while the feeding roots extract their need. In a soil lacking humus the solution sinks rapidly beyond the reach of the roots because there is nothing to stop its progress, and more is lost than the plants ever use.

Once we understand how plants obtain nutrient from fertilizers, we can be kind to our plants without killing them with kindness.

Earl Mountbatten To Visit Victoria

Earl Mountbatten of Burma and his daughter, Lady Patricia Brabourne, will be in Victoria Tuesday.

Colonel-in-chief of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Lady Brabourne will be visiting the 3rd Battalion, PPCLI, at Work Point.

On arrival at the Victoria International Airport at 4:20 p.m., Lady Brabourne will inspect a 100-man guard from the battalion's A and B companies, commanded by Major M. H. McMurray. The Canadian forces Naden band will play during the inspection.

Mountbatten and his daughter will stay at Government House during their two-day visit.

The Naden band will provide music for the formal dinner to be held at Government House that evening. Other guests of Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen and Mrs. Owen will be Pauline McGibbon, Lt.-Gov. of Ontario; Maj.-Gen. George Brown, deputy commander of mobile command in Montreal and colonel of the Patricia Association; the battalion's commanding officer Lt. Col. H. G. Leitch, and Mrs. Leitch; and officers of the battalion.

On Wednesday, Mountbatten will speak to the students of the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific at 10:15 a.m. and meet with the board of trustees for one hour at 11:15 a.m.

Lady Brabourne will join her father for lunch at the college at 12:15 p.m. Mountbatten will tour the college until 5 p.m. while his daughter attends a battalion parade at 2:45 p.m. at Work Point.

Then follows a short reception at the warrant officers and sergeants' mess. Guests will include serving and retired senior non-commissioned officers and their wives.

Lady Brabourne will also visit the Protestant chapel and the wives drop-in centre.

At 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Lady Brabourne will attend an informal Pacific coast supper at the officers' mess.

Mountbatten will visit Royal Roads Military College on Thursday to speak to the officer cadets and the naval officers training centre's officers at 10:30 a.m.

Mountbatten and Lady Brabourne leave Victoria International Airport at 3 p.m. that day. There for the departure will be a PPCLI guard under the command of Major G. O. Manning, and the Naden band.

Prior to coming to Victoria, Lady Brabourne will present new colors to the regiment's 1st Battalion in Calgary and visit the 2nd Battalion and operations unit at Camp Wainwright.

She is a cousin of Prince Philip, godmother to Prince Charles and goddaughter of the late Lady Patricia Ramsay, the regiment's first colonel-in-chief.

TWIRLERS TO COMPETE

The B.C. Preliminary Pageant for baton twirlers will be held in Victoria at the Spencer Secondary school starting at 9 a.m. May 22.

Twirlers will toss their batons in four categories ranging from Little Miss to Senior Miss Queens and the winners will go on to represent B.C. at the USTA International Pageant in Denver, Colorado.

Soldier Trapped Upside Down

FORT HOOD, Tex. (UPI) — Overlooked by searchers, a young soldier spent 11 hours trapped inside a submerged, inverted armored personnel carrier, and emerged unhurt.

Two other soldiers were listed as missing.

Military authorities said Spec. 4 Rafael Pagan-Perez, 22, of Castana, Puerto Rico, survived his ordeal by breathing air trapped within the tank-like vehicle.

WORK FOR WEEK

Hardy annuals such as snapdragons, alyssum, dianthus (pinks), pansies and sweet peas can now be planted into garden from coldframes, greenhouse (if hardened first), or bought. the more tender annuals must still have protection from cool nights.

Encourage dryness in poinsettia pot for about 3 weeks. Then cut stems back to low growth buds and water again.

Sow seeds of New Zealand spinach, corn salad, endive. These like cool soil to start and warmth for growing.

Hand weed peas, early carrot and lettuce seedlings; put in twiggy branches for even the dwarf peas as support and for ease of later picking. Most edible pod peas need four-foot supports so that every pod can be seen as it reaches an inch length for picking.

Continue constant picking and use of new leaves from last fall's sowing of swiss chard and kale; this is the chance to get fresh greens before this season's are producing. It is the root vegetables which should not be used in spring after new leaves expand. Root vegetables, chopped, go into composting.

Separatism Cultural Suicide: Tory MP

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Quebec will commit cultural suicide if it separates from Canada, Hamilton West Conservative MP Lincoln Alexander said Friday.

"Without the protection of the rest of Canada, Quebec's culture would be destroyed, its economy would be destroyed, its language would be gone," he said.

"The Quebec people must understand that without Canada they can not survive."

Alexander made the comments in an interview. He was in Victoria to address a $100-a-plate Conservative Party fund-raising dinner at the Oak Bay Marina.

He said all of Canada is under heavy cultural pressure from the United States but we manage to survive through our mutual association.

"We are like a family that protects the French-Canadian and all other minority groups in Canada."

Without this family protection, he said, Canadian minority groups would be swept up in the North American melting pot and would lose their separate identities.

"It is not Mr. Levesque and the Parti Quebecois we have to talk to but the Quebec people. They must be told that Canada has to hold together but we can also be flexible. Changes should be made to give all provinces a larger role. There must be more consultation and sharing of powers."

Alexander said the federal government acts like a dictator at federal-provincial conferences.

"They are not conferences at all. Ottawa comes in and says what plan do you like: A, B or C? By the way, we like A.

"Ottawa has already decided before the conference begins. The provinces can take A or it's no deal.

"We believe this should be changed. We believe the federal government should give the provinces a larger say, especially in matter relating to communications, urban affairs, social security programs and immigration. These are things that affect the local community."

Alexander said the Conservatives should be given the opportunity to unify the country.

"Trudeau was elected in 1968 as a messiah who would keep Canada together. But a separatist government has been elected in Quebec. It is clear that Trudeau has failed."

Alexander said he does not expect Trudeau to call an election this year despite the latest Gallup Poll showing the Liberals in front.

"It would be folly for anyone to call an election on the basis of one poll. I expect he (Trudeau) will wait for several polls to see if a trend has been established. I do not expect an election before early next year."

Normally, the government would call an election some four years after the last election.

Alexander, the Conservative party critic on manpower policies, said Ottawa needs a two-pronged attack on the problem of unemployment.

KILLER BEES LOSING STING

By ALFONSO CHARDY

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Killer bees, a nuisance to man and beast in South America, may someday turn gentle through mutation, says Argentina's top bee expert, Moises Katzenelson.

The change may come about in 30 to 40 years because of cross-breeding techniques being conducted between killer and calm strains, said Katzenelson, a member of the government-run National Agricultural Technology Institute's entomology division.

Ironically, it was through a sort of mutation that the killer bee threat arosetwo decades ago when an American geneticist, Dr. Robert Kerr, introduced an African variety of bees into Brazil to cross-breed them with local strains, apparently to obtain more honey.

By accident, 26 African queen bees escaped and intermingled with local strains, thereby creating the killer. Since then, these bees have spread through Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay, Peru and as far north as Venezuela.

Katzenelson says his only answer to the bee problem is to transform the killers into peaceful bees by introducing the calm-strain characteristics into the aggressives.

He said there are limited funds and manpower in the fight against the bees, apparently because the government considers the bee question less vital than the struggle against leftist guerrillas and the improvement of the crisis-riddled economy.

Nevertheless, the problem has gained notoriety in Argentina in recent weeks after a spate of attacks in northern tropical regions where the bees thrive. Havoc has been inflicted on the bee industry because the killers infiltrate and take over gentle beehives.

Retardation Week Marked

Mental Retardation Week begins Sunday, and in an effort to increase public awareness of mental retardation, the Victoria association is holding open houses at all its facilities.

The Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded grew from a meeting of about a dozen parents in the spring of 1955 to a registered association that operates dozens of programs today.

The association was launched by the "few founding members, who although lacking in knowledge of this subject, made up for this in determination to make a better world for their retarded children," says Duncan Macphail, one of the original members.

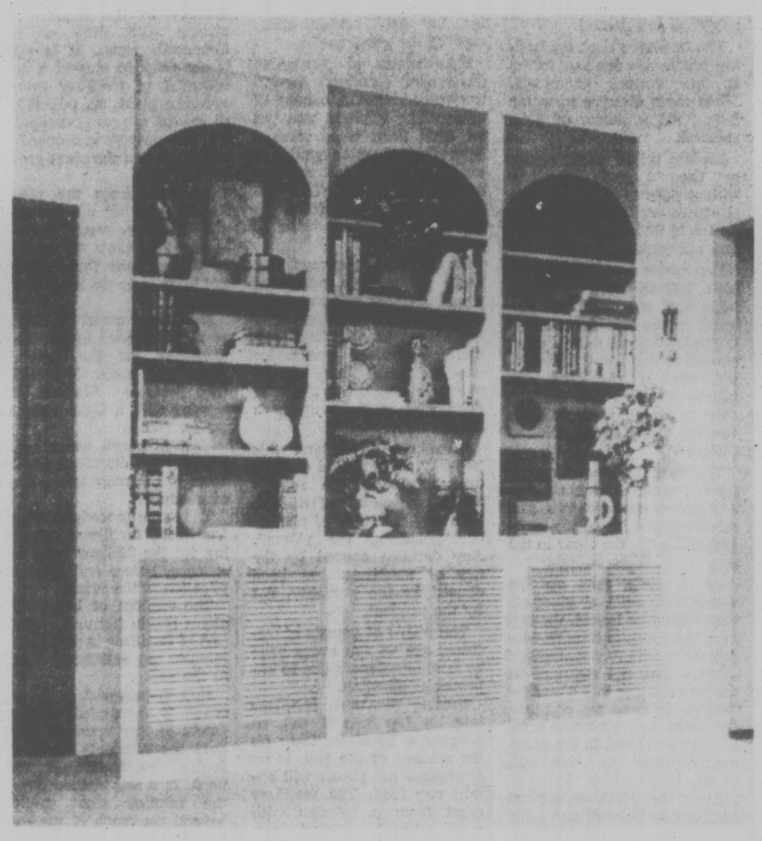
The association's first objective was the education of retarded children.

The open houses will be held at the following centres on Wednesday:

Winifred Clark Centre, 3881 Cedar Hill Cross Road, 9:30 a.m. to noon; Langwood Workshop, 2720 Jacklin Road, Langford, 10:30 a.m. to noon; the Mount Newton Cross Road residence at 936 Mount Newton Cross Road from 10 a.m. to noon.

The Group Home at 1112 McKenzie from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.; the Hayward Heights group home (Bishop Cridge Centre) Kings at Cook, from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.; Community Explorations, St. Barnabas Church Hall, 1901 Belmont Ave., from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

G. R. Pearkes Clinic, 10 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.; Wee Bit Worn Shoppe, 1301 Gladstone from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Victor School, 2222 Victor from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. Dogwood School (Langford) 2720 Jacklin from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.; Corner House Group Home, 1703 Davie from 10 a.m. to noon; and Glendale Lodge Hospital, 4464 Markham Rd. from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.



IF YOU WOULD LIKE a bookcase with plenty of style and storage, this project will fill the bill. The plywood arches and stock louvered doors take it far beyond the ordinary in up-to-date good looks. And you can change its mood from warm sophistication to bright gaiety with a coat of paint. There's room on the shelves for a library of books, plus the accessories to make the whole wall a show place. The base cabinet gives you space to keep track of everything from records to toys and all the odds and ends in between. To order the bookcase pattern No. 30031, send $2 cheque or money order plus 50 cents for postage and handling to: DECO-PLANS, Victoria Times, P.O. Box 90, Boucherville, P.Q.

Room to Breathe . . .

EDMONTON (CP) — There will be more breathing room per passenger on Edmonton Transit's new rail cars than on the latest new buses to hit city streets.

However, the difference is marginal. Calculations show a rapid-transit car packed to the recommended 185-passenger capacity will offer 3.65 square feet per rider.

The new buses can handle 110 passengers, or approximately one for every 3.2 square feet of floor space.

The transit system has ordered 14 cars measuring 75 feet long by nine feet wide by 11 feet high from Siemens-Duwag of West Germany at a cost of $4 million.

The first two cars arrived in Vancouver from Hamburg in early April and were shipped on flat rail cars to Edmonton.

The latest report from transit planners indicates test trains will be operating in the city's new $65-million light rapid transit system during this summer's Klondike Days. The system is expected to be in full operation late this year.

Questions About MPs' Questions

By KEN POLE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There is, every day in the House of Commons, a period of about 45 minutes when Members of Parliament from all parties can ask questions of the federal cabinet.

The curious thing about the daily Question Period, however, is that the ministers are under no legal obligation to answer the questions. There is only moral suasion and the possibility of defeat in the next election if he or she appears too arrogant.

Some of a minister's reluctance to answer questions obviously is just plain old-fashioned bloody-mindedness, but often the answer that's required would, if given verbally, take too much time. Whenever this happens, the questioner generally is asked to put it in writing and what happens then is that the government will usually answer in writing.

In the current 30th Parliament, for example, there were more than 5,000 questions placed on the Commons order paper in the first session, which lasted about 23 months. The second session began last October and, by the end of last week, nearly 2,500 written questions had been filed. It's a never-ending assault on government research staff and the cost of answering these questions, naturally enough, increases steadily.

A firm dollar figure is difficult to come up with these days, simply because the government, at least officially, doesn't keep track of it. About two years ago, however, it was disclosed that the average cost to the taxpayer of answering written questions was about $80. But this was only if the question involved one department. If a question needed information from every department, the cost multiplied by the number of departments.

It probably is no surprise that an opposition MP should be the most active questioner. In this case, Progressive Conservative Tom Cossitt, who represents the southeastern Ontario riding of Leeds, is champion. His tally for the first session of this Parliament was 660 questions — about 13 per cent. So far in the second, he has put 224 questions on the order paper — about nine per cent. Look at it this way: one lone member out of 264 has asked more than 11 per cent of the 8,840 written questions in the current Parliament.

Cossitt, a former vice-president of the Ontario Liberal Party and twice a member of the federal Liberals' national advisory council, renounced his Liberal ties in 1972 and, once elected a few months later, became a vociferous critic of the Trudeau government in general and the prime minister in particular.

But while Cossitt asks a lot of questions, he's not alone. Other Conservatives put many on the order paper and so do Liberals, whose champion undoubtedly is Harold Herbert, who represents the Quebec riding of Vaudreuil.

By his own count, Herbert put about 300 written questions to the government in the first session of this Parliament "and God knows" how many in the second session so far, although "it's always almost as many as Tom Cossitt."

Herbert, like Cossitt and other MPs, complains about the government's delay in answering questions, delays that can stretch to many months in some cases. For example, he says, he has had questions about deputy ministers' appointments on the order paper since last Dec. 21, with no sign of a reply yet.

While people such as Cossitt and Herbert are convinced that their quest for information is legitimate, one of their colleagues is fed up with the way just a few MPs tend to dominate the order paper.

This is Quebec Liberal Marcel Roy, who says the four parties in the Commons should only be allowed so many questions each and it would be up to each party to apportion them to its members.

"But if an MP puts 500 questions on . . . I think you'll realise the situation."

Roy himself has put a question on the order paper about this very issue. He has asked how many questions have been put on the order paper in this Parliament, what the party breakdown is, which MPs have put more than 500 questions on, which questions have cost most and least to answer and what the average cost has been?

The answer to the first part is easy, say House of Commons staff, but the rest pose a problem since no such statistics are kept, except perhaps by the departments and parties involved.

Discover America or see world?

ON THE GO with Jerry Hulse

The season is approaching when vacationers begin asking themselves a familiar question: Discover America or see the world?

While Europe, the Orient, South America and the Pacific are selling us on exotic vacation ideas, the pitchmen for Discover America are heating up a campaign of their own.

On both sides of the ocean, offers this summer's traveller flipping through dozens of tour folders.

Already one thing appears a certainty: 1977 is shaping up as the biggest travel year in the nation's history.

Tour operators are predicting that as many as 4 million Americans will travel just to Europe this year.

One of the biggest boosts for foreign travel came with the CAB approval of the Advance Booking Charter (ABC), which places Europe as well as other destinations well within the reach of millions of Americans who merely dreamed of distant places before.

As an example, travellers can now jet to London, Paris or Frankfurt for under $400. Or to Hawaii for $169.

Likewise, mainland destinations are included in the inexpensive ABC plan.

Under the ABC program, round trip flights to New York are available for as little as $179. Responding to the competition, the scheduled airlines have joined the low-cost travel war by offering heavily discounted California-New York fares, a move that is drawing unhappy responses from the wholesalers.

Meanwhile, the traveller benefits.

Domestically, dozens of tempting packages are on the books that comes out to $585 for nine days, including the round-trip flight from Los Angeles to Vancouver to meet the ship.

At the same time, bus companies are bannering Discover America tours ranging from Yellowstone and the Grand Tetons to cross-country tours to the south.

A special $50 fare from Los Angeles to New York on Greyhound or Continental Trailways remains on the books until June 15, representing one of the season's best buys.

At the same time, both companies are promoting low-cost passes that are valid throughout their systems: Greyhound's 30-day Ameripass ($250) and Continental's 30-day Eagle pass ($225).

During the 1977 summer season, vacationers will retrace steps taken by other Americans during last year's Bicentennial, visiting New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., Colonial Williamsburg and other historic destinations.

Even Las Vegas — that neon-lighted oasis of high rollers, luscious showgirls and well-heeled tourists — is putting in its bid for the summer vacationer with special packages.

Mention a faraway place and Americans get a faraway look in their eyes. Introduce some remote corner of the earth — no matter where — and chances are good that the first rubberneck on the scene will be an American tourist.

I'm convinced that if camel tours were offered across the Gobi Desert they'd run short of camels before they ran out of Americans to ride them.

The growing travel epidemic was touched off by several factors. For one thing, Americans today have more money and longer vacations. Much of this attention to the travel scene began, too, with the birth of the jet — this desire to escape, to find new adventures. Suddenly no place in the world was more than a few hours from home. Not London or Paris or Rio. Not Tokyo or Taipei, Tahiti or Trinidad.

Still another item influencing the growth of tourism is the idea that travel is a buyer's market today. Wholesalers are packaging tours that are available to the masses, not just the affluent traveller. Name a destination and chances are the dream merchants have tailored a tour to fit it.

There's always the possibility, of course, that someone may have overlooked your particular place in the sun. Possible, of course — but I doubt it.

Fun in Jamaica: climbing the falls

It is Dunn's River Falls.

The crisp cool waters start their journey in the mountains and rush through the forests and plantations around Ocho Rios until they cascade onto the beach just west of town. One of the biggest thrills of a visit to Jamaica is to brave the pounding waters and climb the falls.

There are changing rooms and lockers available at the beach at the base of the falls for visitors, and guides are on hand to help inexperienced falls climbers up the cascades. There is a small fee for the beach facilities, and the guides appreciate a tip after the climb.

Jamaican children play in the pool at the base of the falls as visitors start their climb up the falls. The foaming white waters splash and spray over the rocks and into deep pools. The steady hand of the guide is reassuring as the climber makes his way up the slippery rocks and through the swirling waters.

At one point a natural chute provides a thrilling slide down the falls into a foamy pool, and at another bathers can roll off the brink of a cascade into its pool below. The swirling waters make a perfect whirlpool bath, and the waters rain down, making a natural shower.

Duck into a tiny cave behind a falls, or just lie back in a cascade and let the pounding waters tingle and massage tired muscles.

The wedding-cake-tiered falls rise some 600 feet, and run for several blocks, so plan to spend a little time on the climb. Be ready to get soaked. Although the guides can get to the top without getting more than their feet wet, half the fun is plunging into the cool waters and splashing in the pounding waters.

Mother Nature has been generous to Ocho Rios, giving her a second natural wonder. The Green Grotto and Runaway Caves are situated along the main coast road two miles east of Discovery Bay and a short drive west of Ocho Rios. Here she has created caves unlike almost any in the world.

An adventure with high stakes

TRAVEL TIPS

By Stan Delaplane

Capitan Julian Rios Gordon has been piloting boats on the upper Amazon for 30 years. A lot of it on the thumping old Adolfo. It was built for this river work in Glasgow, 72 years ago.

The Capitan — the name Gordon comes from an English grandfather) — is short, dark and beak-nosed. A jaguar tooth hangs around his neck — very macho.

In the evening he plays poker — five card stud — with the passengers. All of us soaked in mosquito repellent. Bottles of cold San Juan beer from Pucallpa sweating on the tables.

The Capitan hauls in pots: "Suerte con amor, dinero y barques!" he says hammering a beer bottle on the table. 'I have luck in love, with money and with boats!"

Right out of a B movie: Jungle Passion.

It costs $350 for six days on the Adolfo. (It's no QE II but the Capitan is a snappy dresser. Changes clothes three and four times a day.)

He keeps his poker winnings — Peruvian, Colombian, Brazilian and U.S. dollars — in a black leather portfolio. Uses it as a pillow when he sleeps.

At night the Adolfo's only navigation instrument is a seven-battery flashlight held by a young boy in the bow.

Crunch! Thud! Chairs and table lurch. The Amazon's in flood now. And we've smashed into the jungle again. The Capitan shouted. A crewman got a line around a tree. The muffler was choked with floating debris. The Adolfo wheezed in 72-year-old distress.

The Capitan did not falter. He ordered the messboy to break out beer for everybody. Then he got his pal, a quiet, sentimental man, to bring out his harmonica.

So we sat, shipwrecked in the jungle, while the harmonica played Silent Night. Then Home On The Range and La Paloma. And as an encore: Deep In The Heart Of Texas.

After a while they worked the Adolfo free. And we floated down the river making extraordinary bets on our poker hands.

Sounds like a Tom Swiftian adventure story. But the Amazon trip — (every two weeks) — can be bought from all travel agents. You fly into Lima, Peru from the States on Braniff.

Local lines fly you to Iquitos, a fair-sized city on the edge of the jungle. The trip is handled by Wrightways (based in Burbank, CA.) and you stop at several of their jungle camps on the way.

These are screened and airy. You can get iced drinks. The food is good.

At stops along the way, you walk to Indian villages. Trade nail points for miniature blowguns.

Bring plastic bags. Sweaty clothes don't dry in this hot, drippy climate. Bag what you take off. Have your laundry done back in Lima.

Tennis shoes: Best for jungle walking. You dry them down in the Adolfo's engine room.

Sweat bands for head and wrists. The kind you buy in a tennis shop. Especially if you're using a camera.

A flashlight. Mosquito repellent. Spray-on. Take the bottled rub-on kind, too. The spray-on is not as strong.

Guides take you on jungle walks. There are snakes and fire ants — Don't touch anything. The guide walks ahead, swinging a machete.

We did some swimming in the river. Camp people said there are piranha fish. These are the little man-eaters that swim in thousands. Devour a grown man in minutes.

"But they like deep water and rocks," said the guide. "You can swim off the dock."

Back in Lima, the Maury makes the best Pisco sours in town. You may need it.

Royal Navy Launches Warship

BARROW IN FURNESS, England (Reuter) — The Queen launched the Royal Navy's first anti-submarine warfare cruiser, the 16,000-ton Invincible, at the Vickers' shipyard here.

The biggest ship commissioned by the navy since the 1950s, the Invincible will have cost about $170 million by the time fitting-out is completed in two years, unofficial naval sources said.

Although classed as a cruiser, the warship is in fact a small aircraft carrier designed to carry nine helicopters and five Sea Harriers, navy versions of the Hawker Harrier jump-jet aircraft now in service with the RAF and U.S. Marines.

The navy's last conventional aircraft carrier, the aging 42,000-ton Ark Royal, is due to be scrapped toward the end of the decade.

The Invincible, the sixth Royal Navy vessel to bear the famous name, will eventually be joined by a sister ship, the Illustrious, under construction at Swan Hunter's yard in the northeast English port of Newcastle, and possibly later by a third ship of the same class.

Japan's islands: Like a Garden of Eden

Giant volcanos, hot water geysers make them favorite tourist mecca

Long gone are the days when travelers went to Japan, had a look at Tokyo, with perhaps a quick two-day visit to Kyoto, and went on their way. As most people fall in love with this country, they now spend as much time here as they possibly can, and fan out to see something of the rest of these islands.

The island of Kyushu, most southwestern of the group, is Japan's version of the Garden of Eden, or the French Riviera. It was here that the first Japanese lived and worshipped the gods whose presence caused the earth to shake and erupt in molten lava. Those strange things are still happening. Archeologists have discovered evidence of this country's oldest communities here, and it was evidently the first part of Japan to trade with China and Korea.

The northern part of Kyushu, around Fukuoka, is one of Japan's most important industrial areas, but most of the island's belching fire does not come from factory chimneys. It comes from giant volcanoes and countless hot water geysers locally called Jigoku, or hells. The pleasant combination of hot springs and mild weather all year makes Kyushu a favorite resort area. Accommodations in hotels and ryokans, both western and Japanese, are among the best in the country.

Nagasaki, one of Kyushu's most important cities, has always attracted foreigners. When Japan was opened to the West a century ago, Nagasaki was one of the treaty ports where Europeans, Russians and Americans were allowed to live and conduct business. Among them was an Englishman named Glover, who married a Japanese girl and built a mansion on one of the hills that remind people of San Francisco and its harbor. That house is now preserved as the oldest western house in this country, and it is more than likely that it provided the model for Pierre Loti, who wrote the story of Madame Butterfly while living in Nagasaki.

Although special touring arrangements are necessary on Kyushu, there's one well-organized itinerary and it is the International Tourist Route leading from Nagasaki to Beppu, reached via Unzen, Shimabara, Aso and Kumomoto. The best way to travel it is by bus or car as this part of the island is completely rural and the excellent roads enable you to see all the scenic beauties it contains.

About 90 minutes by car from Nagasaki is Unzen, reached by passing terraced mountains and rugged cliffs. The town is built on top of hot springs in which tourists take very hot baths. They can also have pictures taken, while standing in the middle of smoking hells, and buy eggs that have been boiled hard in hot puddles.

Although Japan has many aerial trams, the one near Unzen is among the best. You follow a road of zigzag hairpin roads through forests of pine trees for 30 minutes to reach it. At Nittatoge you take a three-minute ride in a neat blue gondola to Myokendake for an unforgettable view of Nagasaki, Mount Aso and the Amakusa Islands.

Shimabara is an hour's drive from Unzen, and there you can see 300-year-old houses where warriors once lived, and a splendid white castle. As you continue along the International Route, you cross the bay from Shimabara to Misumi by ferry or to Kumamoto by hovercraft. Although Kumamoto has wide, tree-shaded streets and some really swinging night clubs, it still resembles its proud past as a samurai garrison.

Another 90 minutes on roads through orange groves and old spa towns is Mount Aso, the number one hell in a land of infernos. Only a mile high, it is considered the biggest living caldera, or hole, in the world. The outer crater is 80 miles in circumference and contains five crater mountains. Each continually belches fire and smoke, and sometimes rocks and lava.

There are many spas in the Aso region but the most popular of them is Beppu, a two-hour drive from the crater. Beppu has almost 2,000 hot springs and 47,000 tons of hot water pour from them every day. Japanese visitors go to different springs, trying them all for bathing or watching.

In the wooded hills of Beppu's Takasaki Mountain Park are thousands of tame monkeys, which are spoiled and rather badly behaved to allow one visiting them. But their capering is great fun to watch and to capture on film.

If you continue farther south, you find that the terrain becomes more tropical, with palm trees among the cacti, fir and bamboo. The city of Kagoshima is known as the Naples of Japan because of its Mediterranean climate and off-shore volcano. Its most-visited building is a Catholic church, dedicated to St. Francis Xavier, who arrived in 1549, but the real local claim to fame is Sakurajima, the active volcano on the other side of the bay. Before 1914 it was an island but a devastating eruption that spewed ash as far away as Siberia joined it to the mainland with an overflow of lava.

Living, magical museum Venice is a rare sight

VENICE — The Grand Canal was a sea of wind-whipped whitecaps drenched in heavy rain and thick fog when our ship inched its way to a dock a stone's throw from St. Mark's Square.

A living museum whose magic components are often threatened by the waters on which it sits rather precariously, Venice is a sight to behold at any time.

But when shrouded by fog or bathed by rain, the soul of the place — its liquidity and surrealistic stage-like face — is yours to catch with more sharpness and dramatic impact than under any other climatic conditions.

The weather improved somewhat by the time we docked, though the slim black gondolas tied to poles the length of the three blocks between our ship and St. Mark's still bobbed wildly. Playing hide and seek with the fog were the familiar spire of St. Mark's Basilica, the tall granite columns that guard the Piazzetta (small square) next to the Doges' Palace, and other landmarks.

One of the most magnificent square's on earth, St. Mark's was all but deserted. The Gothic and Renaissance structures around us glistened beneath street and other lights we energy-conscious Americans found extravagant. The three sides of the vast Piazza shops under the arcades or showcased, for the most part, the glass, leather and clothing for which Italy is famous.

Next day dawned brochure-great.

It was time to see the 900-year-old Byzantine basilica — and everything else in and around the square — under glorious sunshine.

Lacking vehicular traffic (gondolas, launches and other water conveyances are not considered as vehicles by most Venetians, but rather as appendages of their community!), this town is made for walking. You can reach the key palaces, museums, churches and other attractions on foot.

Others, such as the great Gallerie dell'Accademia, the handsome San Giorgio Maggiore Church, the glass-makers on Murano and the original Byzantine cathedral on Torcello Island, are but a short vaporetto ride away.

There is much that is unique to this place described by travel writer Robert S. Kane as "a fantasy city come to life."

Take geography. Venice is made up of 117 islands connected by about 150 canals and 400 bridges.

Many of the buildings, especially some of the old and great palaces and churches, appear to our concrete-and-steel eyes as if about to crumble. Yet most of them have been around for centuries.

Within its compact central area, Venice houses more architectural, art and other riches than any other town in the world. It's all very solid, very old and very impressive. But, and this is yet another very Venetian characteristic, it all looks like a stage set rather than a real city.

Used to strangers dropping by since its birth some 15 centuries ago, Venice offers every type of accommodation possible — from modest to regal. Good restaurants abound, but some of the most famous eateries can put quite a dent in your budget.

Yes, Venice has its share of minuses.

There are times when the scents wafting up from the canals fall unpleasantly short of perfume; but it's only an occasional happening.

MAGNIFICENT SQUARE — Sitting at an outdoor cafe in St. Mark's Square, with its Gothic and Renaissance structures one of the most magnificent squares on earth, is popular with both Venetians and visitors.

Cruise opens remote Indonesian Archipelago

Indonesia . . . remote, unspoiled, beautiful . . . Land of the Lotus Eaters and haven for the world's escapists and dreamers who have sought, and found, their own version of paradise. This is the picture conjured to mind when Indonesia is mentioned, and not without good reason, for Indonesia is as close to paradise on Earth as one will find.

Long referred to as Oceania, by traders, seafarers and scientists, the Indonesian Archipelago, comprising some 998 islands, stretches for more than 5,000 miles across the equatorial seas of Southeast Asia to form a beautiful and unspoiled island world.

In a world of instantaneous communications, Indonesia is an anachronism. With the exception of a brief two-hundred-year span (beginning in the mid 16th Century), when the Portuguese, Dutch and other European colonial powers, lured by the promise of rich spices, penetrated the veil of her anonimity, Indonesia has largely been left in the quiet slumber of the bypassed and forgotten.

Even today while commercial crossroads have abruptly brought her capital of Jakarta into the 20th Century world, the vast panorama of islands that form the heart and soul of Indonesia remains a timeless monument to nature in its primeval state.

Until recently, it had never before been possible for travellers to visit the remote outislands of the Indonesian Archipelago.

Commencing in the autumn of 1976, World Travel Associates, Inc., the Florida-based luxury cruise operator, will offer a series of special cruises to pioneer exploration of the remote corners of the Indonesian Archipelago, and provide travellers with opportunities to enjoy extended inland travel to view the fascinating cultures of Tana Toradja in Northern Sulawesi and the great Buddhist monument — the Borobudur — located in central Java.

Answers Torture-Tested

TORONTO (CP) — Although buyers still rely on judgment and instinct to give their stores a leg up on the competition, an increasing number are flocking to the laboratory for help in evaluating the bewildering profusion of new products on the market.

In fact, those in the know say the man behind the microscope increasingly has the final word on what new products find their way to the consumer. For many major department store chains in Canada that man is Jim Boyd, president and founder of the Retail Research Foundation of Canada, a non-profit organization dedicated to punching holes in exaggerated claims of manufacturers.

Each day Boyd and his team of 15 scientists torture-test new products, pushing them to their design limits and beyond. They pound, rip, heat, cool, stretch and compress on their way to vetoing everything from temperamental toasters to shirts that shrink.

"Buyers may be knowledgeable about styling, pricing and general workmanship, but it's a rare byer who has the background to make technical comparisons between competing products," Boyd said in an interview.

Boyd, who first became involved in product research for major department store chains 10 years ago, said the impetus for the foundation came from recent changes in the Combines Investigation Act as well as legislation proposed by the federal consumer affairs department.

The law delineates responsibility for misleading claims in advertising, making the retailer responsible for any statments on the life or quality of a product "not based on adequate or proper testing."

Violations may result in prison terms of up to five years for senior officers of offending retail outlets, corporation executives included.

Since its inception last December, the foundation's find ings have resulted in the cancellation of international agreements worth more than $2 million because the products failed to meet either safety or reliability standards.

However, the foundation often finds that all that is required is a minor alteration — a stronger thread or sturdier buttons.

"It might add 10 cents to the final costs, but leaves the customer satisfied and the retailer confident," Boyd said. "It's not always the big whopper of a mistake, it's the little, nittygritty, everyday annoyance that irks the consumer."

Boyd said the foundation picks up where organizations like the Canadian Standards Association, whose primary concern is safety, leave off. For a $500 annual fee, plus a small charge for each item tested, the foundation supplies ratings on all aspects of a product's performance.

Boyd said he hopes the foundation's work will eventually eliminate unsatisfactory products from the market.

"If you have the right product to start with, merchandising it is easy. Trying to sell the wrong product is retailing the hard way."

WOUND COVER TESTED

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — A new agent for the rapid cleansing of weeping and infected wounds such as leg ulcers, gangrenous wounds and burns has been developed by the Swedish pharmaceutical company Pharmacia.

The product, made of dextran, a chemical of the polyglucose family, has been clinically tested for three years at 20 hospitals in Scandinavia, West Germany and France, Pharmacia said.

The principle on which it is based was discovered by Dr. Ulf Rothman of the plastic surgery department of Malmoe Hospital when he accidentally dropped a jar of dextran into water and watched the material swell as it absorbed the liquid.

Conventional methods for treating open wounds include ointments, dressings—which tend to adhere to wound surfaces and cause fresh damage and pain when removed—and antibiotics, which may produce resistant bacteria.

The new product, called Debrisan, is simply sprinkled on the wound. It rapidly absorbs the material exuded from the sore, including bacteria. When saturated it has the consistency of a gel and can be gently washed away. It can be applied several times a day.

New Zealand Launches Canadian Trade Assault

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — New Zealand is planning a major assault on markets in Western Canada, extending into 1978.

A seminar organized by the Export Institute of New Zealand in Auckland in April attracted 130 interested exporters. Views were exchanged and export strategy discussed under the title, Canada, a Significant Market.

As a result of the discussion, the Export Institute has decided to send an exploratory trade mission to Western Canada this October.

It will be followed by the mounting of a full trade mission, with live product promotions, in October, 1978.

The national director of the institute, R. M. Southcombe, commented that the large attendance at the seminar confirmed that exporters were keen to learn about Canada as a specific market.

The target in the next two years would be to develop exports progressively to Western Canada, primarily to British Columbia, but to use the West as a stepping stone from which to expand markets further into the eastern part of the country.

Southcombe said markets in Western Canada are less well served by other countries than those in the East.

Injury to His Back A Pain in the Neck

EDMONTON (CP) — It started on a cold Friday near Quebec's south shore.

Ted Davy was working for an Alberta-based seismic crew cutting down trees when his boots broke through hard-crusted snow and a pain stabbed into his back.

That was Jan. 8, 1971.

Six years later the pain persists and so does Ted Davy.

During those years he's been examined by doctors from Quebec to British Columbia; he's been committed to a mental hospital; he's been the centre of a judicial inquiry; he's existed for weeks on boiled potatoes and macaroni-and-cheese dinners; and for months he has slept under the dubious shelter of Edmonton's High Level bridge.

The pain in Ted Davy's back has become a pain in the neck—for himself and for everyone concerned.

The case made headlines four years ago. A provincial government inquiry looked into charges that Davy—who had twice in the past committed himself to psychiatric wards— had been tossed in Alberta Hospital Edmonton as what he describes as a "political prisoner."

The inquiry commissioner, Chief Justice J. V. H. Milvain, didn't see it that way.

But Davy, now 39, has tenaciously pressed on with his attempt to prove the government ganged up on him. He contends that in his attempt to have the Alberta Workers' Compensation Board help him, the government decided he was a nuisance and tried to discourage his efforts by putting him into a mental hospital.

He still is trying to assemble enough evidence to take legal action against the province.

During the two years that followed the unexpected pain in his back on that cold 1971 day, Davy engaged in a private war with the compensation board and the medical profession. He wanted compensation and surgery to repair a disc in his spine.

He was seen or had his case reviewed by more than two dozen doctors during the two years, an average of one new doctor a month.

The compensation board agreed to spinal fusion surgery and Davy was just hours away from the operation when he checked himself out of Calgary General Hospital May 13, 1971, complaining he lacked complete confidence in the nursing staff.

Davy settled on a lump-sum pension payment of $13,900, but the payment was quickly swallowed by personal debts and other expenses.

The Ted Davy case began to take shape as a public controversy in late 1972.

He had been lobbying at the legislature frequently during that time, and staff members there became concerned about his presence.

On Dec. 19, 1972, Davy was taken into police custody at the compensation board offices and committed to hospital under an emergency section of an old mental health act which permitted one doctor to examine and place a person in a ward for observation.

Thirty-five days later he was released. Gordon Taylor, member for Drumheller, raised the case in the legislature and a judicial inquiry was called by Premier Peter Lougheed.

Davy hasn't held a steady job since the pain began. He has subsisted during recent months by borrowing $5 a week from friends. He won't accept welfare.

At the inquiry Davy was a hefty six-footer. He has lost 30 to 40 pounds since then.

For months, in the spring, summer and fall, he has slept out under the south end of the High Level bridge, stretched out on an old piece of foam and covered by a large plastic sheet.

Today he is more fortunate. A friend has allowed him to stay in a house which is scheduled for demolition.

Davy says he hasn't taken full-time employment since the back problem developd because the nature of the damage precludes heavy work and he feels he can't devote himself to anything else but the investigation of his case.

He attacks the issue with formidable single-mindedness.

He carries everywhere a briefcase bulging with the papers, transcripts and documentary minutiae of his case, and he constantly sifts through the growing volumes of information in search of any detail he thinks might add to the vindication of his stand.

Lately he claims to have uncovered other evidence that could help his case against the government. But he needs money to carry on—$20,000 would be helpful.

Four years after the inquiry things have changed. The emergency section of the old act which permitted the committal is gone. So is the doctor who examined Davy initially. It was subsequently discovered the doctor wasn't a qualified psychiatrist.

Some things have changed, but Ted Davy carries on, briefcase in hand, up and down city streets.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETINGS

The draft Official Community Plan for the District of Saanich is ready for public discussion. If you are a resident of the Municipality, your comments are welcomed.

The Official Community Plan is general in nature and deals with the District as a whole. The public meetings will pertain to these overall Planning Policies. Specific, detailed, local area plans will be prepared at a later date.

A series of four public meetings have been scheduled in different areas of Saanich. Please try to attend the meeting closest to your home.

DATE:	PLACE:
May 12, Thursday	Claremont School, 4980 Wesley Road
May 17, Tuesday	Lambrick Park School, 4139 Torquay Drive
May 19, Thursday	Saanich Municipal Hall, 770 Vernon Ave.

All meetings begin at 7:30 p.m. Each meeting will include a brief presentation of the Official Community Plan, followed by opportunity for public discussion.

Copies of the plan can be viewed at any school or public library in Saanich, at the Municipal Hall, or at any Saanich Recreation Centre.

Festival Has a Lot to Offer

How many people who read this column from time to time regard themselves as music lovers? Most do, probably, the majority basing their claim on the facts that, (a) they like music, especially if it's more or less familiar; (b) they have a fereo and a fair collection of records and tapes; (c) they are symphony subscribers.

Well, all that is very easy and highly acceptable. It requires little effort, no self-sacrifice and no profound dedication. To be truly a lover of anything, from music to plants, means caring enough to make an effort, to relish discovery, to cherish and encourage all that is worthwhile in your field of choice.

Without those commitments love is a poor thing, shallow and of little value to anyone but the self-proclaimed lover.

The Victoria Music Festival brings these thoughts to the surface, but they are not new. It has been my observation over many years that in comparison to the richness of talent in this city there are pitifully few music lovers.

Over the last two weeks, for the outlay of 50 cents a session — less if you bought a festival pass — preumably interested persons could have heard a dozen enormously rewarding concerts by pianists, singers, string players and others.

Sure, most performers are students, but what impressive talent and training and how worthy of attention! And how very much it would have helped those young artists to have had the support of a little of your time, music lovers, with most of the rewards being yours in the end.

Beating a path to the Royal Theatre to hear symphony concerts is not enough by itself, without interest, curiosity and support for other musical events within the city. Discouragement because of lack of support has been a factor in driving away many rich talents that might otherwise have contributed handsomely to our cultural life, particularly the symphony.

Nothing that has been said here is apt to change the apathy that is recognized, especially by newcomers, as this city's prevailing sin. But it is a relief to feelings of frustration and irritation now and then to speak the unvarnished truth.

And that truth, to me and some others, is that 80 per cent of the concert-going public in Victoria is motivated by a kind of instinctive snobbery that needs a "NAME" and a pre-packaged reputation before it is willing to leave the TV and stereo for an evening.

Indignant phone-callers will probably point out to me that money is in short supply and only so much can be spent on culture and entertainment, so if they support the symphony that's all they can afford.

All right. But when better music than some you spent a lot on this winter was available for two weeks at the festival for peanuts, why weren't you there absorbing 10 times your money's worth?

The festival people shrug their shoulders. They're used to the situation by now and it makes little difference financially; somehow the operation always ends up on the right side of the ledger, being one of the best run organizations in the city.

Their only concern is for the performers who do so wonderfully well but would be much heartened by a show of interest from the public.

The fact that many people excuse themselves by explaining that they wait for the wind-up festival highlights program is in itself a condemnation. Once again they are demonstrating elitism.

Overlooked is the limitation of a two-hour program which can no way offer more than a slight summary of all that has been enjoyable and exciting in the two weeks.

This year's adjudicators altogether have been one of the best groups we have ever had. Profound in knowledge, eloquent and constructively critical, they have provided a banquet that many people, besides the entrants, would have profited from sharing.

Two of them — piano's Phyllis Schuldt and vocal Phyllis Thomson — have emphasized the value of the festival as providing a milieu for the student quite different from that of the studio or home. This is where the performer finds out what can happen — what he must learn to contend with in concert and international competition situations.

As for the competitors in this festival, generally the notable good will and friendly rivalry seemed to dominate proceedings. There were probably in fact, almost inevitably, some sensitivities jarred because criticism is never as easy to swallow as a spoonful of sugar.

But criticism is what the entrant in a festival should be seeking, not praise. Anyone among a student's friends and relatives will praise him; teachers and adjudicators must provide the objective analysis. The ones to be wary of are those who over-work the words "good" and "excellent" and enthuse too generally.

The last word from this column on this year's festival is reserved for the group of people who plan the festival through the year and give hundreds of hours of work to running it for two hectic weeks.

I'm sure there are groups in other fields as dedicated and pure in motive but from my personal observation there can be few as consistently devoted, unremitting in steering a complex operation, totally without any self-interest angles, mutually co-operative and devoid of the slightest sign of internal conflict as the Music Festival board.

Key people like Fred and Ada English, and many others, have been there for a lot of years with no falling off of enthusiasm. New blood is often added at the June annual meetings but there has never, in 27 years, been a major board shake-up.

A lot can be learned from the operation of the festival and it deserves at least a final hearty "hats-off" from the apathetic public.

'Gay Nineties'

Seniors of West Vancouver Leisure Living will bring their singing ukeleles to the Ephraim Evans Auditorium of Metropolitan United Church, 897 Pandora, Wednesday.

The program they will present is entitled The Gay Nineties and it will begin at 8 p.m. Donation of $1 is requested.

Reiser in Concert

Pianist Allen Reiser will be presented in recital by Victoria Conservatory of Music, Sunday at 3 p.m. at Craigdarroch Castle. A student-teacher at the Conservatory, former winner of the City of Victoria Medallion and a provincial finalist, Reiser will play works by Haydn, Berg, Beethoven and Liszt.

Few Hotels Likely To Profit This Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian hotels are facing hard times and few will manage to break even this year, Reginald Groome, president of Hilton Canada Ltd., said Friday.

Groome, who also is general manager of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, said in an interview that occupancy rates have decreased and the hotel industry is fighting a profit squeeze.

Hilton Canada owns two hotels, has a 50-per-cent interest in another and manages three more for their owners. Groome said that among those, only two, at airport locations, are making a profit.

He blamed the industry's sagging fortunes on higher operating costs, especially wages, the drop in United States convention business and an oversupply of hotel rooms.

Groome said that at one time labor took between 25 and 30 per cent of total revenue and it now averages more than 40 per cent.

UVic Theatre Students Off to Fort Steele

Nine UVic theatre students, most of them first and second year, have been formed into a troupe that will perform live theatre six days a week as the resident company at Fort Steele Historic Park near Cranbrook.

Dr. Murray Edwards, a visiting professor in the theatre department, and Tony Bukowiecki, a graduate, won a bid for the concession to Fort Steele's Wild Horse Theatre. Dr. Edwards won the concession over five other concerns after he spotted the advertisement from the Park Branch.

One of the understandings of the concession is that the government wants more than just a show. "It wants dramatizations that are rich with local history," Dr. Edwards says.

For this summer the Wild Horse Summer Theatre Company has come up with a western-styled farce about the Kootenays and gold rush days, entitled Bring 'Em Back Alive or The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch.

The play begins in the present with one character, the Professor, giving a slide show about the area's history. But before he gets very far into his lecture some of the characters on his slides slip off the screen and join him on stage to carry on extraordinary tale.

"It's an opportunity that can't be matched," says Edwards, a specialist in Canadian theatre history who, during his career, has been a touring actor and director.

"They'll work like professionals all summer, behind and on stage. Cast members will double in roles, share duties in the front of the house as well as backstage and act in the capacity of public relations officers around the park between performances."

Edwards is director of the company and Bukowiecki is company and stage manager. Company members are Gillian Barber (Victoria), Janice Dick (Edmonton), Michael Dyson (Duncan), Peter McGuire (Burnaby), Robert Metcalf (Nelson), Ross Nichol (Duncan), Brenda Seehuber (Vancouver), Paul van Duersen (Prince Rupert), and Randie Waldi (Nelson).

Students will be living in trailers provided by the Parks Branch, will receive regular wages and, under the contract, will share in any profits made over the summer. Edwards and Bukowiecki, as concessionaires, will be responsible for all aspects of the production and are expected to absorb all costs except for repairs and maintenance.

Sets will be created by the UVic theatre department and shipped to Fort Steele by truck. Rehearsals begin Monday and it is expected that the company will play at a Victoria school before moving to its summer location.

Formation of the Wild Horse Summer Theatre Company gives UVic its second summer company of students, the first being the Phoenix Summer Theatre on campus.

Dean of Fine Arts Peter Smith says Edwards has the full support of the Faculty of Fine Arts and the theatre department in mounting the project.

If it proves successful in the eyes of government and university, says Dean Smith, UVic would like to take it over in an official capacity in subsequent years.

"It's a wonderful development that could turn into a long-term link with the Kootenays," says Smith. The venture marks the first occasion on which members of the fine arts faculty have been involved in a project in the Kootenays.

Open Space Gallery Wins Council Grant

A Canada Council grant of $16,000 has been received by the Open Space Arts Society. Purpose of the grant is program assistance for Open Space Gallery and Secession Gallery of Photography, during the period of May, 1977 to April 1978.

The grant will cover operation overhead, artists' fees, the resident artist program and photography gallery costs. Open Space is a member of the Canadian Association of Non-Profit Artists' Centres, of which there are 22 across Canada dedicated to directly supporting community artists.

These new program directions for Open Space Gallery indicate a philosophical change from being simply a "booking" organization to production and direct artist sponsorship. Any artist interested in exhibitions should contact the gallery at its temporary address, 1960 Government, or phone 383-8833.

Lambrick Stages Oliver! In a 'Co-op' Production

Lambrick Park Secondary School is only in its first year of operation, but already it is celebrating the spring segment of the year with an event of considerable range and unique in its combination of staff, students and parents.

Under the over-all direction of Tony Nicholas, a full production of the delightful musical Oliver! will be mounted for four performances starting Thursday, at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School auditorium.

Total involvement in all aspects of the production makes it a somewhat rare event — talented staff and parents join students in major roles and parents under the direction of Rae Greenhouse have designed and constructed seven complete stage sets.

The community spirit involved in this new school's production has also included the brilliant champion pianist of the 1977 Victoria Music Festival, Walter Prossnitz, as leading pianist in a two-piano combination with Chris Morash, organist of St. Andrew's Cathedral. A pit band of Lambrick students will be lead by Fred Hangen.

Director Nicholas was formerly at Oak Bay, where he successfully staged You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, West Side Story and The Crucible, as well as a number of one-act plays during the last two years.

Tickets for Oliver! can be obtained from students and staff at Lambrick School or at the door on performance nights. They are general $2, students $1 and as this is the ideal family show there is a special $6 admission covering two parents and two or more children.

Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Sunday.

Heyerdahl Sails Again

LONDON (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl, the explorer made famous by his Kon-Tiki voyage across the Pacific Ocean, is planning a new voyage in a Mesopotamian type reed ship. He said he hopes the trip will establish that 5,000 years ago men were able to navigate large ships to given destinations in the Arabian Gulf and the Indian Ocean.

Europe Film Industry Takes a Nosedive

By HILMI TOROS

ROME — Western Europe's economic malaise has spread to its once flourishing and highly acclaimed movie industry, causing a decline in production, attendance and, by critical assessment, the quality of films.

In some cases it has also intensified the migration of producers, directors and stars to Hollywood.

An Associated Press sampling shows the crisis of the continent's motion picture industry is particularly acute in Italy, France and Germany, while in Britain the industry is counting on recovery based on devaluation of the pound.

Reasons for the slump range from the coming of age of Western European television and increasing films on TV to spiralling ticket and production costs. A renewed onslaught of highly publicized U.S. films also figures in the crisis.

"I always said," remarks Italian producer Carlo Ponti, "that when American film makers discovered America, we would be ruined. The truth is that they have discovered America as a subject and they have lots to say.

"We have reached the point that an Italian producer cannot worry too much about quality, but must make "commercial" films because of the cost factor."

Italy's film-makers pumped $144 million into 230 films last year — 60 productions fewer than planned and mostly cheap, fast stories and imitations geared for home consumption.

. . . subsidies needed

By mid-1976, according to the latest figures available, French production reached 69 and for the full year is expected to fall far short of the 182 films of 1975.

French Secretary of State Francoise Giroud says the industry needs urgent help from the government, which taxes the business over $300 million a year and pays none back.

Production in Germany declined from 113 in 1970 to 73 in 1975. The government's film subsidy office, which is trying to make West German films exportable, spends about $2.4 million a year underwriting film projects.

In Britain, which turned out 90 films in 1973, production stood at 70 in 1975, the lowest. But the drop in the value of the pround — from $2.03 to $1.70 in 1976 — brought fresh action to British studios. In addition, a government subsidy of £2.4 million for Britain's National Film Finance Corp. provided backing for new British films.

Movie attendance slipped in Britain from 143 million to 124 million in 1976, in Italy from 500 million to 450 million last year and in Germany from 160 million in 1970 to 128 million in 1975.

Europeans also are worried about their talent drain as some of the best depart for Hollywood. The U.S. film capital has found its newest stars in French actresses such as Marie-France Pisier, outstanding in Cousin, Cousine, Marthe Keller, starring with Dustin Hoffman in Marathon Man, and Dominique Sanda, being called the new Greta Garbo.

Complaining of high costs at home, producer Dino de Laurentiis has packed and left his native Italy. Similar reasoning forced French directors Claude Lelouch and Louis Malle and Greek-born Costa Gavras to shoot their films in Hollywood. And Federico Fellini said his next film will be a U.S. production.

There still are occasional hits, such as Lisa Wertmuller's acclaimed Swept Away and Seven Beauties and Bernardo Bertolucci's ambitious "1900." They are, however, considered exceptions.

Myrna Boorman and Syd Spencer in Lovers

WINNERS, LOSERS, LOVERS

The final play in Victoria Theatre Guild's current season, takes an interesting and somewhat unusual form. Lovers, by Brian Friel, a highly original Irish playwright, is made up of two pieces subtitled Winners and Losers. It is in effect, a diptych — a single picture painted on two hinged tablets.

Although the Victoria Theatre Guild production which opens Thursday at Langham Court Theatre has separate directors for the two parts, the intended unity of the parts has been kept strongly in mind. Jutta Woodland is the director of Losers and Denis Johnstone directs Winners.

An intriguing aspect of the play is its point of view: who wins and who loses. Friel has considered love from two opposing aspects and two couples — one is young, filled with a springtime freshness, the other autumnal.

The young lovers are played by Myrna Boorman and Syd Spencer; the senior pair by Marge Bridgeman and Alan Clews. The play will run through May 21. Box office is at Eaton's.

Tuba, Trombone and Flute In Concert at St. John's

An unusual concert featuring the sounds of tuba, trombone and flute will be presented at next Wednesday's recital at St. John's Church, Quadra at Mason. The artists will be Gene Dowling, Tom Eadie and Barbara Eadie, with Edward Norman at the piano.

The program, which begins at 8 p.m., will include a wide variety of music from Bach to Hindemith. Tubist Dowling and trombonist Eadie are principals with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and also teach at University of Victoria music department. Barbara Eadie also plays occasionally with the symphony. Norman is organist and choirmaster with St. John's.

Dancer-Choreographer Performs at Belfry

Judith Marcuse, one of Canada's foremost dancer-choreographers and a winner of the prestigious Chalmers Award for choreography, will present an informal performance at The Belfry Friday at 8 p.m.

She will be presenting seven pieces to music ranging from Schumann to Shostakovich, and providing commentary to demonstrate the range of ballet, modern and jazz.

Marcuse has worked as both dancer and choreographer with many international companies, including Les Grands Ballet Canadiens, Israel's Bat-Dor, Ballet Rambert and the Oakland Ballet of California. Recently she choreographed Belfry's hit show, Puttin' On the Ritz.

On Thursday she will be conducting two master classes for ballet teachers and advanced students. This event is offered by The Belfry with assistance of a special grant from the B.C. Cultural Fund.

Tickets are $3, students and Senior Citizens, $2.50. For reservations, information and registration for the master classes, call The Belfry, 385-6815.

Smoking No. 1 Health Problem

ATLANTA (UPI) — Cigarette smoking was branded Friday as such a big health problem in developed countries that its control could do more to improve health and prolong life than any other single action in the field of preventive medicine.

The lengthy indictment of cigarette smoking was made by a World Health Organization expert committee and published in a weekly report issued by the national Center for Disease Control, CDC and its National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health are cooperative agencies of WHO.

The WHO report said "smoking-related diseases are such important causes of disability and premature death in developed countries that the control of cigarette smoking could do more to improve health and prolong life in these countries than any single action in the whole field of preventive medicine."

The report said the increase in lung cancer deaths in those countries where cigarette smoking has been widespread continues without interruption. Death rates from lung cancer, it said, are 10 times greater in smokers than in persons who never smoked. But it said that for persons who have stopped smoking for 10 years, the lung cancer death rate approaches that of persons who never smoked.

It also blamed smoking for higher death rates from cancer of the larynx, pharynx, oral cavity, esophagus, pancreas and urinary bladder. Pipe and cigar smokes have elevated risk of developing cancer of the oral cavity, pharynx, larynx, and esophagus when compared to non-smokers.

Concerning coronary heart disease, it said long-term studies confirm that a cigarette smoker is more likely to have a heart attack and to die from coronary heart disease than a non-smoker.

Mothers who smoke cigarettes during the last six months of pregnancy have been found to have babies with a lower average birth weight than babies of non-smoking mothers, the report said. It said a higher incidence of infant deaths has been observed among babies of smoking mothers.

First Open Heart Society Branches Into New Fields

The First Open Heart Society of B.C. started out as a local organization of former heart surgery patients intent on encouraging others about to undergo this kind of operation.

That's still seen as their first task, publicity chairman Tom Gibson said Friday, but in the past year members have been putting money into allied heart projects.

The society has bought $11,000 worth of equipment for the cardiac unit at Royal Jubilee Hospital in the past few months and has pledged to buy another item worth $4,300.

At the request of Dr. George Woodwark, a cardiologist, the society has also aided the cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) instruction program taught at Camosun College.

CPR is a technique, using mouth-to-mouth breathing and rhythmic pressure on the chest, to keep vital functions of heart attack or accident victims going until professional help arrives.

The society has given $2,000 to support this teaching, Gibson said. A number of society members have completed an instructor's course in this kind of first aid.

The society will hold its annual educational seminar May 15, to include a tour of Jubilee's cardiac care facilities. Speakers at a session in The Empress after will be Dr. R. C. Smith and Dr. J. T. Wood.

Gibson said members and friends interested can contact Mrs. Peggy Staley at 479-3672. Tickets are $11 and include tour, seminar and dinner and must be arranged before May 14.

Ottawa Plans Drought Aid

OTTAWA (UPI) — Central Canada and most of the west are parched for rain and the federal and provincial governments are setting up emergency programs to head off the disastrous effects of a prolonged drought.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan pledged Friday federal aid to Northwestern Ontario, the three Prairie provinces and British Columbia in piping water, providing emergency supplies for livestock and drilling deep water wells.

"We realize that a major drought can still be averted if rain comes to the right areas at the right time," Whelan said.

"The general rain of the past few days has been a blessing. A few more like it during May and June could eliminate some of the concerns about dry conditions.

"However, a wait-and-see approach does not mean a wait-and-do-nothing approach. We have drawn up a plan for immediate action in cases of severe effects of dry weather on the Priairies, Northwestern Ontario and B.C.

Whelan said the federal government was working closely with provincial administrations on co-operation and cost sharing on existing and proposed long-range plans to combat drought.

"These include assistance for measures to keep up the quality and supply of water in streamflow and emergency help for livestock operations. We also plan to have a deep well drilling program in the Prairie provinces to help farms and rural communities in the event of serious water shortages."

Whelan said deep well drilling will begin immediately to increase water supplies in the Prairies, which have had only six inches of rain since last summer. Over three inches have fallen since Wednesday.

"Details of federal action and cost-sharing will be announced if and when we must relieve the effects of continued drought," he said.

"We are particularly keeping an eye on water and forage supplies for livestock operations because that has been the most threatening problem up to now, as well as the protection of forests."

Lifestyles for Better Health Keynoted as Main Lalonde Goal

By JIM ROBB
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadians can attain better health by changing their attitudes to life and illness, and the federal government is preparing to help them do just that.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde told the annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses Friday that Ottawa's health efforts would be concentrated in future on improving the physical and social environments of Canadians and getting them to adopt healthier lifestyles.

He said prevention of disease and ailments is the most effective form of health care, noting that the major causes of death and illness are automobile accidents, heart disease, accidents in general, respiratory diseases and suicide.

Hospitals, doctors, nurses and therapists can only influence these problems marginally, he said.

The patient care system . . . can only treat and alleviate suffering . . . it can do little to get at root causes."

Lalonde listed alcohol abuse, excessive speed and unfastened seat belts as the major factors in vehicle accidents; smoking, poor diet, stress and lack of exercise as major contributors to heart disease; excessive drinking and negligence as factors in accidents; and smoking and air pollution as causes of respiratory diseases.

Getting into prevention is going to pose difficulties for government, he said, because it involves social systems other than the conventional health system.

And it will be tough to change ingrained cultural and social habits.

Changing attitudes is a "perplexing question," Lalonde said, and there is the question of how far the government can go in trying to persuade Canadians to change their attitudes on health matters.

"Individuals have a personal responsibility for their own health," the minister observed. And he called for changes in the way people view mental illness and breakdown.

"With suicide as one of the five big killers in the country, much more compassion and assistance must be given to those experiencing mental problems."

Employers and educators need to take more responsibility for employees and students to maintain a high level of health in workers and inculcate good health habits in young people.

Lalonde said he was encouraged about the possibilities for improving the health of Canadians by life insurance statistics.

He said all major companies reported extremely low levels of mortality for 1976 and the trend is continuing. Some companies reported that mortality fell 75 per cent below the expected level.

The statistics are "only straws in the wind but they do suggest we are on the right track: society can reduce its health costs and improve the quality of life through changes in lifestyle."

Modular Tax Cut

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe Friday announced a sales tax break for buyers of modular homes.

Modular homes are basically the same as mobile homes, but are of heavier construction, conform to a different set of building standards and can be financed by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Under the tax break, a dealer selling a new modular home will apply the sales tax only to the cost of materials. On a used modular home, the sales tax will apply only to 55 per cent of the purchase price.

A $10,000 OFFER . . .

Ten thousand dollars is offered to anyone who designs a machine which can control the growth of Eurasion water milfoil in Okanagan Valley Lakes.

Environment Minister James Nielsen announced the design and engineering contest in Kelowna.

But inventors have a little more than a month to submit entries. Deadline is June 15.

If the designer can build the machine and demonstrate that it really works, there's an extra $50,000, he said.

The minister recently approved the use of a poisonous chemical to control the weeds in the lake, despite strong opposition from many people.

Indian Band Loses Appeal To Keep Highway Crew Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Lower Nicola Indian Band lost an appeal Friday to the British Columbia Supreme Court to keep highway department crews off the Nicola Valley Indian reserves.

Mr. Justice D. E. Andrews ruled the provincial government has the right, under a 1938 land conveyance it made to the federal government, to use what is needed for a public highway, to run 50 miles north from Merritt, about 120 miles northeast of Vancouver, to Savona.

The judge ordered that highway survey crews be allowed to return and complete the work they were forced to give up in September, 1975, when confronted by Indians.

The band claimed the highways department illegally entered the reserves, through which a 14-foot-wide public road runs, in order to widen and realign the route.

It said the government could not do this without permission, either from the band or from the federal government.

The provincial government, represented by C. C. Locke, contended that in 1938 when B.C. conveyed all of the provincial Indian reserves over to federal jurisdiction, it reserved for itself the right to resume one-twentieth of any reserve for necessary public purposes.

The band claimed that in resuming land for the highway the government was in effect illegally expropriating additional land.

It argued that federal and provincial orders-in-council dealing with the right of B.C. to resume use of portions of the reserves for public purposes were invaled.

Defence counsel L. P. Page said appeal papers will be filed next week. He said Indian chiefs elsewhere in the province are upset at the decision.

$195,200 Fire Cost

The province has spent $195,200 so far this year to fight the 219 forest fires which have started since January.

A B.C. Forest Service release Friday said there were only 154 forest fires in the first four months of 1976.

The Vancouver forest district, which includes Vancouver Island, has had only eight fires so far this year compared with 89 in the Nelson forest district and 71 in the Kamloops district.

Brilliant green wildly printed with blue . . . or a striking blue with purple print . . . Another style is a scoop-necked dress in orange and rust, with the new full sleeve with tight cuff . . . very fitted bodice and soft skirt . . . a slate grey dress with gold and rose print has a small cape across the back . . . a reed-slim dress in deep navy with red poppy print has a deep-collared neckline, very high empire waist . . . A beautiful turquoise green with fitted blouse has a French pouffe shoulder, long wide sleeves . . . These MacTac dresses are in softly-draping Quiana . . . washable . . . wonderful travellers . . . Something very different in sunglasses . . . Polaroid and Givenchy . . . plastic lenses . . . French styling . . . smart cases . . . Gibson's, 708 View St., 384-5913.

Shedding light on the bathroom . . .

Bathrooms are really coming into their own these days and being made more and more attractive . . . but we've noticed that their lighting fixtures usually tend to be dull and uninteresting . . . So this week we made a point of seeing the bathroom lighting fixtures at Lighting Exclusive . . . and got a real eye-opener ourself in the process! . . . Lighting Exclusive's fixtures are downright beautiful . . . full of verve and imagination! . . . There are make-up lights in various multiples for putting around a mirror . . . either modern with chrome, like in a theatre dressing room . . . or in Florentine design and finish . . . Hand-painted glass bathroom wall brackets . . . others with three tulip glass shaded lights on arms . . . and quite a few ornate single brackets . . . Bathroom swags in sets of two are extremely attractive . . . There are about 22 different types of these, some frosted glass, some clear, others painted . . . We love the "honey bubble" swag in champagne colored French glass . . . More wall brackets made of crystal prisms sparkle like jewels . . . Various lighting fixtures have a Florentine finish in gold and white . . . In a word, there's the perfect lighting fixture for every type of bathroom . . . and if you'd like to shed some interesting light on your bathroom . . . we do urge you to go and see the tremendous variety at . . . Beston's Lighting Exclusive, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-0332.

Impacts has its own personal designer! . . .

We paid our first visit to Impacts 'n' Imports new store the other day . . . It's just a couple of doors up from the old one, and it's bright and fresh and roomy . . . guaranteed to make your shopping there more pleasant than ever! . . . And did you know that Impacts is the only store we know of in Victoria to have it's own personal designer? . . . She's Bonita . . . the charming gal who's been delighting Victoria women with her lovely custom-designed clothes for years! . . . She's been with Impacts for some time now . . . and not only will she design something exclusively for you personally, under the Bonita label . . . using your own material, if you like . . . but she'll custom-make anything in stock so it's completely right for you! . . . She designs a lot of the stock under the Impacts label . . . her latest contributions are a soft little tailored shirt in a drip-dry cotton . . . feminine tucks at the shoulder, and semi French cuffs . . . We saw these being made up in turquoise, grey, blue, a soft orange and a lovely yellow . . . A lot of hand work goes into these beautifully-made shirts, which we think are cheap at $34! . . . More of her in-stock designs are washable linen skirts and pants . . . the latter with two hip pockets . . . Skirts with little "car key" pocket and Dior pleat in front . . . Impacts 'n' Imports, 12 Centennial Square, 388-7023.

Go Sunflight this summer! . . .

The Sunflight brochure of holiday trips for summer 1977 is just out . . . and when we saw it in Paulin's last Monday we pounced on it with alacrity because we're such Suntour fans . . . having taken no less than three Sunflight tours to Europe and Hawaii in the past! . . . We certainly can recommend them from every point of view . . . Fine accommodations, smooth arrangements, good service . . . Never a care in the world when you travel Sunflight . . . We notice there are some new destinations this summer . . . as well as different itineraries for several previous destinations . . . Various tours to Hawaii, with a good choice of hotels . . . Waikiki alone . . . or along with Maui or Kauai . . . the Costa del Sol and Southern Spain holiday is a dandy . . . A week in Torremolinos and another week touring exciting Andalucia . . . Or Costa del Sol and Morocco . . . This one's pure magic, as we can tell you from personal experience . . . The coach tour in Morocco is memorable! . . . Then there are tours to Reno . . . to Reno and Lake Tahoe . . . A holiday in Disneyland and Southern California . . . And something new for the family . . . Motorhome holidays in California . . . You fly to L.A. and pick up your completely equipped motorhome which sleeps 4 adults and 2 children . . . This would be a great . . . and inexpensive . . . summer holiday for all the family! . . . Sunflight has charter flights to Hawaii and Britain too . . . See Paulin's soon and let them book you on a carefree Sunflight holiday trip! . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

Dresses so different they beggar description! . . .

It isn't often words fail us when it comes to describing something . . . but the new Jean Varon dresses we saw in Eaton's Townhouse this week are so very unusual that we hardly know where to begin! . . . There's a navy border print short cocktail dress with narrow straps . . . A big sort of square tying in back to form an overdress . . . A long black chiffon dress has a top made of two free-hanging rectangles with tassels on each corner . . . red and cream ribbon hem border . . . A black or brown and coral polyester jersey caftan-style dress with a sample black underslip . . . A navy chiffon with full skirt, narrow straps and a rectangle of chiffon in front, with tassels . . . Only a couple of each . . . and pretty sensational! . . . By Salvador of London there's a lovely long pure silk chiffon dress that reminds us of a midnight sky!! . . . Spaghetti straps on the dress, and a matching sheer overjacket with crisp white organdy collars and cuffs . . . A real honey, this one! . . . Saw a very pretty tiered dress in cream chiffon with cap sleeves . . . Same in a lovely green . . . For daytime, some Leo Chevalier designed Swiss cotton shirt-dresses . . . blue, green or brown with white pinstripes . . . white collars and cuffs . . . side slits . . . These look great as dresses . . . or as tunics over white pants . . . Eaton's Townhouse, 382-7141, loc. 367.

See these new items at Surgical Supplies . . .

Do your legs get tired . . . your ankles swell? . . . If so, we think you'll be interested in some new elastic stockings or pantyhose made in Switzerland and distributed here by Camp . . . They're called Belilah, and you'll find them at both of Surgical Supplies' stores . . . We're told that Delilah stockings give legs a wonderful, floating feeling . . . relieve tiredness and control swollen ankles and other leg problems . . . They come in a nice neutral shade that goes with everything . . . and not forgetting the menfolk who could do with some leg support, there's a new line of support socks called "Jobst-Stride" . . . They're knee length . . . come in brown, black, olive, burgundy, grey and white . . . and they definitely don't bind at the top! (Ladies are buying these too . . . to wear for golf, or with slacks!) . . . From the same maker comes a lighter-weight support stocking, pantyhose and maternity pantyhose . . . these strictly for the ladies, of course . . . We saw a new breast prosthesis called Replica which is less expensive than some others, and is really good . . . A nice soft sponge covering with a nylon cover . . . lightweight and comfortable to wear . . . And a new Wonderbra very suitable for mastectomy patients . . . Surgical Supplies Ltd., 1012 Broad St., 384-7196 and 1120 Yates St., 388-7181. Advertisement

Mrs. McVie's 'Good Works' Recognized

elizabeth forbes

ANNIE McVIE, right, received award from Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Council president, Avril Reid.

Annie McVie, well-known in this Greater Victoria area for her community spirit, her work in senior citizens' groups and her untiring efforts to help those in need, has been named by local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, their fourth annual First Lady of the Year.

The ceremony took place at the sorority's Founders' Day banquet in Craigdarroch Hall, University of Victoria, where a certificate of merit and an engraved rose bowl were presented to Mrs. McVie.

These mementoes have now joined others in the recipient's comfortable apartment on Richmond Avenue, all honoring her, for the many projects she has successfully spearheaded and the help she has given hundreds of people in the past 50 or more years.

There's the 1958 centennial medal, awarded for her "good works"; the Victoria Post, B.C. Native Son and Daughters Good Citizen of the Year award in 1964 and a certificate in which she is named an honorary citizen of the City of Victoria in 1975.

A treasured Esquimalt Women's Institute pin shows she has been a member of that group for 58 years. Five gold bars, each marking 10 years of active work, are attached to it.

"If all goes well there'll be another one very soon," she tells you.

Memories crowd close when she points to a framed scroll signed by Queen Elizabeth II, thanking her for opening her home to servicemen and women during the Second World War.

It was always "open house" at the McVies during those years and at a conservative estimate, some 10,000 men and women in the services were entertained there.

Mrs. McVie came here as an English war bride in 1919 with her husband and baby son James. They settled in Esquimalt and it was there that another son, Robert, and three daughters, Dorothy, Peggy and Barbara, were born.

Husband Robert (Bob) spent the next 30 years in the Canadian army, while his wife occupied her time — apart from raising a family — in community work.

She assisted in organizing the Esquimalt Community Club and when its founder, Lady Emily Walker, moved to Sooke shortly afterward, was elected president — a position she held for 20 years.

"We bought an old army hut and set it up as headquarters," she remembers, "and there we welcomed newcomers to the district and from there we went out to visit and help the sick in HMCS Naden and at Work Point Barracks.

"We campaigned for crosswalks in Esquimalt, too, and for conveniently-placed post boxes and public toilet facilities."

Eventually membership in this club dwindled. "We sold the hut," Annie McVie says, "and dispersed the funds evenly between the Heart Foundation, the Cystic Fibrosis Society and the Esquimalt Lions Club.

Almost before the ink was dry on those cheques, Mrs. McVie and the few remaining active members had joined with other community-minded people to organize a Senior Citizens Campaign Council of Greater Victoria, dedicated to helping the elderly in every way possible.

Offshoot of this group was the Senior Citizens Housing Society "which the council sponsored and paid the first registration fee."

Annie McVie formed a ladies auxiliary to that society "especially to find ways of providing the many extras needed for its first three housing projects for the elderly — Banfield Lodge, Townley Lodge and Lions Lodge."

Early this year, with only seven or eight active members to carry on its work, the Senior Citizens Campaign Council made the decision to "close shop".

At the urging of Mrs. McVie, who had acted as council treasurer for many years, a sum of $500 "in the kitty' was turned over to the Housing Society to be used in furnishings for the newest home for the elderly under construction at the corner of Collinson and Quadra Streets.

This energetic woman — now in her 80s — looks back on many more highlights in her busy life.

She was one of the first women to serve on the Esquimalt School Board. She once ran for alderman in that municipality "and only lost out by eight votes." She founded the Esquimalt Golden Age Club and then the James Bay Golden Age Club and, through the long-age Community Club, worked for a May Day celebration in Esquimalt and when it was authorized, convened that event for 16 years.

"We made the crown for our first May Queen (now the Buccaneer Queen) out of flowers," Mrs. McVie remembers, "and when we finally got around to having a formal crown I kept a box for bits and pieces of costume jewelry to mend and refurbish it, each year."

In the late 1960s Annie McVie was named the first senior citizens' counsellor in the Victoria area.

Today she is one of seven such counsellors — men and women — "who go to the elderly as friends to find out what they need and then to try and help them."

At the moment she is also secretary-treasurer of the Esquimalt Women's Institute; president of the James Bay Golden Age Club; a member of No. 1, Old Age Pensioners Association and of the Daughters of England lodge where she has been active for over 50 years and in which she has held every local office as well as being district deputy and trustee of the Grand Lodge.

Spare moments? When she has any she spends them with her family "all married now and living in Port Alberni, Qualicum, Lantzville and Victoria."

Then of course there are the 13 grandchildren, the same number of great-grands "and more on the way."

QUOTA OF KNOTS 10,000 PER DAY

ASHKHABAD, U.S.S.R. (NYT) — Red and yellow banners hailing the shock workers of Communist labor hung from the upright wooden looms. A hundred weavers sat two or three to a bench, their fingers flying across the stretched woolen strands in an effort to meet their individual quotas of 10,000 knots a day.

An older woman with a chain of glittering silver Iranian coins plaited into her gray hair beat down the accumulating pile with a "darak," a heavy wood and metal comb. Without looking up, her companion in a "ketenyi," a traditional Turkmenian dress, snipped the knots with scissors and a crooked knife. Like the others in the Ashkhabad carpet factory, they were building their design from memory.

Among the finest handicrafts left in the Soviet Union are the carpets of Turkmenia, a desert republic north of Iran and Afghanistan. Turkmenian carpets date back at least 5,000 years; Marco Polo remarked upon their quality when he passed through central Asia on his way to China 700 years ago. In more recent centuries, Bukhara carpets became known worldwide, though they were actually woven in Turkmenia and carried several hundred miles by camel caravan to be sold in Bukhara's bazaars.

Today, hand-loomed Turkmenian carpets are exported to 50 other countries, including the United States. Annatach Redzhebova, a slender dark-eyed woman who is the party secretary at the Ashkhabad carpet factory, estimated that the carpets sent abroad cost nearly $40 per square foot.

Turkmenian carpets are traditionally dark red, with distinctive "gyols" or tribal designs that can be blue, green, white and orange. Originally, the colors were produced from roots, vegetables and crushed insects but today synthetic dyes are used. The gyol varies according to the Turkmenian tribe and might represent a diamond, tree or serpent.

Making such a carpet usually takes a team of women three months. The weavers, who are matched for ability, progress a few inches a day. They must tie from 200,000 to 400,000 knots per square yard, although one Ashkhabad carpet had well over one million knots per square yard.

"You need patience and of course talent," said Mrs. Redzhebova, who herself started as a weaver. "It's all necessary, and a love for it too. If you don't love it, the carpet won't work out. You must have the idea that your carpet will last for a hundred years."

The best weavers are summoned for other artistic projects. Mrs. Redzhebova said that she had woven portraits of Lenin, Fidel Castro, the astronaut Yuri Gagarin and Charlie Chaplin. These were done on horizontal looms as the traditional carpets used to be.

Despite the tedious attention to detail, the weavers work a regular 40-hour week.

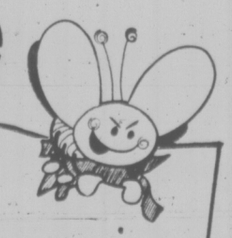
protective custody for your precious fur



Moths aren't the only things that will damage the supple splendour of your fur!

Storage in the home environment just can not ensure the right humidity and temperature levels to protect the suppleness of the pelt.

A plastic storage bag is the worst culprit for causing long term damage . . . excess moisture damages the pile, excess heat will dry and crack the pelt backing — either can lead to pile loss and eventual bald spots.

Your fur, secure in our vaults, will be safe from theft and vandalism too!

• Fur storage in our temperature and humidity controlled vaults
• It can be cleaned or repaired while in our care
• We fill pick it up and return it to you via bonded carriers

dear abby

DEAR READERS: Over the years I have had a recurring problem in my mail.

It may strike you as being rather petty, but it is of sufficient importance to have cropped up regularly. And oddly enough it's a universal problem, found in letters from Ireland, Italy, South America and the Middle East!

Because it concerns "Mother," I've selected this letter to publish on the weekend of Mother's Day:

DEAR ABBY: I am a newly married person and I don't know what to call my mother-in-law.

I can't address her as "Mrs. Smith" as I did before I was married. And addressing her as "Molly" would seem presumptious and lacking in respect.

She has asked me to call her "Mother," but my own mother is still living, and would have great difficulty calling anyone except my own mother "Mother."

Can you help me?—STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: I think I can provide a solution to your problem, and to all others who share it, by publishing a letter from a reader who wrote to me some time ago:

DEAR ABBY: I would like to help all young marrieds who find it difficult to address their mothers-in-law as "Mother."

When I made my first visit to the doctor's office after the birth of my first child, the nurse motioned to me and said, "Mother, you are next."

I knew she wasn't addressing me as HER mother.

Suddenly I realized that she addressed all of us with children as "Mother."

Immediately my vision was broadened, and I came to understand that "Mother" applied to all women with children. That was the moment I was lifted out of the narrow rut of thinking that the title belonged only to my own mother.

I soon put this knowledge to practice. When I wanted to attract the attention of friends, neighbors or even strangers, I would say, "Mother, watch your little one!"

You'd be surprised how quickly they reacted, having been reminded that they were mothers. The title is rightly theirs, and it never interfered with the special meaning it held for my own dear mother.

If we would all use the term freely, the next generation would learn from our example and thus alleviate a sticky problem.—BIRMINGHAM

DEAR ABBY: What is the significance of wearing a single carnation on Mother's Day?—MIMI

DEAR MIMI: A red carnation is worn to signify that one's mother is living. And a white carnation signifies that one's mother is deceased.

There should also be an identifying flower worn by those mothers who chose motherhood by raising a foster child, adopting a child or raising a stepchild.

And a special place in heaven awaits those mothers who chose an "imperfect" child, knowing that physically or metally handicapped children require not only special needs, but also a superabundance of love, understanding and patience.

DEAR ABBY: I invited 22 people to my home for Easter Sunday dinner at noon. Everyone but my husband's brother and his wife accepted. She said, "I'm sorry, I already promised my mother we'd go to her house for the noon meal, but we'll be hungry again at 7 p.m. so we'll come over to your house for leftovers. Okay, honey?"

No knowing what else to say, I said, "Okay."

Well, they came at 7 p.m. with three other couples I didn't even know, and cleaned me out of all my leftovers and ran.

I stood in my kitchen doing dishes until mighnight. I'm plenty burned up because I had plans for those leftovers.

I'll leave it up to you, Abby. How could I have gotten out of letting her come when she invited herself?—TUCKERED OUT

DEAR TUCKERED: Just because people invite themselves is no reason to make them welcome.

You could have said, "I'm sorry, but my dinner party is at NOON, and I expect to be tuckered out at 7 p.m., so let's make it some other time. Okay, honey?"

Recently you may have heard more and more people talk about orienteering. Do you know what is involved in this sport?

According to the 6-page bilingual folder "Orienteering . . . What It Is" orienteering is similar to car rallying, except that it is done on foot and you are both driver and navigator.

Orienteering meets are usually held from May to the end of October by the many Orienteering Clubs across Canada.

If you want to participate, you will be handed a detailed topographical map of the area concerned which is marked with checkpoints. With the help of a compass you are supposed to find your way to each checkpoint. The person who gets back to the starting point in the shortest time, wins.

Orienteering can be enjoyed by people of any age, but the young and middle-aged are most enthusiastic. Most of them say they like the sport because they have to think while they walk or run.

Another attraction of the sport is that it costs practically nothing. All you need is a pair of jeans, sneakers and a long-sleeved shirt. If you don't possess a compass, you can usually rent one at the meet. You will also have to pay a small entry fee.

If you want to learn more about orienteering, you can contact one of the provincial Orienteering Associations whose addresses are given in the folder. Write to: British Columbia Orienteering Association, c/o Anne Anthony, University of B.C., Faculty of Education, Vancouver, B.C. V6T 1W5. Don't forget to indicate your postal zone and please allow 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Migraine in Children? Indeed It Happens

your health

Have you ever heard of migraine in children? I was surprised when our doctor told us that our 4-year-old's headaches were migraine.—Mrs. D.I.V., R.I.

Dear Mrs. V.:

I wish, in your letter, that you had told me whether you, too, suffer with migraine. It is not uncommon for young children whose mothers get migraine to be similarly affected. A smaller percentage of children inherit this from their fathers.

When children complain of one-sided headache, associated with nausea and vomiting, with unexpected emotional reactions, migraine should be suspected.

It is well known that adults have attacks of migraine, precipitated by emotional and physical stress. Children, too, can have these headaches traced to tensions at school or at home.

Treatment is almost identical for both children and adults.

I'm more than 40 pounds overweight yet my doctor tells me that I'm anemic. Isn't that unusual for a fatty like me?—Mr. R. McN., Ohio.

Dear Mr. McN.:

There are dozens of different kinds of anemia. The exact one can be determined only through extensive studies of the blood. Consequently, it is possible that some form of anemia can exist in people who are overweight. There is no relationship between this added weight and the blood picture.

Your anemia can be controlled under your doctor's supervision. The same goes for your overweight.

Our son is planning to marry his second cousin. I don't want to interpose my fears on them. Yet I'd feel better if I knew there is no danger to the children when they arrive.—Mrs. T.M., N.C.

Dear Mrs. M.:

A reliable statistical study has shown that 95 per cent of all children born of a first cousin marriage were perfectly normal.

The chances of abnormality occurring in a second cousin marriage are distinctly less. Nevertheless, for your assurance, and especially for theirs, it would be wise to get the opinion of a genetic counselor. This new medical specialty thoroughly investigates, by blood studies and by family histories, the possibility of birth defects in any unusual circumstance.

Canada Packers Dropping Hogs

EDMONTON — Canada Packers is phasing out its hog killing operations at its Calgary plant, Agriculture Minister Marvin Moore said.

"My understanding is that they will be expanding hog operations in Edmonton and expanding the beef killing operations in Calgary," he said.

Moore, who had discussions with the company's general manager in Calgary, said there would be an addition of a boxed beef line in Calgary and substantial capital investment in both cities.

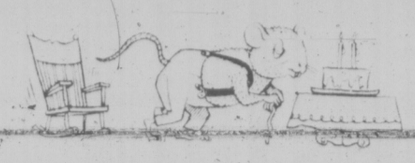
Why Does Mouse Get Cranky?

By Dr. FRANK MILLER



DEAR DR. MILLER: Timid, my mouse, still eats good, but otherwise he's changed a lot in the past couple of months. He spends most of his time either sleeping or being cranky. He's always hated other people, but he's never been grumpy with me before. It would have to be something besides old age, wouldn't it? We only celebrated his second birthday last week.—D.T.

DEAR D.T.: Odds are old age and related infirmities are indeed the primary problem. Timid's time is running out. Most mice are old at 2 months. Many don't make it to celebrate their first birthday, and mighty few make it to that cheesecake with two candles.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Several times in the past few months, our old cat, Minx, has had trouble with torn, sore toenails. I've noticed she catches her nails on things a lot, and I'm sure that's how she hurts them. She always used to keep her nails in such good shape. Why is this happening now? And is there anything to be done about it.—E.A.

DEAR E.A.: Two things happen to the older cat to render the toenails more susceptible to injury. For one thing, the nails actually grow longer. For another, the muscle-ligament retraction system which tends to keep the nails tucked back out of harm's way tends to become less efficient with age, allowing the nails to partially protrude. The above combination means long nails are out where they can be caught on a variety of things, including rugs. Consequences can be painful and sometimes serious.

Aside from keeping the cat in the best physical condition so that perhaps that nail-sheathing system may work more efficiently, you should also keep the nails closely trimmed. This removes the hook at the end of the claw, and greatly reduces the likelihood of its getting snagged, even if exposed.

ABBREVIATIONS THAT PUZZLE

KNIT and CHAT

By MAY E. MacLEAN

A reader has sent me a clipping from an old magazine of a very pretty stitch and it would be most suitable for afghans or coverlets. The old abbreviations puzzled the reader, and I have explained these in my column before. But for those of you that come across the letter "n" in knitting instructions, this means, narrow, or decrease one stitch. It is left up to the knitters to use their own judgment whether to knit two stitches together, or whether to slip one, knit one, then pass the slipped stitch over.

The other abbreviation which can have you wondering is the letter "o", this means wool over to make a stitch. For knitting you bring the wool forward then take it over the needle as you knit the next stitch; or if you are purling, you wind the wool round the needle so that it is at the front of work again, to purl the next stitch.

The following are the knitted Peacock Stitches. Please clip them right away if you think you will want them for reference. Cast on the required number of stitches, a multiple of nine, plus four. Repeat the instructions in brackets.

Third row:—Knit four (purl eleven, knit four) Repeat to end.

Fourth row:—Purl two (purl two together, purl eleven, purl two together). Repeat to last two stitches, purl two.

Fifth row:—Knit two (knit two together, knit nine, slip one, knit one, pass slip stitch over). Repeat to last two stitches, knit two.

Sixth row:—Purl two (purl two together, purl seven, purl two together). Repeat to last two stitches, purl two.

These six rows form the pattern and you will find them quite easy to memorize. For those of you that have written asking for a knitted bedspread, I do have two patterns.

No. 7060 is quite a simple knitted pattern, made in six-inch squares which are then sewn together. This enables you to make the bedspread to whatever measurements you like: single, double or queen size.

The other pattern is No. 6949, a very old traditional pattern, Mrs. Coolidge's Great Grandmother's Counterpane. I don't advise this one for beginners as it is quite intricate, but well worth the effort if you are an experienced knitter. You should also take note of the old term abbreviations mentioned at the beginning of this column, as they are used in No. 6949.

For glamorous summer evenings, make this crocket bodice. Add beads for extra sparkle. It's extremely attractive and feminine, and so cool on summer evenings. Instructions are given for making the skirt, and the sizes given on the leaflet are for bust measurements of 32-34-36 inches.

To order this week's pattern No. 7709, or any other leaflet mentioned, send 75 cents for each, PLUS a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible.

If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address.

Send to: May E. MacLean, "KNIT 'n CHAT," c-o Box B, 486 Montford Drive, Dollard des Ormeaux P.Q. H9G 1M8

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly and to enclose your stamped return envelope for faster service. All patterns are now 75 cents. Please allow about two weeks for delivery.

DEAR LYNN and JOEL: Being a plant and flower lover I must say that I enjoy your column so much. Kindly tell me all you know about my favorite plant, the snake plant. Do they ever bloom and how tall to they become? What is a good food for them? —BILL, Norfolk, Va.

DEAR BILL: It does my heart good to know that your favorite is Sansevieria Laurenti. Usually they sit in the corner, year after year, all but forgotten, giving up the spotlight to the ferns and begonias. They require so little from us that we tend to depreciate them to a second-class citizenry in the plant kingdom.

'Just give them a home in low to medium light and water when they've become dry, and they will flourish for many years, reaching heights of five feet. They will bloom if tended in greenhouse conditions or in their natural habitat. There are documented cases in our files of blooms appearing in regular home environments, but these are highly specialized and not discussed much.

We have many snake plants, the oldest and dearest being Irving, of course. When he read your letter he almost jumped out of his pot with joy! He suggests that you ask your plant in a loving way and, perhaps, a flower will appear. Anything is possible in this experience!

LEGAL MARIJUANA PROFITS ESTIMATED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The sale of legalized marijuana would reap taxes of $1.8 billion annually and save the United States about $420 million a year in law-enforcement costs, a researcher has told the National Drug Abuse Conference.

Alan Garber of the Drug Abuse Council said Friday it would be imperative to earmark the money specifically for some social use marijuana users can relate to.

In a research paper, Garber said the tax revenue figure is conservative because it does not take into consideration use by teen-agers or expanded use by adults if morijuana is legalized.

Garber's tax estimate is based on research figures showing approximately 12 million users of marijuana the U.S. who smoke 3.2 billion marijuana cigarettes annually.

Using tobacco industry figures, it would cost about $7.46 to produce, package and sell a pound of legal marijuana, which could be sold for $512, based on a current average street price of $32 an ounce, Garber said. He conceded quality and price vary widely from place to place.

The $504.54 a pound would all be potential tax revenue, he said, representing a minimum $1.8 billion at current levels of use.

GM Accused Of Blocking Tax Probe

DETROIT (UPI) — Government attorneys charged Friday General Motors Corp. has tried to frustrate and delay an investigation into a possible tax fraud by the company of hundreds of millions of dollars.

The government denied charges that Internal Revenue Service agents harassed GM employees during the investigation.

In a brief filed in U.S. district court, the government said the problem "is one of frustration and delay on the part of General Motors in an attempt to defuse and control the inquiry."

U.S. Attorney Philip Van Dam asked a federal judge to allow a grand jury investigation of possible criminal tax fraud by GM, the nation's largest automaker, to continue. It was halted on its first day, April 26, when GM went into court.

U.S. Won't Assume Oil Buying

WASHINGTON (WP) — Under White House and oil industry pressure, the House government operations committee quickly reversed itself Friday and killed a provision to make the government the sole purchasing agent of foreign oil.

The committee then approved for House action, 35 to 2, a bill pulling the scattered energy functions of government together into a cabinet level department to administer the national energy policy President Carter has asked Congress to enact. The Senate governmental affairs committee hopes to finish action on the bill early next week.

The proposal to have the U.S. government rather than private oil companies negotiate oil prices with Arab producing nations in an effort to hold down price was attached to the department of energy bill late Thursday afternoon by a vote of 18 to 16. Friday morning the committee voted to reconsider that action by a vote of 24 to 17 and then rejected the proposal by a voice vote.

The action was turned around by the switched votes of two Democrats — Reps. William Moorhead (Pa.) and Elliott H. Livitas (Ga.) — and the votes of several members who had been absent Thursday.

The oil industry opposes the plan, calling it a first step toward nationalization. But the two members switching to opposition said oil pressure had nothing to do with their actions.

Levitas said he favors the provision but feels it needs more consideration and refinement and was too important to be approved with only a few minutes debate.

'Goddam Hush Money' Retraction Demanded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon's lawyers are insisting that the Washington Post retract a story that said the former president talked to aide Charles Colson about "goddam hush money" for Watergate burglars the week they went on trial.

The Post refused. Executive editor Benjamin Bradlee said Friday, "We have completely reliable corroborative evidence that the tape of the conversation does in fact contain the reference to 'goddam hush money'."

The dispute is not whether Nixon used the phrase in the Jan. 8, 1973, discussion, but whether a transcript of the tape contained those words, printed by the Post on May 1.

In a letter to the newspaper, Nixon's lawyer, Herbert Miller, said the Post used an uncorrected transcript and that "hush money" was deleted from all subsequent transcripts prepared by the Watergate special prosecutor's office.

"For nearly one week, the Post has let stand as fact a headline for which it has no authoritative support," Miller said. "We believe the Post's professional obligation is clear, and ask that the retraction and explanation warranted under these circumstances be carried in this Sunday's edition of the Washington Post."

In reply, Bradlee said there were "at least" two transcribed versions of the conversation, but that parts of the tapewere "of such questionable quality that prosecutors were reluctant to play them to a jury.

"We do not dispute that only one version quotes Nixon as using the phrase 'goddam hush money.' That is the version upon which we based our story," Bradlee wrote.

"We do dispute your claim that what you call an 'official version' is more authentic than the version upon which we based our story."

Meanwhile, John Ehrlichman said Nixon gave a "smarmy, maudlin rationalization that will be tested and found false" in his television interview on Watergate with David Frost.

Ehrlichman, the No. 2 aide in the Nixon White House, also said from his prison cell that Nixon offered him "a huge sum of money" when Nixon fired him.

"I declined it," Ehrlichman said.

Ehrlichman, serving a 2½ to 8 year term at the Safford, Ariz., federal prison for Watergate crimes, wrote his reactions to the Nixon-Frost television interview for next week's edition of New West magazine, which made excerpts public Friday.

Viet Aid Funding Misspent

LOS ANGELES (WP) — Federal and state officials have found indications of serious financial irregularities in the Indochinese refugee relief program, including widespread double billing, billing for non-existent refugees, questionable contracting procedures and poor handling of resettlement programs.

When it formally ends Sept. 30, about $455 million in federal aid will have been spent by the U.S. state department and the department of health, education and welfare on nearly 145,000 Indochinese refugees who fled here and were resettled under the 1975 Indochina Migration and Refugee Assistance Act. Congress is considering a bill to extend the program with additional funding for three more years.

Although millions of dollars appear to have been misspent the full extent of the financial irregularities may not become clear until fall.

No over-all audit of the refugee program has ever been undertaken, so federal officials said they are unable to tell the breadth of the financial mismanagement or whether it involves corrupt handling or just poor money management.

LONE PINE, 1977

Four Grandmasters tied for top honors in this year's exciting Lone Pine, California, tournament. Russians Yuri Balashov and Nona Gaprindashvili (the World Women's Champion), Oscar 'Panno of Argentina and Dragutin Sahovic of Yugoslavia shared the first four places with 6½ points out of 9. Each received $5,750. Grandmasters William Lombardy of New Jersey and Larry Christiansen of California came next with 6 points, each winning $1,250. There were 48 participants.

Although he didn't end up in the big money, the sensation of Lone Pine this year was young U.S. Master John Peters of Los Angeles. His cool and daring play won everyone's admiration and he is considered definitely of Grandmaster calibre.

In the second round, he drew with Balashov, even though he had not made the required number of moves when the flag fell on his clock. But his opponent had not written down his last ten moves, and the tournament director did not accept the Russian's claim of a win.

WHITE: Peters
BLACK: William Lombardy

(a) A positional pawn sacrifice. It keeps the Black QB inactive.

(b) White takes over completely now and Grandmaster Lombardy really gets knocked around!

(c) If 27 . . . N2-R4; 28. P-N4 wins.

In the final two rounds John faltered, ending up with 5½ out of 9, but he is going places!

The solution to the problem above is: 1. B-B2, QxR; 2. NxQ mate; or 1 . . . RxQ ch; 2. NxR mate; or 1 . . . NxP; 2. N-B6 mate; or 1 . . . RxP; 2. Q-K6 mate; etc.

STUDENTS BEEF

Faculty members at the University of Victoria are satisfied with their marking procedures but their students aren't.

A year-long study into grading policies at the university turned up a number of inconsistencies with established policy and actual procedures regarding marking.

The report prepared for the UVic Senate suggests each instructor study different methods of grading to ensure that his method is valid.

Students complained on inconsistencies in grading largely depending on who marked the particular assignment or test.

As many as two-thirds of the first year students were unaware there is an appeal procedure to re-examine grades.

The Senate voted this week to abolish the $7.50 fee for a grade appeal, and will discuss further recommendations in the fall after studying the report in more detail.

2 Candidates In Running For Board

DUNCAN — A second candidate is in the running for the Cowichan Valley Region board seat left vacant by the resignation of director Pat Clements.

He is Wally Taylor, 55, former manager of the Cowichan Co-Operative, who announced Monday he would seak the nomination for Eagle Heights-Cowichan Station-Sahtlam.

Leo Kuta, a 38-year-old Duncan lawyer, has already filed nomination papers for the May 28 byelection. Nominations close May 9 at noon in the regional board office.

Taylor is a former director of the Cowichan District Hospital, where he served as finance committee chairman, and was also a director of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

Families at the centre of interfaith service

The fourth interfaith service, to be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Metropolitan United Church, will honor both Mother's Day and B.C. Family Month.

Mrs. Eileen Sheard, chairman of the interfaith committee of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches, said this week that the theme of the service will be A Family of Nations — A Nation of Families.

"We chose Mother's Day as an appropriate day," she said, "and thought the Family Month theme was appropriate because so many different faiths are taking part in it."

This week she discussed plans for the service with Canon Hilary Butler (Anglican), Rev. Gerald Herkel (Catholic), Rabbi Leo Abrami (Jewish) and Ron Grunewald (Mormon).

It was almost two years ago that a planning committee of 25 persons, headed by Canon Butler, began planning for the B.C. Conference on the Family.

The conference was held in Centennial United Church the following November and drew delegates from religious organizations and political parties.

Of the 157 delegates who attended, 122 were from 58 school districts out of a possible 75 and 33 were from ethnic and specialist groups.

The delegates identified the major issues affecting the well-being of the family under major headings and drew up recommendations and provided a study kit during the following year.

The kits were circulated to local study groups and action groups.

Last November a second conference was held in Burnaby and drew 180 delegates, 70 per cent of whom had attended the first meeting.

The conference approved almost all of the hundreds of proposals generated in the local groups, listed them under 13 headings and collated them in a booklet entitled Family Needs in B.C.

They proceeded to propose, and eventually to obtain, approval for the continuation of the work as a co-operative undertaking of the provincial government and religious communities on a two-thirds, one-third basis.

The provincial government, at the request of the group, proclaimed May B.C. Family Month.

The 13 headings which contain the proposals of the conferences are: Education and the Family, Family Life Counselling and the Family, Religious Groups and the Family, Law and the Family, Media and the Family, Community and the Family, Native People, Social Services and the Family, Health Services and the Family; Housing, Land Use, community planning and the Family; Work, Leisure and Family Life; Volunteerism and Self-Help Ventures.

Headquarters for Mormons

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is planning to start construction of a $1.4-million area headquarters and chapel in this city and two chapels in Chatham and Windsor, Ont., this year.

Harold Crookell, president of the church's London area, said the headquarters building will include offices, a chapel, a gymnasium and a cultural hall. The $200,000 building in Chatham will include classrooms for youth groups and a chapel that will hold 80 to 100 persons, he said. Windsor's $400,000 chapel will hold 200.

Church Chronicle

This choir sings —and tumbles too

The Auburn Adventist Academy Choir of Auburn, Wash., will give a concert at Claremont senior high school at 8 p.m. today. The 99 young people, aged from 16 to 8 years, will also put on a tumbling exhibition.

Lt.-Col. William Riddell (RCAF ret.), administrator of Trinity Christian Centre, Victoria West, will be guest speaker at the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship dinner at the Oak Bay Marina dining room at 6:30 p.m., May 16.

Riddell was involved in flying saucer research while with the RCAF and will comment on it. He was baptized in the Holy Spirit in Dallas, Texas, seven years ago.

Three young Victoria musicians will give a recital in Emmanuel Baptist Church at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Featured artists are Ann Crose, pianist, a member of the faculty of the Victoria Conservatory of Music; Dietrich Villbrandt, pianist and organist, a student at the faculty of music, University of Victoria, and Mark Neuman, violinist, junior champion of the B.C. Music Festival.

The concert is being sponsored by the senior choir of the church.

An unusual concert of music for tuba, trombone and flute will be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday in St. John's Anglican Church.

The concert will feature Gene Dowling, tuba; Tom Eadie, trombone; Barbara Eadie, flute, and Edward Norman, piano. Music from Bach to Hindemith will be represented. Admission is $2.

Workshops on genealogy will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and at the same time on two following Wednesdays at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 2990 Quadra.

The one-evening workshops will demonstrate basic techniques in genealogical research and will provide an actual experience for participants in completing a family tree, positive identification of ancestors and writing a family history.

The Hecker Family, an internationally known touring, singing family, will give concerts in Esquimalt Church of the Nazarene at 7:30 p.m. today and at First Church of the Nazarene at 11 a.m. Sunday.

First Church meets in the Seventh-day Adventist Church at 983 Pandora.

There are nine children in the family. Some of them were adopted while the Heckers served as missionaries in Central America.

'A shuffle of sacraments'

HALIFAX (CP) — Rev. Brenda Shipton, second woman to be ordained a deacon in the Anglican Church of Canada, says all she does is perform a sacrament shuffle.

Currently chaplain at the Halifax Infirmary, she has been trying to be ordained a priest for seven years, but says Rev. George F. Arnold, bishop of Nova Scotia, objects to women priests.

Memorial Sunday for city educator

A memorial service will be held for Eric Hugh Quainton, who died last month, in the chapel of St. Michael's University School, 3400 Richmond, at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Quainton was a dedicated teacher for 50 years in Victoria. He taught in the public school system from 1936 to 1942. The rest of his teaching years were spent at private schools.

He began his career at St. Michael's Preparatory School in 1923 and later moved to University School, then Brentwood College. In 1942 he returned to St. Michael's and stayed until his retirement four years ago.

He was the son of Cecil Samuel Quainton, dean of Christ Church Cathedral from 1916 to 1937.

Born in Halifax, Yorkshire, England, in 1902, he came to Brandon, Man., with his family in 1914 and, two years later, to Victoria.

He was educated at St. John's School, Winnipeg, and attended Victoria College and the University of British Columbia where he obtained an honors degree in classics.

"For those of us fortunate enough to work with him the same great respect was left for he very seldom spoke or put himself forward and yet one knew he always stood for the better things in life."

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. D. J. (Dalla) Brown of Ottawa and Mrs. Stephanie Steele, well-known Victoria artist, three granddaughters and two grandsons.

Pentecostals to tour Israel

Students in new 'exodus'

Two Victorians are members of a group of 50 young people of The Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada who left this week to take part in Exodus to Israel, a six-week program of study and work in the Holy Land.

Diane Sharman, 19, and David Huntley, 18, both members of North Douglas Pentecostal Church, are also students of Western Pentecostal Bible College near Abbotsford.

They will live on a kibbutz, attend the Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem and tour the Holy Land extensively before returning the middle of June.

The tour is being led by Rev. Keith Parks, national youth representative of the PAOC, and George Grosshans, assistant to the executive director of home missions. They were in Israel recently as guests of the Israeli government to make arrangements.

After arrival in Tel Aviv the group of young people will spend a month working and living on a kibbutz near Nazareth. Special tours will take them to places where they can meet the Israeli people.

They will spend a week at the Institute of Holy Land Studies just outside the wall of old Jerusalem studying archeology, history, geography and current events and visiting nearby Biblical sites.

This part of the tour will include Jericho, Beersheba, Masada, and other historic places.

The last four days of the program will be spent at the Ecce Homo Convent Hospice on the Via Dolorosa, which is on the route Christ walked on his way to the crucifixion.

Several optional programs are open to those who wish to remain in Israel for a period of up to one year but the two Victorians will return this summer.

Concert date set straight

Incorrect dates have been printed twice for the concert of the Lamanite Generation, a group of North American Indian singers from Brigham Young University. The correct date for the concert is next Tuesday, May 10, in Victoria Senior Secondary School, 1260 Grant.

Catholic women explore

Culture, scripture topics at Nanaimo seminar

Leading, reassuring, widening horizons, and inspiring the young were among subjects explored at a one-day seminar for Catholic women held in Nanaimo last Saturday.

The seminar — titled Woman Alive — was sponsored by the women's committee elected a year ago by Vancouver Island women and co-chaired by Marni Davis of Victoria and Mrs. Pat Kahr of Port Alberni.

More than 80 women attended and heard the keynote speaker, Sister Augusta Raabe, OSB, of Nanaimo, as she explored the reality and the role of women in the perspective of scripture and culture.

At the afternoon session a panel of laywomen — Mrs. Mary Lou Fletcher and Mrs. Doreen Hunter, both of Sidney, and Mrs. Kahr —shared their experiences and personal insights into the relationships between self and others and self and God.

Sister Judy Morin, SSA, was given a special award for her pioneering role as a prison chaplain at William Head prison and as co-pastor with Rev. William Mudge of the Sooke-Renfrew parish.

Mrs. Kahr was given an award by Bishop Remi De Roo of Victoria for her outstanding contribution to Catholic women in her role as Island co-ordinator of the successfully completed questionnaire on Women in the Church.

Perspectives

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

The Season for denominational conferences and councils and synods and the such is about to begin, and as a service to my fellow ecclesiastics I am here presenting a multi-purpose resolution which I had a hand in drafting some years ago.

I had forgotten about it, but recently a friend in the ministry suggested that I might again make a contribution to the ongoing life of the churches by making it available again.

I found a copy of it, badly marked with changes and amendments, in my files, and I am pleased to be able to offer it once again for the assistance of those who draft resolutions for the solemn assemblies.

It comes out of my own United Church background, but there is nothing narrowly denominational about it, and I think people in other churches could find it helpful.

Here, then, is this delicately crafted multi-purpose ecclesiastical resolution:

"Whereas it is evident that we are living in a time of rapid change and of tensions engendered by that change, a time of shifting moral and spiritual values, a time when the very foundations of Christian civilization are threatened; and whereas we are fully cognizant of the multifarious pressures and forces of the secular world and their challenge to the churches.

Be it resolved that:

1. Having examined the basis of our concern and the spiritual factors which inform it, the challenge of increasing secularism be faced fearlessly and without compromise; and

2. We commend to our people, both clergy and laity, that they solemnly re-dedicate themselves to wholeheartedly and earnestly, and without reservations motivated by expediency and timidity, serve the cause the relevance of which becomes ever clearer as the patterns and parameters of challenge emerge, and that we all strive to communicate in depth and establish rapport with alienated secularized persons in their technopolitan milieu of growing depersonalization."

Discerning readers will note that this multi-purpose resolution has many marks of authenticity. A splendidly dangling participle. A thoroughly split infinitive. A fine assortment of vague words—"relevance," "rapport," "parameter," "communicate," "milieu." (The flavor could probably be enhanced by working in words such as "viable," "per se," "structure," "confrontation," "escalate," and "dialogue.")

This model resolution does, if I may say so, exude such an aura of firm no-nonsense modern piety that only a soulless clod would vote against it. And it is eminently safe: it commits no one to anything.

Carry on, boys and girls.

Charismatic list swells

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The number of persons registering for the 1977 Roman Catholic Charismatic Conference, to be held here Aug. 18 and 21, is far beyond expectations, says G. D. De Re, conference public relations and arrangements manager.

Although the conference is nearly four months away, organizers have received more than $10,000 in desposits from persons registering early, he said recently. About 5,000 delegates are expected to attend the conference which will consist of spiritual renewals, teachings, worship and healings.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday May 8

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friend confides dilemma. Money, family are involved. Maintain sympathetic but neutral stance. Capricorn, Cancer figure in picture. Harmony can replace friction as spiritual experience is shared. You'll get on more solid ground.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spiritual horizons are broadened — you perceive potential, inner strength. Accent on "getting along" with professional superior, socializing with one who can make room for you at top. Gemini, Sagittarius are part of your personal scenario.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides with distance, philosophical concepts, reading, education and a more vital look at religion. Check fine points, details — don't permit red tape to deny creative outlets.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have extrasensory or psychic experience. You know without formal knowledge. The telephone rings and you knew it would — and why. One close to you has financial question-request. Be positive, receptive, open to travel, visits and a variety of ideas. Yes, Gemini is in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Special agreement is on agenda. Home, family situation command attention. Domestic change occurs. If single, marital status is spotlighted. Married or single, you feel that something of real importance has been resolved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Low profile should be maintained. It would be an error to force issues. Ride with the tide. Pisces individual plays key role. Emphasis on health, co-workers, need for moderation, review of diet, nutritional program. Define terms, perfect techniques.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar aspect highlights romance, creativity, change, children, speculation, imprinting your own style, dealing with "special relationships." Capricorn Cancer and Leo figure in scenario. Money situation gets boost.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish project; be confident in knowledge that more persons are interested in you. Aries, Libra figure in picture. Accent home, property, "getting along" with older authority type. You learn value of property. Don't count yourself out of game, competition. You have ace in hole even if presently unaware of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on dialogue with relative. Short journey could be on agenda. You make new start in new direction. Highlight independence, originality. Display creative talents. Leo could play major role.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Consolidate — bring together assets and take inventory. Guard valuables. Someone wants something for nothing — from you. Check contracts, agreements. Get money 's worth — and do count your change. Cancer, Aquarius persons figure in important ways.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Lunar cycle is high — judgment is on target. Be confident with regard to timing, hunches. Take initiative. Be a self-starter. Emphasize personality, personal appearance. Be conspicuous by your presence. Pleasant surprise is on your schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Hospital, special club, group, charitable organization could command your personal attention. You might be chosen as spokesperson and could appear before the "media." On another level, there is confinement, restriction. Secret fear is based on nothing — know it and regain confidence.

IF MAY 8th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are stubborn, passionate, a natural executive, capable of handling responsibility, administering projects, supervising duties. Capricorn, Cancer persons could play important roles in your life. In 1977, you get proverbial second chance to make your life more interesting, creative. You could be madly in love — you make a fresh start, get into a business of your own and July should be a memorable month.

Astrological Forecast for Monday, May 9

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on friends, desires, conflict between love and practical necessities. Key is not to take yourself — or others—too seriously. Be flexible — don't battle with those who mean the most to you. Passion is very much in picture — and control should be, too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stubborn resistance should not be interpreted as signal for retreat. Ride with tide, slip punches, do some bobbing and weaving. Message will become crystal clear. Stick to basic issues, handle tested material. Very ambitious person wants to be "on your side."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid needless travel. Don't complicate what is basically a simple issue. Be prepared to answer questions, especially if romantically involved. Others exhibit a tendency to be skeptical. Do plenty of "smiling"!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Adhere to principles. What seems lost — in monetary sense — will be recovered. It is not necessary for you to grovel. Your family backs you. Jewelry, other valuables could be involved. Taurus, Libra figure in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lie low. Play waiting game. You're seeing what you want to see, not what exists. This is a temporary condition. Know it and be strong enough to control it. Pisces figures prominently. Accent on legalities, permissions, right of way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Organize — get various aspects of project in order. You'll be working backstage, behind the scenes. Older individual prefers to remain out of sight. You have chance to be first-class representative. Keep a secret!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emotions tend to be "squelched" by realization that situation, relationship is on its last legs. Don't cast your lot with fading or losing proposition. Take a deep breath — and a cold plunge into the future. It will be good for you!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on long-range planning, security stability of product. Obtain valid hint from Libra message. Make new start in new direction. Highlight creativity, originality. Leo, Aquarius persons are part of your personal scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take conservative course. Those who advocate rash actions don't care what happens to your money, to your reputation, to your future prospects — or to you. Pull in reins. Take stock, inventory. Hold off on expensive, unnecessary trips.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, possessions, ability to enlarge quarters and horizons — these are emphasized. Element of luck or timing is on your side. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals are part of our personal scenario. Diet, nutrition considerations are important. Know it and respond accordingly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Check hidden clauses, back pages of any lease or agreement. Being thorough now is very much to your advantage. Scorpio, Leo and Taurus persons figure prominently. You can break from restrictions by personally reviewing prospects.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Communicate with those who share your interests, goals. Accent ability to get behind the scenes, to view inner workings of project. Friend aids in bringing special service up to par. Gemini, Capricorn persons figure prominently.

IF MAY 9th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are attractive, talented, creative, idealistic, drawn to theatre, medicine, law, Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life. June could be your most significant month of 1977, a year which sees you consolidating, planting seeds, "germinating" ideas, concepts. You're going through emotional changes — but you emerge stronger, a better person, more prepared for success which is due in not too distant future.

BISHOP VIEWS PIPELINE STRUGGLE

A David-and-Goliath Confrontation in the North

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Bishop Remi de Roo admits the Roman Catholic Church's fight against the oil companies on development in northern Canada is a David-and-Goliath confrontation.

However, he said in an interview, the battle must be fought because the quality of Canadian life is at stake as well as the kind of values and beliefs people hold sacred.

The Church has called for a moratorium on northern development, which would include such projects as the controversial proposal to build a Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline.

De Roo, bishop of Victoria, says once the decision to build or not to build the natural gas pipeline is made, "we are giving an orientation to the future development of Canada.

"And that orientation and these decisions are being made at a time when the Canadian public has little to go on except contradictory information."

The Catholic Church's position on nothern development was made clear in September, 1975, when the Canadian Catholic Conference issue a Labor Day message calling for justice and responsible stewardship of the energy resources in Canada.

The Church leaders called for more public debate on the issue and a search for alternative approaches to nothern development.

The Church, in co-operation with other public interest groups, continued to focus on the pipeline as a national priority and on April 18, Bishop de Roo, as president of the CCC's social affairs department, appeared before the National Energy Board.

It was the first time the Catholic Church had appeared before such a regulatory body as the NEB, which is holding hearings prior to making recommendations on energy matters to the federal government.

Bishop de Roo said it was the first time the "quality of life" dimensions of northern development had been put so forcefully to the NEB.

He told the board members the Church is concerned about the current popular belief that economic factors are the important things in determining the shape of society and the quality of human relationships.

"It is a philosophy which is reflected in our television, for instance, that tells us that if you have two cars you are supposed to be happier than if you only have one; that styles must be obsolete next year, and you are not going to be happy if you haven't the latest fashion."

He said this leads to the situation where "dollars and cents opportunities" are all that matter, and other things which may add something to life are ruled unimportant.

De Roo said this kind of philosophy lies behind many of the northern development projects.

"If that is hard on the native peoples, if that means more people on welfare, if that means destruction of our environment, and so forth, yes those are serious things.

"Let us try to minimize the impact, but the really important thing is to get on with the serious business of making money."

"Our lives seem to be increasingly determined by this profit and growth oriented type of society.

"We would like to react against that and bring out what we feel are the other dimensions that make human beings truly human."

In its brief to the NEB, the Catholic Church said there is growing evidence that the market system today is being replaced by the corporate planning of major industries.

Large scale orporations in the petroleum industry are able to control both the supply and demand.

The brief quotes studies outlining the stranglehold major international companies have on Canadian gas production.

The Church says its members are faced "with some disturbing questions about responsible stewardship of Canada's northern gas resources."

The so-called energy crisis is used as the reason for building the Mackenzie Valley pipeline, the brief says, but there is contradictory evidence on the issue of natural gas shortages.

"Industry spokesmen" say Canada will run short of gas within a decade, while independent studies claim Canada's proven gas supplies could last between 20 and 30 more years.

The fact is, the brief says, all the evidence points to the real demand for northern gas being generated from the United States.

The Church called for a moratorium on northern development until the Canadian people have had a chance to deal with these disturbing questions.

"What is required is a full, independent inquiry for the purpose of re-examining the role of the petroleum industry in Canada, including questions of public ownership and control; assessing the real energy needs of Canadians in the future, including reductions in consumption and exports; obtaining complete and accurate estimates of oil and the social and economic costs of building major energy projects like the Mackenzie Valley pipeline."

In their presentation to the NEB, the Church spokesman touched on the impact the pipeline would have on native peoples as well as other Canadians.

They pointed out that the federal government has already said the large amount of money needed for the pipeline, would mean less would be spent on new housing, schools and other needed social projects.

A decision by Ottawa on a northern gas pipeline is expected early this fall.

The Berger commission study on the economic, political and environmental impacts of a pipeline in the north will be released Monday.

Bishop de Roo says he realizes the Church's impact may be limited and that, in fact, the decision may have already been made.

However, the Church will have succeeded in the long term if it awakes Canadians to what is happening and thereby have some influence on the future direction of the country.

He says he hopes the federal government shows some leadership, and, in light of the increasing interest, not ignore the recommendations in the Berger report.

He said Church members are concerned about northern development because of a "new, developing social consciousness."

Religion in the past reflected western civilization's concern for the individual, he said.

It was very much a "God and Me" type of approach.

However, the individual can no longer cope with the forces that have been unleashed in society, de Roo said.

"So we need far more community spirit. We need far more group development.

"We need far more social consciousness and concern for the implications of our actions."

Northern Life Never Same

By JIM POLING

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Life might not be the same again for the estimated 30,000 native people of the Northwest Territories after Mr. Justice Thomas Berger makes public his Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline report Monday.

Whatever Berger's conclusions about the proposed line, they will have more impact on the future of the Indians, Metis and Inuit (Eskimo) than the 15,000 non-native residents of the 1.3-million-square-mile territory.

Aside from any pipeline recommendations, Berger is expected to say a lot about how the native people should be allowed to develop socially, politically and economically.

The pipeline arguments in relation to the native people are basic:

—Build the line and their culture, traditions and lifestyles, already shaken by the white man's intrusion, will be destroyed.

—Do not build it and the thousands of them educated for white-oriented work and living will be left without jobs and with few capabilities for living the old life off the land.

The first argument is used by the Indian Brotherhood of the N.W.T. and some other native groups and their supporters who see the pipeline as just another white plague forced upon the North. The latter argument is pushed by the pipeline companies, exploration firms, some territorial and federal government people and others who insist that the North must have development to survive.

Many native people agree that some development is necessary. The Metis Association, formed to represent the estimated 8,000 Metis, favors it providing land claims can be settled and its people are allowed to share in the jobs and prosperity.

The 14,000 Inuit generally are indirectly affected because most of them live outside the Mackenzie River valley. Basically they want a moratorium on major development until their land claims are settled.

The most vocal native opposition to the line has come from the Indian Brotherhood. It is strictly against construction of the pipeline until after claims are settled and the Indians can have a major say in whether it should be built and under what conditions.

All native groups also have warned about the environmental dangers of such a line.

The pro-pipeline elements say land claims and environmental problems can be solved and that the native people and the North cannot afford to wait for development.

Charles Hobart, a University of Alberta sociologist, says there has been a baby boom in the North and the babies now are preparing to go out and get jobs.

Some observers belive that Berger, known to be sympathetic to the needs and aspirations of the natives, might recommend a pipeline, but to be built in future when land claims have been settled and the native people are in a position to have some control o, it and its effects.

Todd — MacLeod

Rev. John Travis officiated at a double ring ceremony, in Centennial United Church, on April 9, 1977, when Patricia Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. MacLeod of Victoria, exchanged wedding vows with Wayne P. C. Todd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Todd, also of Victoria.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown, styled with fitted bodice and V-neckline. The A-line skirt was enhanced with lace appliques and bordered with a deep diagonal flounce. Her finger-tip veil of silk illusion misted from a lace headpiece to complete the picture of a radiant and happy bride. Her bouquet was white roses with baby's breath and stephanotis. The maid of honour, Kim Newbold, and bridesmaids Laurel Duncan and Margaret Poirier, wore gowns similar in style to the bride's and carried colonial bouquets of daisies with baby carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. Laurie Wick, as best man. Mr. Jack Kinnis and Mr. Ken Lagadyn served as ushers. During the signing of the register the bride's father sang "Because."

The reception held at the Bay Street Armouries was attended by friends and relatives of the happy couple. Toast to the bride was given by her uncle Mr. R. J. Poirier.

YOUR MONEY OR YOUR LIFE
Please Mayor Young and members of city council read section 25 subsections one, two and three of the 1976 police act chapter 64. Yes, Victoria residents, the Mayor and members of Victoria city council should make sure that there is an extra $200,000 in the Police salaries budget on Thursday, May 12th so that the Victoria City Police Force strength can be increased by ten to 150. This would be a step in the right direction otherwise a citizens group will have to call on a higher authority to ensure that the city of Victoria has an adequate Police Force. Mr. Glazier who lives in Oak Bay should especially read subsection three of section 25 of the Police Act. Most of the members of city council are trying to keep the mill rate down on their business Properties but do not run the risk of break-ins and holdups in the city of Victoria. Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards again says to all Victoria residents in the city, Your Money or Your Life. Mr. Mayor and members of council is it not time that you provide enough protection for Victorians that work and walk the streets of the city even if you people do not live in the downtown and western area of Victoria.

EMPRESS PONTIAC BUICK GMC

IT'S BRAND NEW TO VICTORIA!

At Empress, we have always had confidence with the quality of the used vehicles we sell. And now, to back up that confidence, we are offering the CROWN SEAL USED CAR WARRANTY!

The CROWN SEAL sticker on the windshield, identifies our 100 per cent, 30-day TOTAL MECHANICAL WARRANTY — and we really mean TOTAL!

Any mechanical failure during the warranty period will be repaired at no cost to the customer. EMPRESS PAYS 100 PER CENT of the bill — both PARTS and LABOUR!

Because our highly qualified technicans have already given the vehicles a thorough and complete inspection, Empress is able to give every purchaser of a CROWN SEAL WARRANTY vehicle, a warranty certificate, and a signed copy of the inspection report.

IDYLLIC, PARKLIKE
FRONTAGE

What a glorious property. Owned by present family for many years. Moss laden trees and pathways, with streams and bridges. Tall timbers. Could be selectively logged and timbers used for a lodge or home. (Try for a Church camp!) Just 20 minutes from Town & Country. 2 parcels adjoining of 10 acres each with own service road frontage off Malahat Drive. Views over to the Vancouver Mountains! Why not buy a heritage for your family (B.C. will always be a winner even though things are "downhill" now.) With new four lanes out from town this will be so accessible — and taxes are so low. Try all trades of houses or mortgages. $69,000 (MLS 24292) and $79,000. (MLS 24291). May be sold to separate purchasers, concurrently.

ACRES

And now listen to this! One of the lower Islands most picturesque and rustic solid-log craftman built homes. Peeled logs (large diameter), hand fitted with chisel and hammer. About 2100 sq. ft., one level, 3 bedrooms, 19'x30' in-line living and dining room with white oak planked floors with picture windows, 12'x16' kitchen. Views over Finlayson Arm right over to Vancouver mountains. Beautifully landscaped with vegetable garden, fruit trees, shrubberies, flower beds, level lawns and then — onto the pool-patio area, (16'x32' heated and filtered pool) 23'x27' out building of 2 levels is easily made into a keepers cottage. Presently workshop with pool filtering and heating equipment in lower level. This can be then rented immediately. This acreage and home was written up in Canadian Mayfair Magazine. You really have to see this to have everything! One of kind. Oh, yes, cap it all with hand-split heavy shakes! Trade your city home in and go "country". MLS 24293. $179,000 and worth it. 1;3 Acres - Sea View Deluxe

The most gracious home I have ever had the privilege of offering for sale. There is approx. 4,000 sq. ft. of finished area. The wood used on the interior is smooth channel grove cedar and teak. The floors are deep pile wall-to-wall carpet — over $10,000 spent on coverings alone. The master bedroom is like a penthouse suite — 16'8"x22' plus walk-in closet and full bath. There are multi extras and in this lovely home you have to see to believe, such as 3 full baths, 5-zone hot water heat, 200 amp electric service, built-in vacuum, large den, unfinished whirlpool and sauna, plus much more.

The marina is just across the road for your boat, at Bird's Eye Cove, Mill Bay. The price on this home is only $180,000. To view this magnificent home contact Woody Mott at J. H. WHITTOME & CO. LIMITED, 68 Station Street, Duncan, B.C., 746-6161 or 746-1586.

A WAY OF LIFE

This opportunity cannot be duplicated and most especially for the price 24½ truly beautiful acres in the Qualicum Falls area of Vancouver Island. These acres include two creeks, approx 8 cleared acres, fruit trees, fenced paddocks and a lovely lawn-garden area surrounding the home. Colonial in style, 4-8 bedrooms, and 5 baths highlight this home. Family room, living room, full basement, separate caretakers cottage — only a few of the features. The property is secluded and in a lovely rural area with great fishing, hunting etc. — yet only 15 minutes from Qualicum Village. An opportunity for an interesting and unique lifestyle.

Yugoslav Dissident Jailed for Letter

Manchester Guardian

BELGRADE — Vitomir Djilas, lawyer-cousin of dissident author and former vice president of Yugoslavia Milovan Djilas, was jailed Friday for writing a letter to a newspaper — which he never posted.

The Titograd district court in the republic of Montenegro sentenced the 41-year-old lawyer to 30 months for allegedly spreading hostile propaganda.

The trial and the sentence has shocked observers here. It indicates that despite all the talk of a possible amnesty for political prisoners, the Yugoslav police — and ultimately the government of President Josip Broz Tito — have no intention of relaxing their tough hard-line stand against political dissent.

During the past three years hundreds have been jailed for alleged political crimes. According to official sources, the number of political prisoners now numbers more than 500.

Lawyer Djilas claimed at his one-day trial that soon in a moment of anger after a ter to the newspaper he had a change of mind about sending it. He thought he had destroyed it. At no time did he show it to anyone.

The hand-written letter — which was reportedly written the trial that the note was friend was arrested for speaking his mind — contained allegations that democracy and human rights were being violated in Yugoslavia.

Defence lawyers claimed at the trial that the note was planted by the police in the office desk belonging to Djilas. And a witness was produced at the trial who said that the police came twice to the office and rummaged through the desk before they announced they had found the letter. They used their own keys.

Since the lawyer was first arrested two months ago, Milovan Djilas has claimed that the trial could be seen as an attempt to silence him.

Milovan Djilas has come under severe attack recently from government leaders and the press.

Policing Grant Given to Sidney

The provincial cabinet has agreed to give Sidney $127,500 to help pay this year's police costs in the municipality.

The payment was authorized by special order-in-council released Friday.

The cabinet also approved special grants to help cover police costs in four other municipalities in the province. They include Williams Lake, $112,500; MacKenzie, $90,000; Comox, $90,000 and Langley City, $198,500.

The government said the five communities "urgently and immediately required the funds for the public good."

Prior to April 1 the province paid for policing at Sidney which is carried out by the RCMP.

But the police bills became a municipal responsibility when the town's population exceeded 5,000. In the 1976 census Sidney had a population of 6,000.

Sidney council had the choice of either retaining the RCMP on a contractual basis or starting its own force. Council members voted for the former.

That Drop-In Pilot GroundedforMonth

SEATTLE — The United Airlines captain who made an unscheduled landing in San Francisco last month to remove a stewardess he considered insubordinate has received a 29-day suspension without pay, the airline said Friday. The pilot, whose name was not disclosed, made the unscheduled stop April 4 on a non-stop flight from San Diego to Seattle-Tacoma International Airport. He was angry because the flight attendant refused to serve meals to the flight crew. She apparently claimed there wasn't enough food after the passengers were served.

An investigation by the company concerning the flight attendant continues. She is still flying.

MONTREAL — Margaret Trudeau's parents initially tried to talk her out of marrying a man 29 years her senior, the Montreal Star reported Friday. She resisted all dissuasion, the paper added. It quoted Mrs. Trudeau's mother as saying at the time of the March 1971, wedding, "She went into it very coldbloodedly, knowing exactly what she was doing."

DENVER — The Colordo Supreme Court rejected singer-actress Claudine Longet's request Friday for time off for good behavior from a 30-day jail term for the shooting death of her lover. The high court also rejected a request to release the 35-year-old French-born entertainer on $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

KINGSTON, Ont. — Ernest Caron, sentenced to life imprisonment for the attempted kidnapping of the daughter of John Craig Eaton, was reported in serious condition in hospital Friday after being found in his cell at Millhaven penitentiary with 18 stab wounds. Prison spokesmen said Caron, 48, was found around 9 a.m. when guards were opening the cells for work duty.

OTTAWA — Albert St. Amour, assistant deputy sergeant-at-arms, carried the ceremonial mace in the usual procession into the House of Commons Friday for his last time. He is retiring after 41 years of public service — 36 years and six months of which have been in the service of the House of Commons.

WASHINGTON — Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes has failed a second time to get the U.S. Parole Commission to end his parole status. Estes was freed from prison in 1971 after serving six years for a multi-million dollar Texas storage tank fraud.

BUFFALO, Wyo. — Joe Eno found something out of the ordinary while cleaning his garrage — a four-foot, air-to-ground missile. He said he has no idea how the missile wound up in his garage. Although it didn't have a warhead, it was ready to be fired.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. — Widow Frances Davne took 77 pairs of men's slacks to the cleaners. But that doesn't mean she isn't "good, true, honest and virtuous," according to a lawsuit. Mrs. Davne filed the $5,000 suit, charging that an insurance adjuster had falsely implied she had been "entertaining men in her home who had no relationship to her through marriage or blood." Mrs. Davne took 77 pairs of men's pants belonging to her late husband and her two sons to the cleaners after a fire damaged her home on March 13, 1976, the suit said. She said the adjuster asked the storeowner: "She's supposed to be a widow, what's she doing with 77 pair of men's pants in her house."

ALICE, Tex. — A grand jury ended a three-month investigation Friday without returning indictments in the discovery of nearly half a million dollars buried on the ranch of an oilfield welder. Ranch owner James Hiroms went to jail for 10 days after refusing to testify before the grand jury despite a grant of immunity from prosecution. "He was freed because we had nothing on the man," said lawyer Arnoldo Garcia. "It just isn't against the law for a man to have money buried in his backyard."

NEW YORK — Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the late U.S. president, has married Patricia Louisa Oakes, the adopted daughter of Nancy Oakes, Baroness Hueningen-Huene. The baroness is the daughter of Sir Harry Oakes, a Canadian millionaire whose murder in the Bahama Islands during the Second World War was widely publicized. The baroness's then-husband, the Count de Marigny, was charged with the crime, but he was acquitted.

THEIR HAPPINESS REWARD ENOUGH

VANCOUVER — A city man who spent more than $100 to save the life of a dog he found injured in the street says he doesn't want to be reimbursed for his good deed.

George Harvey, 28, was driving along a Vancouver street Saturday night when he noticed a dog lying injured in the road.

Harvey wrapped his coat around the animal and took it to a veterinary hospital.

He paid the bill and then located the dog's owners, Reginald and Irene Anderson of Vancouver, through an advertisement they had placed in a newspaper.

The Andersons offered to reimburse Harvey for the money he had spent on the dog, but he refused to accept any payment.

Harvey said the happiness of the Andersons was payment enough.

$180,000 for Injury

CALGARY — A city man who was permanently deformed in an accident in December, 1973, while performing a good deed was awarded more than $180,000 by Alberta Supreme Court Friday.

Eddie Wirsch, now 53, was returning home from work when he saw a car stopped in the southbound curb lane of the Blackfoot Trail, a major traffic artery in southeast Calgary.

He stopped to help the man who had a punctured oil pan on his car as a result of hitting a trailer ball hitch, court was told.

Wirsch offered to tow the other man's car with his own and pulled his vehicle around in front.

While the two men were between the cars hooking a tow chain, a third car struck the stopped car pinning Wirsch.

Court was told Wirsch was in hospital for seven months, had both legs in traction and was left with a permanent deformity.

He has a shortening of the left leg and walks with a limp.

Medical experts testified he will probably develop arthritis and require further surgery.

TRUDEAU WARNS OF CONFRONTATION

Youth Jobless Summit Issue

Trudeau points the way for Callaghan

Times News Services

LONDON — There will be confrontation and changes in the ideology of Western governments if economic solutions are not found to reduce unemployment, Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau warned the Western summit conference here today, according to Canadian delegation sources.

The summit participants concentrated heavily on economic matters during their first session of all were reported to have agreed to try to meet their set targets for economic expansion.

Time and again, Canadian sources said, the talk turned to unemployment.

The seven leaders ordered their aides to include unemployment in a document explaining — for the peoples of the democracies, not for experts — that the world's current economic problems are fundamental ones, of a new order, and will not quickly be solved.

There was general agreement that unemployment among the young was one of the most serious immediate problems, British sources said.

There was agreement to concentrate on alleviating it, they added.

The seven leaders at the meeting agreed that recovery from world recession is under way — but still is not moving quickly enough, participant U.S. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said.

The seven leaders believe that business and consumer confidence is not high enough and that inflation and unemployment are still far from beaten, he added.

All seven strongly rejected trade protectionism and voiced pleasure over the fact that no country had resorted to that devise, despite the recession of the last few years, Blumenthal said.

At the meeting, Trudeau

Bank Rate Drops

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Bank of Canada's bank rate will be lowered Monday from 8.0 to 7.5 per cent, the fourth such reduction in its lending rate for the chartered banks in less than six months.

Bank governor Gerald Bouey said Friday the reduction was needed because the rate of growth of the money supply — the currency and demand deposits at chartered banks — "has been appreciably below the bank's target range."

Lowering the rate charged by the central bank for its infrequent loans to commercial banks generally influences other interest rates, like those charged for consumer loans and mortgages to move lower.

"There is now room for some decline in short-term interest rates from present levels without running the risk of overly-rapid monetary expansion," Bouey said.

He noted Canada's economic situation and prospects clearly make it very desirable that interest rates be no higher than are necessary to avoid inflationary rates of monetary growth."

Bouey stressed that the federal authorities will be on guard against signs that the easier credit is fanning inflation.

City April Food Bill Up by Four Per Cent

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria's food bill jumped another four per cent during the past month due mainly to an 18 per cent increase in the price of coffee and smaller rises in canned tuna, eggs and milk.

The total grocery order came to $114.90. The same order cost $109.85 one month ago.

Victoria food prices have risen 14.4 per cent so far in 1977. In December, the grocery bill had been an even $100 for the same items.

Main villain continues to be coffee with a six-ounce jar of instant selling at $4.59, up 70 cents from $3.89 one month ago. In December it was selling at $2.61. At this time last year the same product was selling at $2, or less than half the present price.

The outlook is for further price increases, despite a partial boycott. Sales are down but only marginally and prices of other beverages are on the way up, which will discourage shifting to other drinks.

For example, hot chocolate prices will be going up 10 per cent during the next two weeks.

Egg prices have been fluctuating sharply in recent weeks and now are at $1.02 for grade A large, up from 96 cents one month ago. Prices change in response to the supply.

Milk prices are edging upwards. A two-litre container now is $1.16, up from $1.12 one month ago.

Canned tuna prices continue to rise. A seven-ounce tin now sells at $1.15, up from $1.12 one month ago and $1.05 in December. There are reports of a tuna shortage which will continue to put upward pressure on the price. Salmon is in good supply, however, and should not go up.

Canned peaches, a relative bargain at 43 cents this spring, rose two cents during the month.

While price increases were sharp for coffee, eggs and tuna, most items showed no price change during the past 30 days.

By contrast, two-thirds of all items had increased in price between February and March. The present situation is one of stability with some selective sharp increases.

There is no sign of a price reduction in anything.

A BABY'S CRY BOUND FOR SPACE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two U.S. spacecraft "condemned to wander forever" among the stars will carry recordings of voices, a baby crying, birdsong, music, animal grunts and other earth sounds when they blast off on planetary probes this summer.

The proposed messages from Earth would be designed to give possible extra-terrestrial civilizations many thousands or perhaps millions of years from now an audio glimpse at 20th century earth and its inhabitants.

"The spacecraft will last for perhaps hundreds of millions of years," said Dr. Carl Sagan, Cornell University astronomer heading a committee planning the record for the space agency.

"It might be nice, if someone does receive, that he knows a little bit about us."

No one knows if there is life elsewhere, but many other stars are believed to have planetary systems which might have the characteristics necessary for the development of life.

Sagan said it is possible there could be civilizations much more advanced than ours which could detect and capture a foreign spacecraft.

Seized by Police Youth's Liquor

DELTA (CP) — Delta police, cleared of brutality charges by an internal investigation of their work in breaking up a noisy beach party last weekend, used preventive policing Friday to avoid a repeat of the incident.

Police searched scores of cars in the municipality, confiscating liiquor and beer from young people in dozens of separate checks.

A police spokesman said nine separate patrols worked through the municipality. Most beer and liquor was confiscated from young people on their way to parties, he said, adding that no tally of the seized bottles was available.

Earlier Friday, Police Chief Merv Smith said an investigation of last weekend's incident, in which police using riot batons and dogs broke up a group of over 200 young people on the Tsawwassen ferry causeway, has cleared his men of brutality charges.

Smith said police are renting videotape equipment to record such incidents in the future, so as to justify their actions in similar situations to the public.

The police chief, who conducted the in-house investigation, said it disproved charges by the teen-agers involved that police attacked the crowd, swinging riot sticks and unleashing police dogs.

Those involved claimed at a public meeting Wednesday that the police action to break up the crowd was unwarranted, unprovoked and that warnings to clear the beach were not audible.

He said the force of about 18 riot-equipped police moved in a line toward the crowd when the teen-agers ignored warnings to disperse. The youths had been throwing beer bottles and rocks around the beach and at police, he said. Neighbors had complained about the noise.

NORWAY HALTS DRILLING

OSLO (Reuter) — Norway has indefinitely postponed test drilling of new oil and gas deposits off its north coast because of last month's accident on the Bravo oil rig in the North Sea, a government minister said today.

Industry Minister Bjartmar Gjerde said that in response to demands from opposition parties and environmentalists, drilling in the northern fields, believed to be even richer than those in the North Sea, would be put off until it could start within what he called acceptable levels of risk.

Masons Vote Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — The cement masons union has voted 75 per cent in favor of strike action to back contract demands with Construction Labor Relations Association.

It is the only construction union now negotiating with the association to take a strike vote. The association bargains for about 850 contractors in B.C.

Union spokesman Frank Stevens said the masons want some safety changes stipulated in the agreement, and pay for a lead hand at a rate between that of a journeyman and a foreman.

Negotiations continue with four other construction unions.

ENGINE FAULT TURNS BACK CONCORDE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Less than two hours into its Washington-to-London flight Friday, a British Airways Concorde supersonic transport made a forced return to Dulles International Airport because one of its engines had broken down.

It was the first time a Concorde had developed such a problem in flight, the plane's pilot said.

The jetliner was well on its way across the ocean, about 600 miles northeast of Boston near Sable Island, when the trouble developed, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said.

Costly Rings Stolen

ZURICH (AP) — A thief who apparently posed as a jewelry dealer walked off with a 21.5-carat diamond ring that was expected to fetch $350,000 at a Sotheby jewelry auction, a Sotheby's spokesman said Friday. The ring along with another worth $80,000 were reported missing after public viewing Wednesday at the fashionable Baur Au Lac hotel, he said.

Carter a Target

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Assassin, a magazine about espionage and assassination has been on U.S. newsstands only a few weeks. But it has aroused controversy because of its content and its cover which shows a picture of President Carter superimposed within the cross-hairs of a telescopic sight and the words "How Would You Do It?" 70 Apartments Destroyed In Montreal Arson Blaze

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of people spent the night with relatives or in welfare centres and hotels Friday after being forced from their homes by a general-alarm fire which destroyed more than 70 apartment units in a three-block area of the city's north end.

"It's the worst fire I've seen in 15 or 20 years," said Rene Plaisance, director of the Montreal fire department. "It appears the fire was intentionally set in six different places."

More than 200 firemen, hampered by thick smoke and gusting winds, battled for nearly three hours to bring the flames under control.

Police said two firefighters and one area resident suffered smoke inhalation or slight injuries. Another resident was reported in hospital suffering from a suspected heart attack.

The fire aparently began in shed behind a row of two- and three-storey tenements and spread quickly to other buildings.

Flames spread over block-long rows of buildings on both sides of Clark Street, as well as one side of neighboring St. Laurent.

Residents said the fire spread so quickly they had no time to do anything but flee. Few personal belongings could be saved.

A police spokesman said between 70 and 75 housing units, many of them tenement rooms, were destroyed. But it was difficult to determine how many families were left homeless because some units were not occupied.

Preliminary estimates of the homeless ran between 50 and 100 families.

Some of them were being put up temporarily in hotel rooms, paid for by the city's social welfare department. Others stayed with friends or were housed temporarily in welfare reception centres.

AHOP Rules Eased

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Mortgage subsidies for new homes bought under the joint federal-provincial Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) have been extended, to cover buyers paying more than 25 per cent of their income.

Previously, only buyers paying more than 30 per cent were eligible.

Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis announced Friday that the provincial government has signed an agreement with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to extend the AHOP program another year.

Curtis said he was pleased the federal government had agreed to the payment reduction, "the effect of which will probably be to double the province's participation in this program."

The AHOP scheme provides mortgage assistance to people buying homes who qualify under the program rules.

One phase of the program provides assistance to new homes being built. Curtis said 5,800 such units had received assistance during the past year.

Of those 5,800 units, 1,350 have been completed, and about 900 have been sold so far.

In more than half of those sales the purchasers received grant assistance under AHOP.

Curtis said regulations have also been approved which bring into affect recently-passed amendments to the Home Purchase Assistance Amendment Act.

This act provides a $1,000 grant for qualified new home buyers which can be used as part of the down payment.

The changes also allow divorced persons, who previously could not receive benefits under the act if their former spouse had received the

'77 Cars Costliest Yet in Low-Speed Crashes

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Automobile designs continue to cause costly repairs in low-speed crashes despite the enactment five years ago of a U.S. law intended to compel adoption of damage-resistant bumpers, the House commerce consumer protection and finance subcommittee was told Friday.

The evidence came from filmed crash tests of 1977 models conducted by the U.S. Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, a non-profit industry group.

Institute vice-president Benjamin Kelley said that "damage of a kind never before seen" was suffered by a full-size Chevrolet, an Impala, that crashed at 10 miles per hour into a wall angled at 30 degrees to the car's front. The damage shown in a screening of the film: the roof buckled.

The total repair bill — based on an hourly labor rate of $11 — was $928.

For the 1977 model year, General Motors re-designed the Impala and other full-size GM cars to improve efficiency by reducing weight and exterior dimensions. Essentially the same body shell as the Impala's is used for the Chevrolet Caprice and two each of Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick models.

Kelley said that to an extent not previously found in institute tests, doors on some cars jammed closed in low-speed frontal crashes, sealing the occupants inside so they could not escape quickly in event of fire or other emergency.

He said this happened when a Ford LTD crashed at 5 mph into a wall at an angle; when a Plymouth Gran Fury, a Ford LTD, a Ford Pinto and a Chevette had frontal angle crashes at 10 mph, and when a Ford LTD four-door sedan crashed head-on at 10 mph.

In the last instance, Kelley said, the front doors of the LTD — a rival to the Impala and Caprice — jammed. The repair bill was $978, including $292 for fixing the doors.

In contrast, Kelley testified, the doors of a 1975 Volvo, in an earlier test, didn't jam in a 35-mph frontal crash.

Other test highlights:

—In 16 crashes in which a car rammed into the rear of an identical auto at 10 mph, the repair costs for both vehicles ranged from $4.40 for the Honda Civic CVCC to $594 — 135 times as much — for the Plymouth Gran Fury.

—In 10 mph head-on crashes of five models, the range was $397 for a Chevrolet Vega to $687 for the Ford LTD.

—In 5 mph frontal angle crashes into a wall, the range — among 16 models — of repair costs was $98 for a Chevelle (similar to certain Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick models) to $437 for a Datsun B210.

—In 16 similar crashes at 10 mph, the range was $458 for a Honda Civic CVSS to $928 for an Impala.

Kelley said that the department of transportation has not fulfilled the mandate of a 1972

BAD YEAR IN CITY

SATCHWELL
. . . mostly costly crime

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Arson fires in Victoria last year caused more damage than all other fires combined.

The losses reached $626,000, compared with a total fire loss of $1,172,744.

It was, says deputy fire chief Mike Heppell, a bad year for arson — one of the worst ever. And the situation isn't getting any better.

To date this year there have been 19 arson fires in the city, up five over the same period last year. Damage is down slightly, from $91,000 to $73,250.

Heppell says the crucial time of the year for arson fires is just beginning. May and June are traditionally bad months. Last year, three-quarters of the damage occurred during the two-month period.

There is no simple explanation for a rise in the incidence of arson. It's as difficult to fathom as a sudden increase in armed robberies.

According to the Fire Marshall's office, one in four fires in the province is deliberately set.

Last year there were 1,780 arson and incendiary fires in B.C. They resulted in four deaths, 30 injuries and $22 million property loss. By comparison, the total number of fires was 7,400 with 110 deaths, 382 injuries and $77.5 million damage.

Lt.-Insp. Alex Satchwell, a member of the Victoria fire department's arson investigation squad, says arson tops all other violent crimes in terms of dollar loss.

"I think many people view arson as basically a crime against insurance companies," he says. "But they don't consider the price paid by people who are killed, injured, or put out of work by such fires, nor for that matter of the effect on insurance rates.

"It's really a crime against each and every individual in the community."

In medieaval days, arsonists were simply put to death. By the time of Henry II, the punishment had been modified to include the loss of one hand, one foot and banishment.

Arson is considered one of the most serious crimes in the Criminal Code. The maximim penalty is 14 years imprisonment. Why then, are there so many people "playing with fire?"

Heppell says to understand, you have to examine the possible motives.

The intent in arson, he says, may be to defraud, destroy, seek revenge, extort or cover up other crimes such as a break-in, as was the case in a recent fire in a store on Herald, or a murder, as was the case in a Colwood fire three years ago.

The most common motive, however, is vandalism. And because criminal intent is difficult to prove, officials regard such fires not as arson but as "incendiary."

It's a fine distinction but important in terms of the law.

Heppell cites numerous examples:

—a juvenile boy who vented his frustration by setting fire to the home of his next-door neighbor;

—A youth who sought to draw attention to himself by setting fires and then sounding alarm and playing the hero;

—a woman with mental problems who relieved her anxiety by setting fires wherever she went.

But the majority of the fires, says Heppell, are started by persons aimlessly walking or driving about with nothing better to do and looking for a bit of excitement.

Such persons normally gravitate to the downtown core and that explains in part why Victoria has a far higher incidence of arson fires than any other municipality, in the Capital Region.

Last year, Victoria had 38 arson fires, but Saanich, with a larger resident population, had only nine. Esquimalt had six and Oak Bay two.

There is no standard profile for the run-of-the-mill vandal firebug, says Heppell, but there is for the compulsive fire-setter, the pyromaniac.

Dr. Alfred Keltmer, a clinical psychologist at Simon Fraser University, says the pyromaniac is generally a youhg person, shy, retiring and lacking in social skills.

Pyromania is closely associated with sexual hangups, he adds.

Fortunately, the condition is extremely rare and Keltmer says he's only come across two actual cases in all of Canada.

Heppell says the "amateur" firebug invariably returns to the scene to watch the fire he started.

For this reason, both firemen and policemen take photographs of crowds at large fires just in case arson is subsequently discovered.

If arson is discovered, the pictures are then examined against mugshots of known and suspected arsonists and compared with pictures taken at other fires. If a person shows up repeatedly in the crowd shots he's sure to be tracked down and interviewed by police.

The professional arsonist is more wily, says Heppell. He'll be as far away from the fire as he can get, endeavouring to establish an alibi.

It's only been in the past decade that fire departments have really started to tackle the arson problem, Heppell says.

The Victoria arson squad was formed eight years ago and now consists of four inspectors.

Insp. Pat Graham, a member of the squad, says that to the trained eye signs of arson are generally readily discernable. It could be the presence of foreign material or fire accelerants, the odor of gasoline or solvents which linger in the air long after the fire has been put out, or it could be unusual patterns of fire spread, for which there is no natural explanation.

The determination of whether a fire is arson or not is one tiling. Catching an arsonist is quite another.

"It's one of the most difficult investigations," says Insp. Angus Stewart, head of the Victoria police detectives.

"The problem is most of the evidence is burned up. And without evidence how do you substantiate a charge?"

In many cases, however, charges are never laid simply because the person who set the fire is found to be mentally unbalanced.

Heppell says the best line of defence against arson is quick, accurate and reliable detection.

Investigation is the key, and no matter how big or small the fire, the arson inspectors are always around.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Mayor Mike Young believes it's "an excellent plan, but expensive" to buy up the residential panhandle separating three downtown Victoria parks.

The mayor was commenting on a statement by David Murdoch, new executive director of Victoria Jaycees, who has advocated the city buy up the residential belt separating the curling rink from Royal Athletic Park.

The purchase, involving two blocks of residential land, would create a park that would join Central Park on the north.

Young said the city has been pursuing this plan for 15 years and has quietly obtained about 50 per cent of the panhandle.

"I believe all the land in that area is ticketed; that is, the city will purchase it if it becomes available at a fair market price."

However, the project has bogged down in the past six years.

Young said council has shown little recent enthusiasm for the project because of the high price for remaining land sites and, in fact, had given approval for some apartment construction in the belt. This construction is under way.

"It is interesting that this park idea is being discussed again. It is ceratinly an idea, but we have to ask whether the need is as great as the price. Some day we may wish we had gone ahead on this if there is a strong development of apartments in that part of the city. So far, the amount of development in that area has been disappointing."

Victoria parks adminstrator Cliff Bate also praised Murdoch's proposal.

"It is interesting that a newcomer to the city has seen clearly the need for buying up this section to bring the parks together. He has asked some interesting questions.

"However, it may be too late," he said.

Bate said the city has given approval for apartment construction in the residential panhandle on Quadra opposite the curling rink.

"This would indicate that one part of the land, at least, has been recycled into apartment use and will not be available for parks."

Bate said a belt of apartments along Quadra would not kill the park idea but might make it more difficult. It would be possible to obtain all the land, except for the apartment belt, to form a mix of apartments and park in the area.

"It makes sense to construct any new recreational facilities in that area between the curling rink and Royal Athletic Park. One facility helps another."

Bate said he is preparing a revision of the city's 10-year park development plan, now completing its fifth year.

"In my revision, I will be taking a close look at the potential of that area between the curling rink and Royal Athletic Park. I think this is a very interesting area and the logical area for expansion of facilities."

In the interview published Wednesday, Murdoch, who recently arrived in the city from Montreal, also said the Jaycees will make some use of the rocky area beside the Memorial Arena, a section that had been a virtual wasteland for the 31 years the city has held its fair.

Murdoch said it might be possible to construct an old fashioned village on the rocky area, along with facilities for picnics.

Mayor Young said the city has considered the rocky area within the last 12 months and one proposal has been to blast the rock away.

"So far we have never been convinced that the cost of removing the rock could be recaptured by the city. This is another expensive proposition. I expect it will be back before council in the near future."

Rift Surfaces In Ferry Union

The key union spokesman for the officers on B.C. ferries wants to be assigned another job within the giant B.C. government Employees Union, bringing to the surface a long-standing internal rift.

Peter Marshall, representative for the 500 officers, said Friday he couldn't continue in that position because of "obvious hostilities" separating him from both Norm Thornber, union representative for 1,700 unlicensed ferry workers, and Charles Gallagher, manager of the B.C. Ferry Corporation.

He said he has asked for reassignment and expects to be given a different job when John Fryer, general secretary of the 33,000-member BCGEU, returns from a business trip in about 10 days.

Marshall was the key union man in an abortive strike by officers Thursday which lasted just four hours after it was declared illegal by the provincial Labor Relations Board.

But the development which brought the long-standing feud between him and Thornber to a head was the LRB decision last month that licensed and unlicensed ferry workers must bargain as a single unit.

Thornber called that decision an attempt at "union busting."

He said the board is assuming the unlicensed group will outvote the licensed group on issues.

"We are bound and determined to see that this doesn't happen," he said. "We will have to see that we work out a suitable relationship."

Thornber conceded that the two groups of ferry workers had had their differences but he said the officers, shoved Thursday they are not afraid to take strong action.

"There is no doubt that we have the same basic principles, that we are headed the same way."

Police Cars To Carry Weapons

Esquimalt police are taking their high-powered weapons out of their locker room and mounting them — U.S. Sheriff fashion — behind the front seat of their police cars.

So far three of the cars have been equipped, each with two shotguns and a Savage .308-calibre rifle, locked in position in racks.

Insp. Peter Merriott said the decision to mount the weapons in the cars was made quietly about a month ago and was the direct result of an increase in number of armed incidents in the Greater Victoria area.

Before the move the guns were kept in a gun locker room at the police station.

Charity May Not Be Dead After All

Have we got tighter?

And is charity dying, as Paul Reinhardt, associate professor of economics at York University, wrote in a recent article in the Times?

Are we giving less today because we're turned off by what Reinhardt calls "the charity conglomerates like the United Way" which lump worthy causes together and thus take away some of their identity and urgency to the giver?

It seems so. After all, Reinhardt has the figures to prove it. But he makes one interesting observation: The prospect of relieving immediate suffering may heighten the donor's satisfaction from giving: that perhaps individual charity — the desire in us to help a stranger in need — is not dying.

I like to believe that's true.

And I would say it is, judging by the many lovely calls I've had from warm-hearted people wanting to help a Brentwood Indian family which lost its home and possessions in a fire on the Tsartlip reserve a couple of months ago.

After my column on the sad plight of Chuck Sampson, who is out of work because of a bad back injury, his wife Marguerite and their five children, the phone started ringing.

First was a call from Camosun College student Connie Vigar, who wanted to know how to contact the Sampsons and give them some of her things.

"So many of us have so much we never use, while there are people who have so little," said Connie.

The Red Cross supplied a host of blankets, clothing and other things to the Friendship Centre for the Sampsons and quite a few other people have offered bedding and furniture. But the problem has been that Chuck and his family don't have anywhere to put the stuff. They are still squeezed into two small rooms in a motel and need a house.

Money has been in pretty short supply, too, though a few people have also helped out in this respect.

Attached to one letter, from a woman who said she wished to remain anonymous, was a cheque for $50.

"Your item about the Sampson family certainly made me feel very ashamed,' the letter began. "If such a calamity had happened to a white family, donations would have poured in, I am sure.

max low

"I am enclosing a small cheque which I would like you to use for them in the way you think best, either to be given to them as cash or in the form of clothes or food they may need."

I cashed the cheque and gave the money — along with a gift voucher for $20 worth of groceries another women sent in — to Chuck and he was grateful.

But then I got a phone call from Helen Prince ... and she set me thinking.

She would like to donate $25 toward helping the Sampsons, Mrs. Prince said — but then she promptly announced that this amount and the others I'd received so far were "chicken feed."

"These people need a home," she pointed out. "Why can't we start a fund to help them get enough money to build a house? If it was a white family, this would have been done already. These people don't get a break, you know."

I know — but every time I say it, someone jumps on me.

Like I got a couple of calls from people wanting to air their views and give "the other side of the coin." Indian people, they said, didn't even help themselves — or each other.

And Eileen Medley, executive director of the Red Cross in Victoria, said a lot of help had already been given to the Sampson family.

"I think people are wonderful when it comes to a disaster," said Mrs. Medley. "When we had the Guatemala earthquake, $1,000 was collected in 10 days. Every time an appeal goes out, the people of Victoria are wonderful."

Talking of the Sampsons, Mrs. Medley said she felt a lot of fuss was being made about something which wasn't correct.

"Reports have appeared in the paper saying nobody's helping them and it's just not true."

Still, I thought Mrs. Prince's idea of a fund was a good one and so I phoned Tsartlip band chief Philip Paul who is also chairman of the Victoria Indian Cultural Centre, and he agreed to set it up.

"Sure, we're quite willing to do it," Paul said. "If there's a response being generated by the community, it's a healthy response from the people, and we shouldn't stop it."

So there you are. If you would like to help the Sampson family raise enough money at least for a down payment on a home, you can send your donations to The Sampson Family Fund, c-o the Indian Cultural Centre, 890B McKenzie Avenue, Victoria V8X 3G5.

Krishna Suspicion

Better Business Bureau manager Bill Tindall is more than just a little suspicious of fund-raising tactics used by followers of the Hare Krishna movement.

Tindall says that on the eve of the annual Multiple Sclerosis annual fund drive, members of the religious sect are appearing with bags inscribed Ms. and soliciting donations.

Like the MS Society, the Hare Krishna people are pinning carnations on donors.

Tindall says he isn't telling people not to donate to Hare Krishna but rather that they be sure they are not giving money believing they are making a donation to the MS fund drive.

KNIFE ROBBERY

A man armed with a butcher knife and wearing a nylon stocking mask over his face held up the Daffodil Inn, 680 Garbally, Friday night and made off with about $50.

The manageress, who asked that her name not be used, said she was alone in the office when the man walked in at 10:50 p.m.

The man fled out the door and was last seen running towards Gorge Road.

Police found the man's knife and a khaki shirt he had been wearing on the sidewalk a short distance from the motel.

The robber is described as in his 20s, about five feet, six inches tall, slightly built and fair-haired.

RELIABILITY IN DOUBT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver Board of Trade group just back from a trip to the Far East found that interest by Japanese, Koreans and others in doing business with British Columbia companies is tempered by doubts about the province's reliability as a source of raw materials.

David Fraser, board of trade president, said the Japanese in particular are worried that work stoppages here will make continuity of supply difficult.

"They also told us bluntly that their investments will go to the countries or areas where the prospects of profit are best," he said.

New System

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Electrohome Ltd. has sold a $50,000 filtration oil recovery system to TRW Canada Ltd. of St. Catharines, a major automotive parts manufacturer. It is the second system Electrohome has sold in recent weeks.

Apathy Rapped by Chairman

D. Armstrong, chairman and chief executive officer of Rio Algom Ltd., delivered a strong attack on governments but also said public apathy allows them to avoid accounting for their actions.

"Canadians nowadays are more literate, more affluent, better informed, more sophisticated than ever before," Armstrong said in a speech to the annual meeting of shareholders.

"Thus their apathy in the face of the erosion of their fragile assets is most surprising and this is, in part, why politicians and bureaucrats have been able to avoid accountability for their actions."

He said Canadians must tell elected representatives they will no longer tolerate mismanagement of funds "and that we do not want a managed economy controlled by the whims of bureaucrats operating independently of their political masters."

Governments must be made to operate with the same rules and guidelines as business, he said, with full disclosure of "all the financial consequences of government policies."

Armstrong said Rio Algom, which last year earned $31.6 million compared with $30 million in 1975, faces 1977 "on a sound financial basis."

George R. Albino, president, told the meeting the company has enough cash to finance a $100-million capital spending program this year without borrowing.

Most of the new spending will be for expansion of the Quirke mine and mill and to reactivate the Panel mine and mill, both in Elliot Lake, Ont. In 1976, Rio Algom spent $61 million on various projects, including a new $24-million steel melt shop which went into operation at Welland, Ont.

The company's uranium mining operations are at Elliot Lake and Moab, Utah. It also operates copper and metallurgical coal mines in British Columbia.

Its major steel subsidiary, Atlas Steels and Atlas Alloys, reported before-tax earnings of $3.1 million, a sharp decline from the $16.3 million earned in 1975.

Armstrong said the emergence of a separatist government in Quebec has diverted attention from Canada's economic problems.

He said a "deterioration that has become evident in our economic and social system" was due primarily to "the rapidly expanding role of governments in our affairs, together with major deficiencies in governmental financial control and accountability systems."

Armstrong said no single factor has produced these forces in the Canadian system.

"But our predicament is unquestionably in considerable degree the consequence of . . . government that takes too much upon itself, spends too much, taxes too much and controls too much."

Investors

The Investors Group reports consolidated net operating income, before extraordinary items, for the first three months of 1977 totalled $3,630,000.

That compared with $3,497,000 for the first quarter of 1976.

At its 36th annual meeting, the company said after allowing for preferred dividends, earnings per share were 25 cents compared with 24 cents in 1976. It said there were no extraordinary items in 1977 while 1976 earnings were reduced to $3,466,000, or 24 cents a share, by extraordinary items.

Gross revenues for the 1977 quarter amounted to $16,940,000 compared with a restated $14,915,000 in 1976.

The Investors Group announced the declaration of dividends of 31.25 cents a share on preferred shares, 1969 series; and 12.5 cents a share of common convertible and common class A convertible shares payable in each case on Aug. 1, 1977 to shareholders of record July 12, 1977.

As well, accelerated dividends have been declared on the common class B convertible and common class C convertible shares in the amount of 10.625 cents a share, plus 1.875 cents a share if budget resolution No. 27 of the notice of ways and means motion to amend the Income Tax Act (Canada) introduced in the federal budget, becomes law on or prior to Nov. 1, 1978. The dividends on the class B and class C shares will be paid to shareholders of record July 12, 1977 as follows: 10.625 cents a share on Aug. 1, 1977; and 1.875 cents a share within 30 days after the date of the amendment to the Income Tax Act giving effect to budget resolution No. 27 becomes law, but in no event, prior to Aug. 1, 1977, and only if such amendment becomes law on or prior to Nov. 1, 1978.

Wescorp

Wescorp Industries Ltd. reports net earnings of $1,348,915 or $11.08 a share for 1976, compared with $75,897 or 62 cents the previous year. On a fully diluted basis, share earnings were $7.41 compared with 49 cents in 1975.

The company said results for 1976 include Wescorp's equity in losses of subsidiaries, which reduced earnings by $4,816. In 1975 those losses reduced earnings by $310,531.

Revenue increased by 52 per cent to $21.5 million from $14.1 million, Wescorp's revenue and earnings are derived from its subsidiaries: Pafco Insurance Co. Ltd., Toronto; Western Pottery Co., Inc., Los Angeles; Mariner Homes Ltd., Penticton; Japanese Village Restaurants Ltd., with restaurants in Edmonton, Calgary and Ottawa; and Wescorp Properties Ltd., Vancouver.

The annual report said that during 1976 Wescorp disposed of its 50-per-cent interest in Bramalea Wescorp Developments Ltd., a revenue property joint venture, and a wholly-owned subsidiary, Tenco Electronics Ltd., resulting in an extraordinary gain of $431,268 or $3.35 a share.

Hy's

Hy's of Canada Ltd. reports unaudited net earnings for the three months ended Dec. 31, 1976 were $89,000 or 11 cents a share compared with $113,000 or 12 cents a share for the corresponding period in 1975.

Revenue rose to $4,622,000 from $3,812,000 in the 1975 period.

Hy's operates restaurants in Canada and the United States.

Great West

The Great-West Life Assurance Company has reported net income of $4,022,000 for the first three months of 1977.

A meeting of the company's board of directors was told net income attributable to shareholders was $2,353,000 with the remainder from participating policyholders.

The directors approved the payment of a quarterly dividend of 81 cents a share on June 1, 1977 to shareholders of record at the close of business on May 16.

The company reported sales of life insurance coverage and annuities declined 10 per cent during the first three months of the year to $986,931,000. Health insurance in force in terms of gross annual premiums totalled $258,424,000 at March 31, 1977, an increase of nine per cent during the quarter.

TEAM CANADA'S 'SUCCESS' STORY:

52-12 in Minutes, 1-8 in Goals

VIENNA (CP) — Canada forgot about hockey Friday night, preferring the penalty box instead, and the Soviet Union took advantage for an 8-1 victory in a world hockey championship game.

The setback knocked the National Hockey League selects out of the race for the gold medal. The Canadians can win a bronze medal if they tie or defeat defending champion Czechoslovakia in their final game Sunday and Sweden loses to the Soviet Union.

The Canadians appeared to have a chance of upsetting the Russians on Friday, but the team decided to use intimidation tactics, instead of concentrating on putting the puck past goalie Vladislav Tretiak.

Referee Raimo Sepponen of Finland, criticized by Canadian coach Johnny Wilson, gave Canada 52 minutes in penalties and the Soviet Union 12 minutes. The Russians scored four power-play goals and the Canadians one.

In another game involving the top four teams, the Czechoslovaks shaded Sweden 2-1 on goals by Vladimir Martinec and Bohuslav Ebermann, who scored the winner at 15:38 of the final period on a breakaway.

After nine games in the eight-country tournament, defending champion Czechoslovakia leads with 15 points. The Russians are second with 14, two more than Sweden, and three ahead of Canada.

In the lower division, Finland has 10 points, the United States five, West Germany three and Romania two.

The lower division winds up its single round-robin playoffs series tonight with Romania meeting West Germany and the U.S. playing Finland.

On Sunday, it's Canada against Czechoslovakia, at 6 a.m. PDT, and the Russians against the Swedes. The Canada-Czechoslovakia game will be shown on the CTV national network.

Derek Holmes, general manager of the Canadian team, said: "I'm disappointed with the result and definitely disappointed with some of the behavior as well.

Left winger Eric Vail of the Canadian team was handed a match penalty, which carries an automatic one-game suspension, for trying to injure defenceman Sergej Babinov. While Vail was serving his 10-minute penalty, the Russians scored two power-play goals.

Defenceman Carol Vadnais, leading the Canadian team in penalty minutes with 33, received two minutes for spearing and a 10-minute misconduct for arguing.

Centre Walt McKechnie of Canada got three minor penalties, one for slashing, one for tripping and one for cross-checking. The Russians scored once when he was off.

Wilson criticized Sepponen at a news conference:

"I think it was a pity they assigned a log scout to officiate the game. I think he lost control of the game and frustrated our players."

Helmut Balderis and Alexander Yakushev paced the Russians with two goals each before 9,400 fans. Yakushev had four goals when the Soviet Union whipped Canada 11-1 earlier in the tournament.

The Russians outshot the Canadians 46-31. Canadian goalie Tony Esposito could hardly be faulted, although he didn't look as sharp as in previous games.

CANADIANS WERE ON ATTACK during this play in world hockey tournament at Vienna Friday as Wilf Paiement attempts to get at puck being smothered by Soviet goaltender Vladislav Tretiák. Sergei Babinov sails through air as Soviet clubmates Vladimir Shadrin and Vladimir Lutchenko watch action. Canadians later spent more time sitting in penalty box than attacking and were drubbed 8-1. Macs Grab a Squeaker; Rocks Will Do Later On

One week's work and like that.

It was an interesting beginning to another lacrosse season. On the one hand, nobody knew what to expect from McDonalds, last year's Canadian junior champions, but shorn of many of their star performers. On the other, great things were expected of the Shamrocks, defending Western Lacrosse Association champions.

So what happens? McDonalds come up with a squeaker, a come-from-behind-a-five-goal-deficit performance and a one-goal win; and the Irish come up with a stunner, a loss by blowing a four-goal margin.

General manager Bob Reid of McDonalds was like a cat on a hot tin roof most of the evening as he mumbled such phrases as: . . . "I guess you'll have to expect this . . . it's going to be a long season . . . oh, no, not that! . . . he's supposed to shoot the puck off that block when he sees daylight . . . Muzz! . . . get them off the floor . . . Muzz! ("Muzz" is Muzz Bryant, new coach of McDonalds).

But it was ever thus for Reid, especially last season when McDonalds made those two memorable comebacks in the playoffs to get to the Canadian final.

To re-coin a phrase, Reid already is used to it. And, if the truth were out, he wouldn't have it any other way.

A couple of the brighter newcomers had to be Rhys Wicks and Paul Michael although Michael got undressed by a Roadrunner forward on one head fake. Bruce Townsend will also help and the Macs may have some other surprises later. They now have permission to use younger players on a spot basis, "and there are some good ones there," said Reid.

However, it was a good start; and the team, under Bryant and Brian Spaven, although it may get run over once in a while, appears to be in good hands and headed the right way.

What cooled the Shamrocks off may indirectly have been the Bob Cool affair, because certainly they weren't up for their debut. Then, too, some of the veterans said they might retire. That was disturbing.

Cool, surely you've heard, was drafted from McDonalds by the Rocks, but declined to report for his own reasons, and has been the subject of conjecture ever since as he bids to join Nanaimo Timbermen.

He hasn't played or practiced for that reason. Now, however, following a meeting Tuesday, it appears that the way is about to be cleared for him to make a move. WLA commissioner Roy Burton isn't about to stand in Cool's way. "I just have to abide by the league rules," he said, "and I think Bob understands my position and holds no grudge against me."

But back to the Irish. For whatever reason, they just weren't ready and played like it. Burrards could have been had, too, because they didn't show that much and almost folded in the late going after having the best of it earlier.

So things can only get better; and the rookies, Gerry Cadwallader, Dave Lowdon and Glen Neuman (well, he's a first-year Shamrock) acquitted themselves well enough. It was some of the vets who let the side down. Or as coach Nirmal Dillon commented: "We're supposed to be a fast-break team and we only had one fast break all game."

Meanwhile, up country, at Nanaimo, the word from Ken Alexander is that the Timbermen are just about set. "I think we'll have a good club," said Alexander, who is cast in the role of playing coach. "It will be better than last year, more competitive and that will be good for the league because it will give the Island two competitive teams."

So Kenny likes the Shamrocks a bit and respects their capabilities. "They were a little short tonight," he commented.

Certainly, he would like to have Cool to play alongside his teammate of last year, Kevin Alexander, "but those stories about big money offers from us are for the birds," he said.

The Timbermen have six players commuting from Victoria and now have a new goalkeeper. He is Tim Barrie, who hails from Peterborough, played in the National Lacrosse League and sat out last season.

He was acquired because John Lewis, rookie of the year last season, lives on the Mainland and wants to play there.

"We'll make a deal for him with Coquitlam," he said.

Then he added in his best one-upmanship fashion:

"We don't want to keep anyone out of lacrosse. That's not our style."

It looks like a lively season ahead.

ST. MICHAEL'S ADDS JUNIOR HIGH HONORS

Give St. Michael's University a double mark.

Winner of the Greater Victoria Senior High School Rugby League championship last week, St. Michael's added the junior high title to its trophy shelf Friday.

Paced by the 11-point performance of Jamie Ellis, SMU defeated Lansdowne Flyers 19-6 in the district's junior finale at Windsor Park.

Ellis scored a try, two converts and a penalty goal. Rob Frame and Whim Vanderspek also scored tries for St. Michael's, appearing in the final for a fifth consecutive year.

Colquitz defeated SMU in last year's final.

10 Ex-Champs Pursue Titles

Two distaff stars will be eligible to shoot for third titles while three other women and five men who have previously collected one crown will be listed among contestants when the 14th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Year fivepin rolloffs get under way at 1 p.m. Sunday on the Town and Country Lanes.

May Wallis, who topped women qualifiers with a 922 series rolled in the 17th week of the 26-week contest, won rolloff titles in 1965 and 1969.

Dorothy Krimmer, who captured the laurels in 1973 and 1975, qualified with a 798 series in the 15th week.

The three former rolloff champs chasing a second crown in the women's fivepin division are defending-champion Marie Fisher, Sandra Wood (1971) and Donna Brock (1970).

Bidding to become the first male fivepinner to take more than one rolloff title are defending-champion Don Brown, Jerry Melissa (1975), King Lee (1974), Fred Hickey (1972) and Darrell Prezeau (1969).

Bowlers qualified for the rolloffs and earned Bowler-of-the-Week awards by rolling the highest three-game scratch series in each of four divisions — men's and women's tenpins and men's and women's fivepins — during each week.

Rolloff champions will collect Times Trophies and any rolloff winner who also is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times receives a bonus award of $100.

Islanders' Style Appreciated (Now)

MONTREAL (CP) — Seldom during the regular National Hockey League season did Montreal Canadiens have to live with any adversity as they rolled to a record-breaking 60-8-12 mark.

However the Canadiens were brought back to earth during their semi-final against New York Islanders and the six-game set which concluded Thursday night may have been the best preparation possible for their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series.

The Canadiens open defence of the trophy they took from Philadelphia Flyers last season as they play host to Boston Bruins tonight. Montreal hoped to play the series opener Sunday night, but NHL officials vetoed the plan because of television commitments to the NHL-TV network in the United States.

Boston plays a similar style to that of the Islanders and therefore it is likely to be a bruising series as was the case in the New York-Montreal affair.

"I think it's going to be a physical series," Montreal centre Doug Risebrough said Friday.

"Playing the Islanders was really healthy for us. It had been a long time since we had been involved in a real bump and grind game and now we know what it is going to take to win and it's just them or us."

The Canadiens played the Bruins five times during the regular season, with the Bruins taking the first three games before Montreal came back with one-sided triumphs in the last two.

The Bruins have been off since last Sunday after eliminating Philadelphia in four games and Gregg Sheppard wondered if the six-day layoff was good.

"We were ready to play at the beginning of the week or the middle of the week rather than the weekend. At the end of the season, we had the week off because we had won our division and that's the week we needed because we had a lot of pressure games.

"But right now, I feel this week off is going to do us more harm than it will do us good."

RAIDERS TAKE OPENER

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Prince Albert Raiders gave up two power-play goals in the first period Friday night but stormed back for a 6-4 victory over Pembroke Lumber Kings in the opening game of the Centennial Cup hockey final.

The series resumes here tonight with the third game scheduled Sunday.

Garth Green scored the winner unassisted in the first minute of the third period for the Raiders, champions of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League.

Prince Albert served seven of 11 minor penalties and each team took a major for fighting. The Raiders earned a 36-32 edge in shots on goal over Pembroke, champions of Ontario's Central Junior Hockey League.

Blazers Scorch Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maurice Lucas led a quartet of 20-point scorers for Portland Friday night as the Trail Blazers shattered Los Angeles' home-court invincibility and whipped the Lakers 120-109 in the opener of their National Basketball Association semi-final playoff series.

Lucas scored 28 points, Lionel Hollins 25, Bill Walton 22 and Johnny Davis 20 as the visitors led from start to finish in the first game of the best-of-seven series.

The Trail Blazers led by 22 points, 60-38, late in the first half and the closest the Lakers could come after that was 99-92 in the final period. Then Lucas scored three points and Hollins hit a field goal to boost the lead again.

Los Angeles had won 41 games, including four in the quarter-final playoff against Golden State, while losing only four at its Forum home this season.

But Portland came out with a running game before the crowd of 16,975 and took control with its balanced attack.

Rookie Earl Tatum, who like Lucas played college ball at Marquette, led the Lakers with a career-high 32 points. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 for the Lakers, but had only 10 rebounds compared with 13 for Walton and 15 for Lucas.

The team meet in the second game of the series Sunday afternoon.

Tuura Paces Salmonbellies

DELTA (CP) — New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies edged Coquitlam J-Hawks 10-9 in Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League action Friday.

Mark Tuura led the Salmonbellies with three goals and Ken Brown added two. Singles came from Bruce Shipley, Steve Manning, Jack Fulton, Gary Lindsay and Mario Govorchin.

Mike Reilly scored five goals for Coquitlam, while Jim Alward, Colin Broomfield, Tom Barchello and Dave Ramsay scored one each.

Soccer Meeting

Annual general meeting of the Vancouver Island Soccer League is scheduled for Monday, May 16, in the Lambrick Park Barn.

Ferguson, Bridge Receive Awards

Ferguson, who plays with Powell River Villas, was named the most-valuable player in the league's premier division.

Receiving most-valuable-player awards in other divisions were Frank Hartman of Duncan Powel's (second), Gary Dixon of Labatts (third) and Don Raynor of L. H. Ormiston (fourth).

Grant Darley and Ted Van Waes of Victoria Athletics shared the leading-goaltender award and the goal-scoring champion was John Leier of the University of Victoria Vikings, who were voted the most-sportsmanlike team by referees.

A new award, the Wilf Sadler Trophy, named in honor of he late soccer and baseball executive, went to Mike Hardy of Victoria West as the most-sportsmanlike player in the league.

Director Peter Bishop was presented with the Albert McDonald Trophy as executive-of-the-year.

Janice Second

VANCOUVER — Anne Muscat of Vancouver was a surprise over-all winner Friday in novice women's competition at the Western Canada gymnastics championships.

Janice Achtem of Victoria placed second.

That Drop-In Pilot Grounded Month

people

SEATTLE — The United Airlines captain who made an unscheduled landing in San Francisco last month to remove a stewardess he considered insubordinate has received a 30-day suspension without pay, the airline said Friday. The pilot, whose name was not disclosed, made the unscheduled stop April 4 on a non-stop flight from San Diego to Seattle-Tacoma International Airport. He was angry because the flight attendant refused to serve meals to the flight crew. She apparently claimed there wasn't enough food after the passengers were served.

An investigation by the company concerning the flight attendant continues. She is still flying.

MONTREAL — Margaret Trudeau's parents initially tried to talk her out of marrying a man 29 years her senior, the Montreal Star reported Friday. She resisted all dissuasion, the paper added. It quoted Mrs. Trudeau's mother as saying at the time of the March 1971, wedding, "She went into it very cold-bloodedly, knowing exactly what she was doing."

DENVER — The Colordo Supreme Court rejected singer-actress Claudine Longet's request Friday for time off for good behavior from a 30-day jail term for the shooting death of her lover. The high court also rejected a request to release the 35-year-old French-born entertainer on $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

KINGSTON, Ont. — Ernest Caron, sentenced to life imprisonment for the attempted kidnapping of the daughter of John Craig Eaton, was reported in serious condition in hospital Friday after being found in his cell at Millhaven penitentiary with 18 stab wounds. Prison spokesmen said Caron, 48, was found around 9 a.m. when guards were opening the cells for work duty.

OTTAWA — Albert St. Amour, assistant deputy sergeant-at-arms, carried the ceremonial mace in the usual procession into the House of Commons Friday for his last time. He is retiring after 41 years of public service — 36 years and six months of which have been in the service of the House of Commons.

WASHINGTON — Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes has failed a second time to get the U.S. Parole Commission to end his parole status. Estes was freed from prison in 1971 after serving six years for a multi-million dollar Texas storage tank fraud.

BUFFALO, Wyo. — Joe Eno found something out of the ordinary while cleaning his garrage — a four-foot, air-to-ground missile. He said he has no idea how the missile wound up in his garage. Although it didn't have a warhead, it was ready to be fired.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. — Widow Frances Davne took 77 pairs of men's slacks to the cleaners. But that doesn't mean she isn't "good, true, honest and virtuous," according to a lawsuit. Mrs. Davne filed the $5,000 suit, charging that an insurance adjuster had falsely implied she had been "entertaining men in her home who had no relationship to her through marriage or blood." Mrs. Davne took 77 pairs of men's pants belonging to her late husband and her two sons to the cleaners after a fire damaged her home on March 13, 1976, the suit said. She said the adjuster asked the storeowner: "She's supposed to be a widow, what's she doing with 77 pair of men's pants in her house."

ALICE, Tex. — A grand jury ended a three-month investigation Friday without returning indictments in the discovery of nearly half a million dollars buried on the ranch of an oilfield welder. Ranch owner James Hiroms went to jail for 10 days after refusing to testify before the grand jury despite a grant of immunity from prosecution. "He was freed because we had nothing on the man," said lawyer Arnoldo Garcia. "It just isn't against the law for a man to have money buried in his backyard."

NEW YORK — Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the late U.S. president, has married Patricia Louisa Oakes, the adopted daughter of Nancy Oakes, Baroness Hueningen-Huene. The baroness is the daughter of Sir Harry Oakes, a Canadian millionaire whose murder in the Bahama Islands during the Second World War was widely publicized. The baroness's then-husband, the Count de Marigny, was charged with the crime, but he was acquitted.

THEIR HAPPINESS REWARD ENOUGH

VANCOUVER — A city man who spent more than $100 to save the life of a dog he found injured in the street says he doesn't want to be reimbursed for his good deed.

George Harvey, 28, was driving along a Vancouver street Saturday night when he noticed a dog lying injured in the road.

Harvey wrapped his coat around the animal and took it to a veterinary hospital.

He paid the bill and then located the dog's owners, Reginald and Irene Anderson of Vancouver, through an advertisement they had placed in a newspaper.

The Andersons offered to reimburse Harvey for the money he had spent on the dog, but he refused to accept any payment.

Harvey said the happiness of the Andersons was payment enough.

$180,000 for Injury

CALGARY — A city man who was permanently deformed in an accident in December, 1973, while performing a good deed was awarded more than $180,000 by Alberta Supreme Court Friday.

Eddie Wirsch, now 53, was returning home from work when he saw a car stopped in the southbound curb lane of the Blackfoot Trail, a major traffic artery in southeast Calgary.

He stopped to help the man who had a punctured oil pan on his ear as a result of hitting a trailer ball hitch, court was told.

While the two men were between the cars hooking a tow chain, a third car struck the stopped car pinning Wirsch.

Court was told Wirsch was in hospital for seven months, had both legs in traction and was left with a permanent deformity.

He has a shortening of the left leg and walks with a limp.

Medical experts testified he will probably develop arthritis and require further surgery.
